House Overrides Veto Of Red Control Bill

Vote Is 286-48; Debate Delays Senate Action

President Says Bill Unworkable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — The House made short work today of overriding President Truman's veto of a bill designed to control communists but Senate action became snarled in extensive debate on the question.

Senators who side with the President's ideas on the measure—he said it would "weaken our liberties" and "give aid and comfort to those who would destroy us"—spoke at length.

Five hours after the Senate took up the measure, the foes of the bill had used nearly all that time to denounce it.

But Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) disagreed.

He said some senators who want to sustain the veto were for putting off a vote until tomorrow.

"We are prepared to sit this out all night if necessary," Ferguson told a reporter. "We are all organized to wear them down."

Backers of the bill confidently predicted a lop-sided Senate vote to nullify the presidential dissent and put it on the law books—once those fighting it stopped talking.

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) one of the principal authors of the bill, said in a statement that he did not think many persons could be made to believe that the measure would help the communists.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), one of those who voted against it, pleaded with the Senate tonight "to take a couple more days" for study of the legislation and then sustain the President.

House Vote Is 286 To 48

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said he "couldn't say right now" whether he and others fighting to sustain the President's veto would attempt to delay a vote until tomorrow in the hope of rallying public support.

The attack on the bill in the Senate came after both the House and the Senate had voted to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27, after the congressional elections.

However, Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), the majority leader, told the Senate he would move to cancel that decision if more time was needed to get a vote on the veto.

Senate debate on the veto got underway at 5:25 p. m., EST., shortly after the House voted to override. The House count of 286 to 48 was 63 more votes than the two-thirds majority required to set aside a dissent.

Among its sweeping provisions, the measure would require the registration of communists and commun-

McMahon Asks Probe Of Hearst Draft Records

Says Newspaper 'Scandalized' Him

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) asked the Senate today to investigate whether three sons of Publisher William Randolph Hearst violated the Selective Service Act during World War II.

The investigation McMahon proposed in a resolution also would embrace the draft record of Leslie Gould, financial editor for the New York Journal American, and Serge Rubinstein of New York.

Rubinstein, convicted of draft dodging in New York City in 1947, served two years in a federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. He was released in 1949.

McMahon told the Senate that the Journal American, a Hearst newspaper, had "scandalized" him by "printing the fraudulent charge that I intervened for Rubinstein in his draft difficulties."

Gould said in New York:

"If Sen. McMahon is interested in my Selective Service record, I suggest he ask my draft board. As to the Senator's relations with Serge Rubinstein whom I exposed, there's the record."

In New York, William H. White, editor of the Hearst Newspaper Bureau in New York, issued the following statement from William Randolph Hearst, Jr., publisher of the New York Journal-American:

"The draft records of my brothers and myself are, I believe, available for inspection by Sen. McMahon or any other interested parties.

"To charge, as Sen. McMahon has, that there was anything irregular is, it seems to me, to impugn the honesty and integrity of the members of those draft boards.

"Sen. McMahon or anyone else is welcome to investigate the records to their heart's content. It would appear, though, that Sen. McMahon is not as sanguine about publicity on his own background."

Tax, Defense Bills Sent To President

Levy On Income Will Take Jump Starting Oct. 1

Increases To Range From 12-20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate and House approved the $4,700,000,000 emergency war tax bill today by overwhelming margins. The bill, which now goes to President Truman for certain approval, calls on millions of Americans to make financial sacrifices to combat communist aggression.

The Senate shouted its approval of the compromise bill, without a roll call. The House a few hours earlier had passed it 328 to 7. Not one dissenting vote was audible in the Senate on the voice vote there.

Effective October 1

The first impact of the measure will be felt by the public nine days from now, on October 1, when the government will begin taking one-fifth more taxes, after personal exemptions, out of every wage or salary. Increases for taxpayers will range from 12 to 20 per cent, bringing the enormous cost of the Korean war and the preparedness program home to every American family.

Even before this "first installment" or stopgap bill reached the White House, the House Ways and Means Committee called a meeting for tomorrow to chart procedures for a second tax increase bill a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax on corporations, intended to prevent war profiteering.

Bill Plugs Loopholes

That bill is to be acted upon when Congress returns after the November elections. The excess profits tax would be retroactive to Oct. 1 or July 1, 1950.

The two measures together may boost taxes by $12,000,000,000, to almost $50,000,000,000 a year—higher than any collections in World War II.

The "first installment" bill raises by almost $3,000,000,000 the income taxes of over 50,000,000 individuals, picks up $1,500,000,000 additional a year by increasing normal corporation tax rates, and gets other millions by plugging loopholes and making other tax law changes.

Congress Approves Recess Until Nov. 27

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Congress voted today to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27.

Both the Senate and the House passed a resolution providing for a vacation until after Thanksgiving—and the November elections.

The House arranged to come back for a brief session tomorrow, but the Senate hoped to wind up its business tonight.

Johnson Is Praised By Navy Secretary

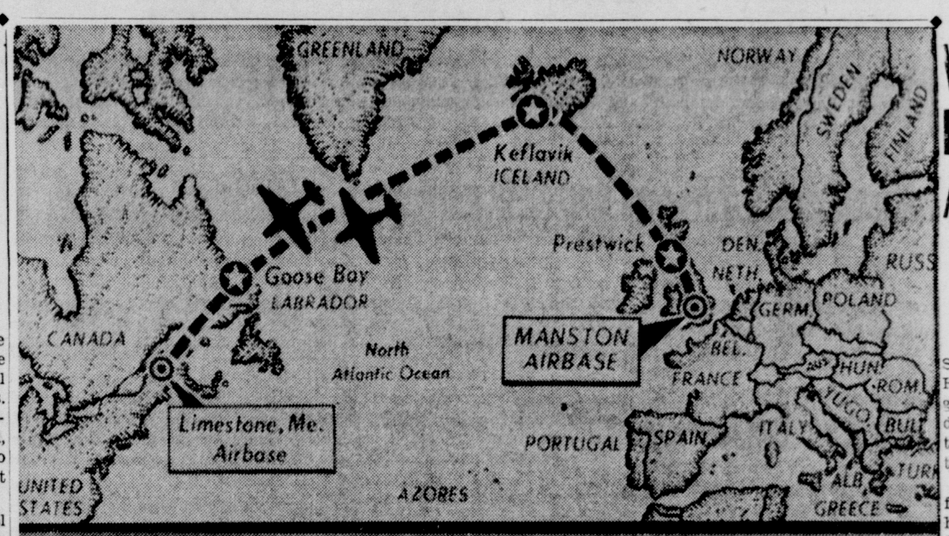
CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Matthews said tonight that the amphibious operations in Korea were made possible primarily by Louis Johnson.

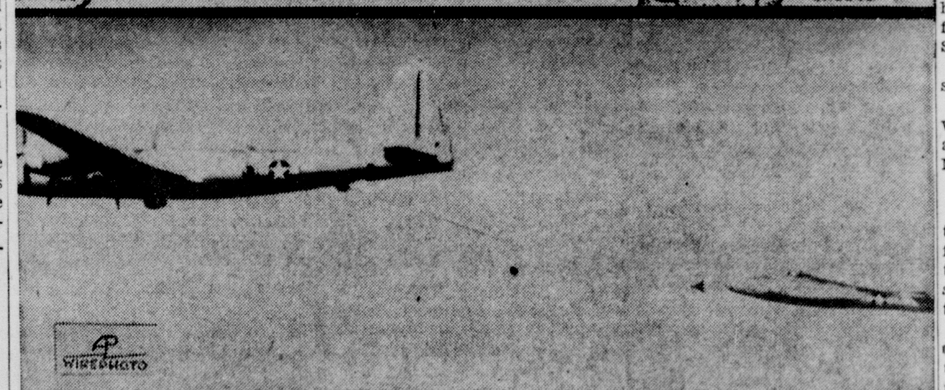
Johnson's resignation as Secretary of Defense was accepted by President Truman last week.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the National Consumer Finance Association, the Navy Secretary said that elimination of overlapping functions and jurisdictional disputes throughout the Defense Department provided the basis for teamwork which resulted in the Inchon landings.

Alcoa Ups Prices

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22 (AP) — Aluminum Company of America today announced an approximate 10 per cent increase in the basic prices of standard commerical aluminum pig and ingot.





Route Of Jets And How They Refueled

Map shows the route and refueling points (star symbols) of two jets which flew the Atlantic nonstop yesterday with one pilot being forced to bail out of his plane over Labrador. At bottom, a B-29 tanker plane with a fuel hose trailing behind it is about to make contact with a jet fighter in practicing the refueling operation used on yesterday's London-to-New York flight. In the operation, the jet pilot rams a small boom extending from his wing into the funnel-shaped nozzle at the end of the tanker's hose.

One Jet Completes Atlantic Flight; Pilot Of Other Bails Out Safely Over Labrador

LIMESTONE AIR FORCE BASE, Me., Sept. 22. (AP)—A single engine jet fighter plane, refueled as it flew, streaked in tonight from England on a history-making flight that proved too much for a companion plane.

Col. David C. Schilling raced his F-84 Thunderjet an average of 330 miles an hour in the world's first intercontinental non-stop jet flight. He spanned 3,300 miles in 10 hours and one minute.

His flight-mate, Lt. Col. William D. Ritchie, bailed out safely over Labrador. He was picked up in a rescue helicopter and taken to Goose Bay.

Schilling, husky Fort Leavenworth, Kan., World War Two ace, roared down on this Northern Maine B-36 bomber base at 6:02 p. m. (EST).

"The trip was fine," Schilling told newsmen. "I'm happy to have made it. I didn't feel tired until I landed."

Schilling said he didn't see Ritchie take to his parachute.

"I was flying higher than he was," he said. "And I had so much navigation work to do that I was busy all the time."

His plane was refueled in the air after the takeoff from Manston, England, 60 miles from London. Tanker planes were hovering in wait over Prestwick, Scotland; Keflavik, Iceland, and Goose Bay.

The Kansan wanted to take off again tonight for Mitchel Field, N. Y., his original destination, Limestone officers said. But he was persuaded to rest instead.

Also greeting the trail-blazer pilot was a telegram from Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff. It said: "Congratulations on having completed a hazardous task."

Col. Wiley said Ritchie ran out of fuel between Sandy Point and Northwest River, about 100 miles northeast of Goose Bay. Schilling said the weather was rough in that region.

Ritchie tried to glide into Goose Bay after his fuel gave out but "hit the silk" when he saw the plane wouldn't make it. The Pine Bluff, Ark., pilot told officers at Goose Bay he felt "fine."

Steel Trusts Broken

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 22 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France ordered today the breakup of Germany's six big steel trusts into small, independent companies.

This is the "Big Six" of the Ruhr—continental Europe's largest steel producing area which supplied Hitler's Third Reich with 90 per cent of its steel.

"Wanted: Farmer, age 38, wishes to meet woman around 30 who owns a tractor. Please enclose picture of tractor. Write box 19, care of this paper—."

Senate Cites 3 For Contempt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate tonight adopted resolutions citing former Communist Leader Earl Browder, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Philip Jaffe for contempt of Congress.

The citations grew out of the Senate investigation of the communist-in-government charges made by Republican Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

The three resolutions, adopted by voice vote in less than a minute, were recommended by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Sen. Tydings. That group investigated McCarthy's charges.

Browder, Field and Jeffe all refused to answer certain questions when the subcommittee called them as witnesses.

Big Three Discuss Integrated Defense

Attending the closed door session on the 37th floor of a Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tower were the American, British and French foreign and defense ministers, and high ranking advisors.

Russian Charge Against U. S. Will Get U.N. Hearing

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — Russia's charges of American aggression against China will get a full hearing in the United Nations General Assembly. The powerful 14-nation Steering Committee voted today to put the accusations on the Assembly agenda.

Only Nationalist China voted "no," contending that neither Russia nor the communist Peiping government has the right to decide whether aggression has taken place in China.

U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin voted in favor.

"We believe in fairness," Austin said. "Every complaint should have its hearing."

An American proposal to have the Assembly take over the explosive Formosan situation was sidetracked by the Chinese Nationalist delegate, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, who demanded that the committee wait until he receives instructions from his government.

These will probably arrive early next week. Chinese sources say Tsiang probably will be instructed to oppose putting the question on the agenda. He is expected to be joined by Russia.

Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government oppose U. N. discussion of Formosa since that island is its last stronghold and it does not want title obscured by debate in the world organization.

Russia is against inclusion because she does not want international opposition to balk possible occupation of Formosa by the Soviet-backed Peiping regime.

Watered-Down Ban On Economic Aid Is Included

House Provision Is Accepted By Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House today a $17,000,000,000 emergency defense bill with a watered-down ban on economic aid to countries shipping strategic goods behind the iron curtain.

The bill provides $11,736,000,000 for bolstering American defenses at home. It also includes $4,000,000,000 for arming other countries against Soviet aggression.

President Truman is expected to sign the bill promptly.

Final passage came on a voice vote as both houses rushed to start a recess that will last until late November.

House Provision Accepted

The Senate bowed to administration wishes and knocked out a flat ban on further economic help to any country sending the Russian bloc munitions or other goods that could be used for war-making.

Instead the senators accepted a milder House provision. This gives the National Security Council the power to shut off aid to countries whose trade with the Soviet bloc is regarded by the council as "contrary to the security interests of the United States."

The vast appropriations bill gives $3,166,000,000 to the Army, $3,734,000,000 to the Navy and $4,560,000,000 to the Air Force.

Funds For Atomic Research

It calls for $260,000,000 in funds for research on atomic weapons, including the hydrogen bomb.

Other major items include $598,637,000 for stockpiling strategic materials, $79,000,000 for stepping up "Voice of America" broadcasts, $20,000,000 for running Selective Service, and $30,000,000 for administering the recently passed economic controls law.

The bill boosts the federal budget for the current year above $50,000,000,000. It more than doubles the $14,000,000,000 defense appropriation voted earlier this session.

Confessed Spy Given 15 Years

GREENVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 22 (AP)—Self-confessed Soviet Spy Alfred Dean Slack received a 15-year prison sentence today for giving wartime secrets to Russia.

Slack pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a sample of RDX, a high explosive, from Holston Ordnance Works at nearby Kingsport, Tenn., and handing it and details of its manufacture to a Russian agent. He worked at the ordnance plant in 1943-44.

The government, through U. S. Attorney James M. Meek, had suggested a 10-year sentence for Slack. Meek said there were "extenuating circumstances" in Slack's favor.

Among these, he said, were the fact that on at least three occasions Slack had refused to supply information to Russian agents during World War II and did so only after he had been threatened with exposure as a spy himself.

Leathernecks Expand Hold On Outskirts

Yanks Seize Suwon, Gain North Of Taegu

TOKYO, Saturday, Sept.23 (AP)—U. S. Marines expanded their hold on Seoul's outskirts today and the red radio said the North Koreans beat off a tank-led attempt to enter the capital proper.

South of the city, U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen punched more than 20 miles and seized Suwon and its airfield. These troops blocked the main highway up which the reds might send any reinforcements from the old beachhead in Southeast Korea.

Through the northwest corner of that beachhead, U. S. First Cavalry Division troops reached Sangju on a breakthrough drive northwestward toward Seoul.

Rolling into Sangju on the second most important road between Taegu and Seoul, the First Cavalry troopers had wheeled 35 miles through crumbling Korean red lines in 35 hours.

Inside Seoul, the red defenders dug in for a street-by-street fight and lobbed mortar fire at marines on "You-Can-Have-It" hill overlooking the sprawling metropolis of 1,000,000.

Resistance Increasing

Enemy resistance was increasing. There was every evidence the reds have a planned defense for Seoul.

The reds' Pyongyang radio, which hitherto admitted only the Sept. 15 landing at Inchon, said today at 7 a. m. (5 p. m., EST Friday):

"Red troops defending Seoul repulsed tank-led and air-supported American troops which attempted to penetrate into the Korean capital."

Expansion of the Marine hold on the outskirts was reported in the first communique issued by the U. S. 10th Corps. It said marines on the northwest outskirts occupied high ground overlooking a suburb and other marines on the southwest side of the Han River cleared three-fourths of the town of Yongdungpo.

Associated Press Correspondent Bill Ross said "You-Can-Have-It" hill—so named because its rocky, barren slope is unattractive—puts the leathernecks within easy sight of downtown Seoul.

Yanks Under Artillery Fire

"But it will be some time before any marines get to what they can see," Ross added after visiting the crest and taking cover during red mortar fire.

Other American and Allied forces on the southeast front advanced up to eight miles, rapidly expanding their holdings against spotty North Korean resistance.

It was around Seoul that the fighting flared highest. American and South Korean marines driving on that red-held capital from the northwest came under artillery fire from the public park atop South Mountain, around which Seoul is built.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead, with the marines, reported an estimated 3,000 reds had honeycombed the 700-foot-high mountain with deep defense works.

Whitehead said the Seoul defense force was estimated at 10,000 men, parts of the North Korean 17th and 18th Divisions.

House Runs Over Foot

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 22 (AP)—Carlos Lee, Jr., 17, was treated at a hospital today for an injured foot. A house ran over it.

The youth, employed by a moving company, was helping move a house. The structure was mounted on a dolly, or moving vehicle, pulled by a truck when Lee inadvertently put his foot under the moving vehicle.

Wife Of Soldier Sentenced To Die Appeals To Truman

YORK, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP) — A young negro woman asked President Truman today to overrule a death sentence imposed on her soldier husband for refusing to obey an order in the Korean fighting.

Mrs. Kay Gilbert, 27, said her husband, First Lt. Leon A. Gilbert, wrote her that death sentence was imposed following a court-martial. She said he told her carrying out the order "would have led me and 12 other men to certain death."

Mrs. Gilbert said her husband had been under tremendous strain, adding "he took over the company after his commanding officer was injured. They had gone 13 days without food and water. Leon cracked up and disobeyed a command of the general.

The request for review of the court-martial was turned over to Rep. James F. Lind (D-Pa) who went to President Truman. A White House spokesman said the plea was referred to the Judge Advocate General of the Army.

The Judge Advocate's office said it had not yet received records on the Gilbert court-martial.

Gilbert, 32, enlisted in the Army in 1940, after he had worked as a waiter in this Southeastern Pennsylvania city of 60,000. He served with the 92nd Division in Italy and was honorably discharged in 1946. He was called up again as a reservist in 1947.

Dr. Bunche, Who Brought End To Conflict In Holy Land, Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, grandson of an American negro slave and United Nations mediator who brought an end to conflict in the Holy Land, has been awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1950.

As far as is known here, Dr. Bunche is the first negro ever to be awarded a Nobel prize in any field. Certainly, he is the first of his race to receive the peace prize. It will be presented to him Dec. 10.

Announcement of the award was made tonight by the Norwegian Nobel Committee, which never gives the reason for its choice. The prize this year amounts to 164,303 kroner (about $23,000).

At Lake Success, Dr. Bunche said he had received the news "with deep humility." He was busy at work as principal director in the trusteeship division of the United Nations.

DR. RALPH BUNCHE

"I, more than anyone, recognize the extent to which my peace efforts in the Near East flowed from the strength of the United Nations," he said.

Dr. Bunche, who succeeded Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden as the United Nations meditor in Palestine, after Bernadotte was assassinated in 1948, effected an armistice that ended the bitter clash between Jews and Arabs and threatened the entire Middle East soon after World War II.

The annual prizes are awarded from a trust establishment by the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896. The awards are made to those judged to have served humanity best during the past year in medicine, chemistry, physics, literature and the effort for peace.

Butler And Gunter Emerge Winners As Official Count Of Votes Nears Completion

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP)—With only a few official figures missing from the tabulations, John Marshall Butler emerged today as the winner of the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate and William A. Gunter with the Republican nomination for attorney general in last Monday's Maryland primaries.

Baltimore City and Baltimore County will not complete the job until sometime next week, possibly Tuesday.

Unless there are unusual developments, the official figures from Baltimore probably will not change much from those collected from all but two of the city's precincts last Monday night. The canvass figures have always followed the unofficial returns closely.

Baltimore County is a different matter. Less than half the returns from the 255 polling places there became available in the unofficial count in the Democratic races, and there were none at all from the Republican contests.

Butler Sure Of 78 Unit Votes

In the Republican Senate race, Butler, a Baltimore attorney, had collected 36 unit votes in the official canvass. With these added to the 42 of which he is assured when the count is complete in Baltimore, Butler had 78 unit votes, one more than necessary for the nomination.

In addition, he has a decisive margin on the basis of unofficial returns from Talbot County and stands to gain four more votes there.

His opponent, D. John Markey, a retired National Guard general from Walkersville, collected 30 unit votes on the basis of the canvass. The only other ones he seems sure of picking up are the three in St. Mary's.

These calculations do not take into consideration the seven votes in Baltimore County, where even unofficial returns were not available.

On the basis of the best available canvass and unofficial returns Markey held an edge in the popular vote, 32,192 to 30,379.

No Change In Governor Race

He has a decisive margin on the basis of unofficial returns in Talbot County, which would give him four more. He also may pick up the three in St. Mary's and the seven in Baltimore County.

His opponent, Helen Elizabeth Brown, Baltimore, had only 18 unit votes in the official canvass but was assured of 42 more when the Baltimore City figures become official.

The official canvass figures have made no difference so far in the bitter contest between Gov. Lane and George P. Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Immediate Selective Price Controls Are Requested By AFL

HOUSTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — The AFL asked President Truman today for immediate selective price controls, asserting "there is no painless way to stop inflation."

A committee report approved by the American Federation of Labor convention said "failure to stem an inflationary spiral will give the Kremlin a victory of the greatest magnitude."

The report advised Mr. Truman that freezing of wages would be unjust until wages are increased to what was called a parity with price levels at the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Voluntary agreements among labor unions, management and government were indorsed as the most effective means for solving manpower problems resulting from the international crisis.

The report on wages and prices said positive controls will be necessary to avoid inflation, the greatest danger of the nation's defense program.

Jap Volcano Erupts, Shattering Windows

TOKYO, Saturday, Sept. 23 (AP)—Mount Asama, 75 miles northwest of Tokyo, erupted violently at 4:37 a. m. today (2:47 p. m. EST Friday).

The Central Meteorological Observatory reported that windows were shattered and clocks were stopped at nearby Karuizava resort. No other damage was reported immediately.

Smoke rose more than 30,000 feet above the 8,340-foot peak. The volcano was described as rumbling ominously.

Earth shocks were felt as far away as Tokyo.

Bill Benefits CAA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — Senate passage sent to the White House tonight a bill to permit the Civil Aeronautics Administration to assist in testing models of jet-propelled and other advanced-type transport planes.

MASCOT GETS PROMOTION—Pfc. Alfred Rubino, Long Island City, N. Y., fixes sergeant's stripes on "Patches," young Korean mascot of Rubino's First Marine Division unit, at Inchon. Thousands Given Away By Recluse

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22 (AP) — Charles Babonet — termed an eccentric recluse when he died Aug. 7 at 66 — today was disclosed as a modern day St. Francis of Assisi instead.

St. Francis of Assisi was the medieval founder of the Franciscans who gave away all his riches to the poor and then preached and practiced works of charity.

And as more of the story of the "secret philanthropist in overalls" unfolded, it became easier to see why he remembered a family—with a $100,000 bequest—for giving him a day of kindness 33 years ago.

Babonet left an estate that may run over $500,000. But it appears that he may have given away an equal amount in his lifetime to charity—without making it known publicly.

The Rev. Patrick O'Dowd, pastor of St. Alphonsus Roman Catholic Church, said that Babonet was the "most charitable and religious man I have ever known."

Babonet lived in apparent poverty.

Father O'Dowd said Babonet gave $3,000 to the St. Alphonsus School so that poor children would have hot lunches. His Christmas baskets each year cost him thousands, the priest estimated.

Babonet's will was shoved under the door of a downtown Bank of America branch on Aug. 28.

Most unusual bequest was that to Pearl A. Tyson and family. They had picked up Babonet walking along the highway 33 years ago and gave him a happy day's outing at the beach.

Murray Doesn't Want Wages Tied To Costs

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22 (AP) — President Philip Murray of the CIO and the CIO United Steelworkers today rejected the principle of tying wages to the cost of living alone.

On the heels of the big steel union's demands for an unspecified pay increase, Murray told reporters at the conclusion of a USW executive board meeting:

"Our organization doesn't want wages tied to the cost of living alone.

"To accept that kind of wage formulation would consign the American worker to acceptance of a wage principle on which his standards would never improve."

RIU To Protest Retirement Case

The Railroad Industrial Union reported this week it will protect the action of the Western Maryland Railway in "pulling a 74-year-old engineer of this city out of service because of his age."

Elmer E. D. Davis, RIU president, said the action was taken Wednesday against C. L. Croker, this city an engineer employed at Knobmount yards.

He said the RIU will protest the action on grounds that the Federal retirement act sets no age limit for retirement.

Mr. Truman sent a 5,500-word message roundly denouncing the legislation as "ineffective and unworkable," and he urged Congress:

"Let us not, in cowering and foolish fear, throw away the ideals which are the fundamental basis for our free society."

He said the communist registration requirement could turn out to be "the greatest danger to freedom of speech, press and assembly since the alien and sedition laws of 1798."

Mr. Truman said the communist registration provision was "about as practical as requiring thieves to register with the sheriff" and declared it would take from two to four years for the courts to dispose of cases brought to prosecution under the act.

Red Moves In Berlin Called Deliberate Plot

BERLIN, Sept. 22 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said today the revival of harassing tactics by the communists and Russians in Berlin this week was a deliberate plot.

It had two aims, the American commandants asserted in an interview:

1. Shake the confidence of the West German.

2. Steam up the East Germans with a false air of emergency to get out the vote for the Russian zone Oct. 15 elections.

Czechs Expel AP Correspondent

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 22 (AP)—Czechoslovak authorities today ordered William Oatis, chief of the Prague bureau of the Associated Press, to leave the country by Sept. 30.

Oatis is the third AP correspondent and the seventh newsman from the western world to be expelled from Czechoslovakia this year. The charge against the other AP men was "unobjective reporting," but the government declined to specify this time.

Bedrich Runge, deputy director of the Foreign Ministry's press department, told Oatis his three-months foreign correspondent's accreditation will not be renewed when it expires next week.

The Old Razzle-Dazzle

Huge four-engined transport planes are landing only minutes apart on the newly won Kimpo Airfield, on the north flank of the new Inchon beachhead. It begins to appear that we have some of our timing back, some of the old teamwork that was devastatingly successful in the late stages of the war in the Pacific.

Do not make the mistake of counting a victory before it is achieved. But the average American, reading accounts of Marines holding the approaches to the Kimpo Airfield while Air Force planes land there and Army troops hold the flanks, suddenly realizes that here is real unification at work. His imagination is fired when he is told that ships, planes and men were gathered from all parts of the world to make the Inchon end run successful.

He is thrilled to see the high command rolling with the punches, using every man and every weapon to best advantage. What pleases him most is to see the recently fumbling, quarrelsome U. S. military machine clicking off the plays in effortless style.

It isn't all blue sky. The lion's share of this country's military might is committed to cleaning up a third rate opponent who nearly had us down. There is an enormous amount of work to be done, and we have hardly started. But it appears that we have ironed out a lot of the bugs and that the old razzle dazzle hasn't been forgotten entirely.

Rumors That Feed Hope

Unnamed military experts at Washington are quoted by a news service as believing that reports of peace overtures by the North Korean communists are premature—though the experts see the position of the red armies as virtually hopeless.

Laymen are at liberty to take either view, or neither. But whether these persistent rumors are premature or logical, the opinions of the experts nourish the hope that the war is nearing an end—unless communist China or Russia decides to intervene directly.

The possibility continues to exist, although apparently remotely, that the North Koreans may succeed in concentrating around Seoul and walling in the American expeditionary force there. The plan has been well conceived and brilliantly begun, but no one can be absolutely sure that it will quickly succeed. Always the fog of war must be taken into account.

Still, and even though there may be no real basis for them, rumors of peace feelers sound good to American ears. They confirm that the outcome of the fighting is now taken for granted, even if victory may be deferred. When the North Koreans are convinced they cannot win, the end will not be far away.

MacArthur Came To Stay

A GI who weathered the Anzio beachhead was heard to say that one of his worst moments came when he watched the fleet of assorted ships and craft that brought him and his buddies there sail over the horizon. He said he knew they would be back, but he still felt terribly alone.

Beachhead veterans are well aware that there is little time left over during the initial period of an assault for worry. But the wise veteran always has his eye open for signs that show the beachhead is secure. His best clue is the type of supplies unloaded.

There must have been considerable whooping and hollering the other day around the docks at Inchon, the newest name to be added to a long list of beaches hit and won since 1942. For amid the steady stream of supplies being shuttled ashore was a set of office furniture. Who for? Why, Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He's coming in to stay, you know.

It is easly understandable that from that point on there was little fretting about the status of the battle.

Socialism As Usual

In Britain, as in the United States, politics rarely adjourns. Certainly politics is in session there right now, despite the Korean war and its manifold implications. The proof is readily found in the Labor government's decision to go ahead with the nationalization of the steel industry.

This it can do, of course. Legislation authorizing this step is already on the books. But the government had been singing very low on this subject since last spring's election, which it won by a perilously slim margin. Opponents had assumed that it would continue this policy in the present critical situation.

The reversal took them by surprise and some Conservatives are still rubbing their eyes. They had not seen an about-face as good politics for Prime Minister Attlee.

But to Britons want socialism as usual in this emergency? That is the issue, if the Conservatives can make them see it.

Higher Auto Prices

Predictions are numerous that prices of all makes of automobiles will be boosted before the year's end. Several manufacturers have announced increases, and it is hardly likely they would have done so unless they had reason to believe the entire industry would be forced to follow. Wages continue to rise, and so do costs of all materials that enter into an automobile.

Automobiles now cost twice as much as they did 10 years ago, and there is nothing to indicate that the inflationary spiral in the motor car industry has lost speed. Nothing is heard today of the "poor man's car," and apparently the public has the money to buy vehicles as fast as they roll off the assembly lines. With production this year setting a new record, most dealers continue to have waiting lists of buyers.

Who Cares For Money

A new use for money has been found. A piggy bank weighted with $500 in bills and silver was used as a doorstop by a homemaker in a Western city while she dropped in next door for a chat. When she returned, it was gone.

The carelessness of people with money is one of the amazing things in the world. So many save up considerable sums, and then leave them stuffed in a mattress or inside a desk, or in any other place where a thief would naturally look first.

Banks evidently still have a big job to do in the way of popularizing their services. This is one matter in which the individual's carefully cultivated sales resistance may cost him money.

Peculiar Hernias

THE DIAPHRAGM is a dome-shaped sheath of muscle that separates the thorax from the abdominal cavity. It is not solid inasmuch as there are openings through which pass blood vessels, nerves, and even the tube that leads from the mouth to the stomach (esophagus). These apertures are necessary but they make the diaphragm vulnerable to accidents and other forms of trauma.

Should the opening that surrounds the esophagus, for example, become relaxed or torn, it is easy to see mow the stomach or intestine may protrude into the chest cavity (hiatus hernia). The former is sometimes referred to as an "upside down stomach." Occasionally the hole through the diaphragm is so large that virtually all of the intestinal contents encroach upon the lungs and heart. This is one cause of difficulty in breathing, especially in newborn infants. These children come into the world with a defective diaphragm and unless the disorrer is recognized promptly and corrected surgically death may ensue.

Although riatus hernia may be congenital in origin, it is more commonly acquired after birth. Individuals over 40 are most susceptible and women are favored two to one. The obese are more prone to the disease than the lean. Increased abdominal pressure against an already weakened diaphragm probably plays a major role and it is no wonder so many victims volunteer the information that the hernia followed abdominal strain from prolonged coughing, vomiting, or pregnancy.

Some men and women go through life unaware that a hiatus hernia is present; others complain of indigestion, gas, belching, regurgitation, pressure over the upper abdomen or difficulty in swallowing. Symptoms may appear only after meals because it is at this time that the stomach is distended and crowds the neighboring organs. On the other hand, most patients are uncomfortable only when lying down because, in the recumbent position, the stomach and colon do not have gravity to contend with and these organs have no trouble sneaking through the gap into the chest cavity. Standing up or vomiting often will bring relief.

Now and then pain develops beneath the breastbone, simulating angina, and the "old pump" may be blamed, especially if an electrocardiogram shows abnormalities. These changes in the tracing are due to the crowding of the distended intestinal tract against the heart. When the stomach is empty, however, or the individual is standing or sitting quietly in a chair, the electrocardiogram usually is normal.

Treatment depends upon the severity of the condition and the amount of discomfort that exists. Those who are not bothered except in a mild way should forget the abnormality. When distress is moderate, eating smaller meals at more frequent intervals is advised. Stooping and lifting heavy weights should be avoided and it is wise to lie down after meals and wear a tight abdominal support or girdle routinely. Medicines that tend to relax the stomach muscles also are helpful. Surgery is recommended when discomfort is becoming progressively worse or X-rays reveal that the hernia is increasing in size. Operation involves drawing the stomach or intentines into the abdominal cavity and suturing the opening in the diaphragm.

BRINGING HIS WIFE ON BOARD

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

TV Audience Rates Sir Gladwyn Jebb With Hopalong Cassidy; British Press Frowns On American Enthusiasm For British U. N. Hero

Says DREW PEARSON

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chairman of the U. N. Security Council.)

WASHINGTON—After a month of watching sour-puss Soviet delegate Malik rant, rave and stymie the U. N. Security Council, the American television-viewing public is getting a great kick out of a gentleman who is exactly the opposite—Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief of the British U. N. Delegation and now chairman of the Security Council.

Sir Gladyn's firmness in putting Malik in his place, his precise, masterful manner and his obvious friendship for the U.S.A. has done more to improve British-American relations than anything since V-E Day.

Were it not for television the American public could not have received the same visual proof of Jebb's operation. As a result they rate him along with Joe DiMaggio and Hopalong Cassidy—at least in the New York metropolitan area.

Interesting thing is that this quite sincere tribute is not particularly appreciated by more stuffy British diplomats, nor by some of the British press. Harold Nicholson, for instance, writes in the London Sunday Observer:

"The frenzied publicity which surrounds Lake Success has imposed upon Sir Gladwyn the odious prominence of a film or baseball star... The circus atmosphere encompassing these momentous deliberations must be galling to a man of his patrician temper."

What the British press apparently does not realize is that the United Nations needed something like this, and needed it badly. As far as the American people were concerned, the U. N. was a dead duck just before Korea. Its quick action in Korea changed this, however, on top of which along came comrade Malik.

Every good drama needs a villain, and Malik obligingly volunteered to play that part. No one from Broadway or Hollywood could have played it any better. He stepped right up to the footlights, though he didn't have to get into the act at all, and gave his television audience all the thrills of Hairbreadth Harry and the Perils of Pauline.

Result: Television users all over the eastern part of the U.S.A. were glued to their sets every afternoon that Malik was acting.

Now comes Sir Gladwyn, the debonair and popular hero, the man who rescues the U. N. from the clutch of comrade Malik. No wonder he has become like Hopalong Cassidy or Joe DiMaggio.

Patrician Temper

Sir Gladwyn doesn't seem to mind the so-called circus atmosphere of Lake Success, despite the British press and despite the fact that he was reared as a career diplomat and prefers a life of easy tempo and pleasant indulgence. He likes Italian cooking, French wines, British country-house conversation, and, for physical exercise, a gentlemanly game of croquet.

The thing that has made him "Jebb-propelled" in America, however, is his burning desire to save the United Nations from Soviet strangulation.

Sir Gladwyn happens to be one of the U. N. founding fathers. In fact, it was Jebb, in a facetious moment at Yalta, when the Big Three couldn't agree on a date for the San Francisco Conference, who suggested April 25th—and it was agreed.

The reason: April 25th is his birthday.

Born April 25, 1900, Jebb has seen 50 years of tumultuous times, including two world wars. But he does not think another is inevitable. He recalls that in the late thirties, he felt sure war would come. But now, he feels the Soviets are not ready, and never will get to the point of readiness so long as the Western world continues its rapid movement toward joint defense.

And he seems to be aware that the television cameras play their part in this effert. When the bright lights go up, in the council chamber at Lake Success, Jebb winces inwardly and wonders if some members will now aske to speak who had no intention of speaking.

But outwardly, he shows no sign of displeasure at a modern medium which is accomplishing what the European powers failed to accomplish in the days of the League of nations—awakening the American public to its role in international affairs.

As for his being a star of American television, Jebb reflects with a wry smile that, if the debate switched from Korea to Ireland, his popularity might vanish over night.

Disapproving Republicans

As the Senate Armed Services Committee listened to Gen. George Marshall answer Sen. William Jenner's questions on his fitness to be secretary of defense, GOP Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon bustled in late. Only vacant seat on the Republican side was next to Jenner. Morse looked at the seat, then at Jenner. With an obvious look of distaste, he moved on to a vacant seat on the Democrat side.

Later in the hearing, as Senator Jenner plied Marshall with unfair questions, aristocratic Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, also a Republican, stuttered in protest. Saltonstall's long, lean face was red with anger, his cultured Back Bay voice shook with indignation.

"I do not know how anyone, in self-respect, can ask these questions," he said.

Diplomatic Pouch

Nelson Rockefeller is under consideration to be American ambassador to the Vatican . . . . U. S. Ambassador Lew Douglas has given blunt notice to the British to stop selling huge quantities of tin and rubber to the Russians . . . . The American ambassador to Yugoslavia has cabled that the Russians are making dangerous progress in their attempts to stir up a revolution against Tito . . . . A disastrous 40 per cent crop failure is what threatens Tito's hold on Yugoslavia. . . . The U. S. military mission in Iran reports that the Russians now have two full airborne armies with complete battle equipment concentrated on the Iranian border.

Merry-Go-Round

The Army handed out shiny, new eagles to 671 lieutenant colonels last week. Of these, however, four out of five went to Regular Army officers—though twice as many reserves were eligible for promotion. . . . The small, nonsubsidized airlines are flying 44 per cent of the Korean airlift. These are the same airlines that the Civil Aeronautics Board has been kicking around and squeezing out of business. . . . Don't breathe a word of this to General MacArthur, but Congressman Dingell, who demanded beer for G. I.'s in Korea, is so allergic he can't drink more than one glass of beer himself.

Foreign Policy Should Be A Campaign Issue

By MARK SULLIVAN

WITH only six weeks left of the Congressional campaign, there is still discussion about whether and to what extent foreign relations should be an issue. Spokesmen in behalf of the Administration say it should not. Republican spokesmen, while stating carefully that the party will support our war effort "to the hilt," declared that the Administration's foreign policy will be discussed in the campaign.

On this as on many public matters there is light in history, in this case very recent history. During the war Republicans — in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in Congress as a whole, and during elections—followed a non-partisan policy, a policy of keeping foreign relations out of domestic politics. After the war this attitude was continued in Congress and in large part was continued into the Presidential campaign of 1948, between candidates Truman and Dewey. Mr. Dewey supported the Administration policy of giving aid to European countries to help them resist communism on that continent. About the Administration's policy toward China however, Mr. Dewey was critical. In a campaign speech he said: "Our government watches . . . China . . . rapidly being overrun . . . "We must 'bring an end to the tragic neglect of . . . China."

That mention by Mr. Dewey of the Truman administration's policy about China was rather allusory; he did not press it; the policy was not made an issue in the campaign. Had it been an issue, had the country been fully informed about what the Administration was doing, much subsequent grief might have been averted, including what is going on in Korea today.

Country Lacked Information

The information existed, what the country lacked was awareness of it, such as could have been brought about by emphasis on it in the 1948 campaign. Preceding the Truman administration, President Roosevelt in February, 1945 at Yalta had made a secret agreement with Stalin by which Russia was promised that after Japan should be conquered Russia would be given Manchuria, a part of China which Japan had seized. This, with other advantages given to Russia in the Yalta agreement, gave leverage and momentum to the Russian communist drive to overcome China.

This advantage to Russian communism was of course a corresponding and terrible disadvantage to the Nationalist government of China under Chiang Kai-Shek, a practically fatal handicap to its resistance to communism. The handicap was increased by the policy the Truman administration adopted toward Chiang and the Nationalist government; the Administration declared that he should enter into a coalition government with the communists, and when he did not, suspended military and other aid we had been giving him during the war.

Had all this been made plain during the Presidential campaign of 1948 or otherwise, it would have been deeply offensive to the American people, and many of them would have grasped what the experts knew, the future military consequences which the fall of China to Russian communism would have for us, consequences of which the beginning is now actual in Korea.

Appeal Successful

With the immunity President Truman had from defense of his China policy in the 1948 campaign, he was free to focus on domestic issues, to appeal to the self-interest of groups. This he flagrantly did. To labor and to farmers he said, in the speech in which he accepted the nomination for President, that if they did not support him they would be "the most ungrateful people in the world." The appeal was especially successful in the case of farmers. To them Mr. Truman promised, in adidtion to existing favors by government, a new one, government provision of storage facilities for crops. By this narrow class and sectional appeal Mr. Truman carried six Mid-Western states which had formerly been strongly Republican, and which in 1948 provided the margin of electoral votes by which he won. Had the Administration's China policy been an issue in the 1948 campaign, had it been made plain and paramount to the voters by Republican criticism of it and defense thereby forced upon the Administration, it is possible the farmers, made aware of this great national issue, would not have subordinated it to a group self-interest.

It is not necessarily material whether making the Administration China policy an issue in the 1948 campaign would have changed the outcome. The emphasis on the importance of it and the public enlightment about it would have been vitally useful, even after the Russian communist drive to overrun China had reached the stage at which it was in 1948. It might have averted the Administration's later and especially damaging actions detrimental to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

By hindsight it is evident that no service was done the country by the Republicans' abstention from making any aspect of foreign policy an issue in the 1948 campaign. The hindsight may provide foresight in the present campaign.

Truman's Message May Be Heard Again In 1952

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — Maybe up in Columbia University there's a famous general who is doing a bit of chuckling these days—and maybe, if he hasn't any political ambitions, he just hasn't paid any attention to the goings-on in Washington of late.

But the observers who, in surveying the political scene, must cast a look ahead at 1952's presidential campaign, have paid a good deal of attention to a certain statement by President Truman which may have a world of meaning when the big contest opens about 18 months hence.

For, in recommending General Marshall to be Secretary of Defense, Mr. Truman has unwittingly demolished perhaps the strongest argument that would have been used against General Eisenhower. It is the argument that the President of the Commander-in-chief should not be a military man but always should be a civilian.

There have been military heroes who have become President of the United States but in the last half century or more the career military man—the officer who had spent his whole life in the military service — did not become chief executive. The last who tried for it was the late General Leonard Wood, who was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920. There was talk for a while after World War I of nominating the late General Pershing, but it never got beyond the talk stage.

Eisenhower Most Discussed

General Eisenhower's name has been more discussed in political circles than that of any other military man in recent years. He might have been nominated by either party in 1948 if he had given the word. He has not indicated that he would or would not accept a nomination in 1952, and it has been taken for granted that, if he did, he would be a nominee on the Republican.

The objection to General Eisenhower which has been heard most often is that a military man should not hold the high office of President. This sort of comment usually emanates from labor-union leaders and "liberals." But in 1948 when the convention to ditch President Truman at the Democratic National Convention was in full swing, James Roosevelt and the leaders of the big labor unions and the liberals were striving for an Eisenhower-Douglas ticket. When the Republicans were thinking about nominating the General, some rumblings were heard about losing the civilian viewpoint in the White House.

It may develop, too, that the followers of Taft and Dewey and the other candidates on the Republican side may go back to the Congressional Record and read what some of the Republican senators said about selecting a military man to head the defense establishment. They might feel that the argument they made would apply to a Commander-in-Chief, too.

Paraphrased Message

The year 1952, however, may be a momentous one in world history. If the impressions conveyed by leaders in Congress and in the executive branch of the government that a showdown with Russia may come in 1952 prove correct, it may be that one party or the other will be urging the nomination of General Eisenhower. Maybe on that occasion one or the other of the parties will look up Mr. Truman's message to Congress of last week and paraphrase it slightly so it might read as follows:

"We are firm believers in the general principle that our government should be headed by a civilian. However, in view of the present critical circumstances and of General Eisenhower's unusual qualifications, we believe that the national interest will be served by making an exception in this case."

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The French Indo-Chinese

AMONG the races of Asia, those who constitute French Indo-China are among the oldest and the least known. There are the Cambodians, the Annamites, the Tonkinese, the Laos, and the descendants of the basic Khmers from whom some of the others descend. There has been an infiltration of Chinese, Hindus, and Siamese, but they have not formed distinct groups in the population.

The civilization of the Khmers goes back beyond the knowledge of history. The amazing remains of temples and other buildings at Angkor, the capital city of the Khmers, bespeak a culture beyond anything that exists in French Indo-China today. The Khmers, who probably came from India, were a highly artistic people. They reached their height as a nation in the 11th Century and by the 14th had practically ceased to exist as a political power.

About 80 per cent of the people of French Indo-China are Annamites, who are affiliated to Chinese culture, their country having long been under Chinese control. Most of these people are Buddhists, although there are some Confucians and Christians.

Since the middle of the 19th Century, what is called Indo-China came under the colonial power of France, which did not do much to develop their resources. Because of the closeness of this area to parts of China, France also leased an island from China called Kwangchown and developed a sphere of influence in Yunnan. In fact, a railroad was built by the French connecting Yunnanfu, the capital of that province, with Haiphong, a port in the Gulf of Tonkin.

In the years when I lived in China, this was a route for the illicit trade in opium and arms. Yunnan and Kweichow provinces in China were large producers of illegal opium. Also, the various revolutionary, feudal and bandit groups in China were able to move arms into the country by this means.

The French have never been popular either in French Indo-China or in China. They did very little for the people. As a matter of fact, they did little for themselves, failing adequately to develop the important natural resources of French Indo-China.

During World War II, the Japanese had no trouble taking these areas and holding them. The French simply caved in. After the war was over, the future of French Indo-China became very complicated because of the presence of a powerful communist organization, headed by Ho Chi-Minh, who had been a member of the communist apparatus in China in the 1920's. Ho had been trained in Russia and France, is a man of learning and capacity. He suffers from tuberculosis.

His government is called Viet Minh.

The French have placed at the head of their government, the emperor Bao Dai, a member of the ruling family, educated in France and in the past not always regarded as a serious person. This government is called Viet Nam and generally follows the governmental structure of France.

The Bao Dai regime is recognized by the United States and we accord it financial aid. Dean Acheson on May 8 said concerning this:

". . . The United States Government, convinced that neither national independence nor democratic evolution exist in any area dominated by Soviet imperialism, considers the situation to be such as to warrant its according economic aid and military equipment to the associated states of Indo-China and to France in order to assist them in restoring stability and permitting these states to pursue their peaceful and democratic development."

The communists have maintained a constant civil war in French Indo-China. By infiltrating Cambodia, they have managed to smuggle arms from Thailand (Siam). This fight is now developing into a war, supported by Soviet China. The communist movement in this area must be taken seriously because of the unpopularity of the French and of the Bao Dai regime.

On February 1, Dean Acheson said:

"In recognition of the Kremlin of Ho Chi-Minh's communist movement in Indo-China comes as a surprise. The Soviet acknowledgement of this movement should remove any illusions as to the 'Nationalist' nature of Ho Chi-Minh's aims and reveals Ho in his true colors as the mortal enemy of native independence in Indo-China "

It is difficult to understand why our Secretary of State should have been so surprised. After all, the communist movement in French Indo-China is 30 years old.

Remodeling Is Progressing

Progress is being made in the modernization work at the Commercial Bank, the Liberty Trust Company, and Burton's Inc.

Also scheduled to reopen its Baltimore Street branch is the O.P.O. Clothing Store of the A.B. Joffe Company, New York.

The banking room has been doubled and a burglar proof vault installed together with a fireproof vault for records, at the Commercial Savings Bank.

The addition in the area, on the Frederick Street side, has been finished with marble of the same variety as was in the original bank.

Liberty Trust's project will be finished within the next three months, according to a bank official.

A burglar proof vault has been built, and the installment loan department is being moved to the rear of the present banking room.

The bookkeeping and clerical department will be housed in new quarters nearing completion on the second floor.

Burton's has three selling levels, all in modern design. In the front, or mezzanine, will be men's furnishings the lower level rear, men's clothes, and upper level, rear, children's clothing.

The second floor will be used for alterations and stockroom.

Diesel Power To Be Used On B. & O. Liner

Diesel-electric locomotives will be used in the future on the B. and O. Railroad's "Metropolitan Special," which runs between Washington and St. Louis, according to an announcement yesterday.

Use of Diesel locomotives on the passenger train will cut a big chunk out of the schedules both east and westbound.

The train will speed up its schedule by one hour and 15 minutes on the trip from Washington to St. Louis and by 39 minutes on the eastbound return trip.

The Metropolitan Special goes through Cumberland at 8:43 p. m. headed east and at 11:57 a. m. on the westbound trip. These times will change Sunday when Daylight Saving Time ends here.

B. & O. Trains Delayed Due To Derailment

The main line between Cumberland and Pittsburgh was blocked yesterday when the rear end of a fast B. and O. Railroad freight was derailed near Ohiopyle, Pa.

All of the crack passenger trains from the west were more than two hours late arriving here yesterday morning and traffic was rerouted over the Western Maryland tracks.

The Capital Limited, Columbian, Ambassador and Shenandoah were all late arriving.

Railroad officials said a broken wheel caused the wreck. No one was hurt, according to reports from the scene.

$3,000 Donated To Chest By County

A donation of $3,000 to the Cumberland Community Chest drive has been made by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

The money will be paid next August from the levy of 1951-52. The same formula was used last year for the last Chest drive, with the county's $3,000 pledge being paid August of this year.

More Giving Needed In Chest Campaign

Statistics are helping to plan this year's Community Chest campaign, according to George M. Martin, chairman of the Classified Section of the organization.

The number of contributors to the the Cumberland Chest has varied between 7,000 to 11,000, the latter number during the war years when the Chest was a part of the War Fund Campaigns.

Employe giving, struck the fancy of Martin for it is with this group that he is primarily concerned as head of the Classified Section. Community Chests and Councils, Inc., gathers data from Community Chests throughout the United States and summarizes much information. Last year, employes in Chest cities the size of Cumberland gave 32 per cent of the total amount raised; Cumberland was below this total, standing at the 25 per cent mark.

Raising the amount of employes' contributions to the Chest by 7 per cent would increase the amount given $5,899.25. Martin observed that this normal increase would just about fill the bill this year. The Chest has a goal of $3,519 larger than the amount raised last year and in addition, there will be losses through deaths and removals from the city amounting to about $1,500.

"We need to translate the general idea of the Chest to the specific help that is given some family or individual," stated Martin, as he put his slide rule away. "Our problems this year will be to add interest in every group and soon we will surpass the national averages for communities of this size."

Hunting Season Again Poses Problems For Motorists

"Three problems, directly affecting motorists, always come with the hunting season," said Charles F. Pratt, supervisor of touring services, D. C. division, American Automobile Association.

"They are: checking with State laws and regulations regarding the transport of rifles and shotguns in automobiles; resisting the temptation to bang away at highway directional signs and markers; and the safe handling of firearms while on a hunting trip, including the knowledge that virtually all of the States forbid firing from the window of a car."

Expert marksmen with a flair for parading their talents, the A. A. A. club executive explained, annually ruin tens of thousands of dollars worth of more-or-less permanent signs erected to guide motorists or to warn them of dangerous curves or intersections in the highways.

"The loss of these signs comes from teen-agers who hunt souvenirs and from adults," he said, "who cannot resist the temptation to make shooting gallery targets out of expensive wooden, sheet metal or porcelain-coated road signs. This form of vandalism is, however, being met in a number of States with the imposition of heavy penalties where convictions are secured against persons who ruin, or deface markers and directional signs.

"Check with State authorities or your automobile club for information regarding carrying firearms during the hunting season. When legal requirements have been met, including your hunting licence, then take the precautions every hunter should take who goes into the woods:

"Treat every gun as though it were loaded, when you pick it up, 'break it' to make sure. Never point a gun at anything you are not willing to kill.

"Don't put it in your car, or approach a car in which people are seated, unless your gun is "broken," or unloaded, and pointing downward. Never keep a loaded gun in the house or in your garage. And never fire at game if any person is in the line of fire."

Keyser Guard Battery Leaves For Active Duty

Crowds Give Big Send-Off To Unit

KEYSER, W. Va.—Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons turned out in Keyser yesterday to see "Keyser's Own" Battery C, 201st Field Artiller, W. Va. National Guard leave for active military duty.

With the Boyce-Houser Post American Legion band heading the procession, the some 80 Guardsmen marched from the armory to the B. and O. Station, an hour before the scheduled time for arrival of the troop train from the west.

It was a solemn crowd that stood on the sidewalks and went to the railroad station to stand with the boys as they waited for their train. The guard special was late arriving and families and friends had time to talk with the guardsmen until the train arrived.

There was no embarrassment as tears flowed and even men were unashamed to be seen with wet eyes. The departure of the guard unit brought closer to home the thought that the country is in a war in a far off land.

Not until after the train left the station did the crowd move slowly homeward. There was no cheering as the "boys" left. It was a solemn occasion that ended with the slow moving crowd leaving the station about 3 p. m. after the guardsmen left for Fort Benning, Ga.

He is a brother of Jimmy Thompson, who is also being held on a charge of breaking and entering the Lambert's Clothing Store and the theft of $150 worth of clothing and jewelry, which has recovered, authorities said.

C & P Drivers

number of feet traveled before the brake is applied—that's the driver's reaction distance. His braking distance is from the second mark to the front of the vehicle. The total of these two distances is the number of feet required to stop.

According to the C. and P., the driving tests are being made to impress on all drivers that the average distance needed to bring a vehicle to a stop is greater than the average motorist usually realizes. To impress this fact on each of its drivers, the company has each man to be tested first make an estimate of stopping distance which he later compares with his actual results. Usually the estimate given is somewhat less than the 37 to 39 feet required. Company safety people also pointed out that 40 miles per hour—double the test speed—requires a stopping distance of not twice as long but four times as great.

A final surprising fact developed by the tests is that heavy company trucks can be stopped about as quickly as the light vehicle. This is explained by the larger and more powerful brakes and the greater road traction of the heavy dual tires.

About 80 per cent of the 55 drivers of the Cumberland area have taken the test and the others will be given an opportunity next week.

Officials said the safety expert conducting the tests here reports most of the drivers have been able to stop their vehicles within the 37 to 39 feet normal range.

Officials said the demonstrations are being made to let drives learn for themselves just how far a vehicle will travel after they decide to stop.

Campers Stage 2nd Half Rally For 32-21 Win

Spencer Scores Two TDs, Sisk's Passes Net Pair 6-Pointers

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 22 — Allegany High School staged a garrison finish tonight to defeat Somerset High School's Golden Eagles by the score of 32—21 in the eighth game of their annual series.

The victory was the Maryland's second straight of the 1950 campaign and their 6th against two losses in the Somerset series.

Somerset held a 21—13 advantage at intermission but was played off its feet and blanked in the third and final periods by an inspired visiting aggregation.

AHS pulled up within a point of the Eagles early in the third period by marching 78 yards to a touchdown. "Jeep" Spencer smashed over from 7 yards out and Widdows booted the extra point.

The Campers scored twice in the final period on 64 and 56 yard marches. Spencer circled right end for 26 yards and the td that put Cumberland ahead 26-21 while Ronnie Sisk raced over from the 11-yard mark for the final six-pointer of mark for the final siv-pointer of Allegany scored twice in the first half. Sisk passed to Eirich for the initial score on a play that covered 14 yards. Sisk's pass to Hauger was good for 30 yards and the second score which culminated a 45-yard drive.

Somerset racked up one touchdown in the opening period and two in the second quarter.

Darrigo, fullback, smashed over from the 6 inch line for the first six-pointer, Don Rosbaugh galloped 54 yards on an end around play to place the ball on the three and Gartrelle took it over from there for the Eagles' second score. Somerset moved the ball 66 yards for its final tally. Gartrelle dashed through right guard for 55 yards to the 11 and then passed to Coddington in the end zone for the score.

The Campers reeled off 18 first downs to six for Somerset and rolled up a total of 320 yards, including 54 on three passes in eight tries. Ten of the Marylanders' first downs came in the second half when Somerset was getting one of its six. The visitors gained 208 of their 320 yards in the second half. Oliver's 134 Leads Tourney

Porky Gets 10-Under 62 At Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver, the good-natured round man from Seattle, Wash., trimmed the Milburn Country Club course in 10 strokes under par, a 62, to take the 36-hole lead in the $15,000 Kansas City Open Golf Tournament today with a total of 134.

Playing near-perfect golf from tee to green on the 6,645 yard par 72 layout, Oliver was out in 30, six strokes under par, and came in with a four-under 32.

At that, Oliver was only one stroke ahead of little Jack Burke, Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who had a 69 and a mid-tournament total of 135.

Oliver was happy over his game today because "it proves to me that I'm playing my best golf."

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., and Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N. Y., each shot 67s and shared the 138 bracket with Skip Alexander, Knoxville, Tenn., who had a 70 today.

The score of 150 was the qualifying limit for the third round of 64 shooters.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was in the running with a 70 and 142. Cary Middlecoff, former U. S. Open champion from Memphis, Tenn., and Ormand Beach, Fla., shot his second 73 and was well off the pace.

Discontinue Relays

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP) — The Illinois Tech relays, described as the nation's largest collegiate indoor track meet, will be discontinued.

Athletic Director Bernard Weissman said the meet, held at the University of Chicago field house each spring, was abandoned because it had become "administratively impossible to properly conduct."

Romney drove 51 yards in seven plays for its first score, Petry going over from the 4. Deskins recovered Bush's fumble on the Charles Town 43 and in five plays the Pioneers had another td. The drive was sparked by a 26-yard run around left end by Baird and was climaxed by Heavener's 11-yard off tackle smash.

60,000 To See Yanks, Boston Tangle Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP) — A near-capacity crowd of more than 60,000 will jam its way into Yankee Stadium tomorrow to watch the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox battle in the opener of a vital two-game series.

If it should rain in the afternoon the diamond will be left covered and an effort made to play the game under the lights, with the dayside tickets still good. With the American League race nearing another hectic finish, each of the three clubs in the contention is anxious to play every game scheduled.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks named his chubby southpaw, Eddie Lopat, to oppose Mel Parnell, another lefty, in the first game. The two have identical 17-8 winning records for the season.

Stengel had intended to throw his ace righthander, Viv Raschi, against the hose tomorrow and use Lopat Sunday. But changed his plans after Raschi developed a sore arm in Chicago four days ago. Raschi threw hard at the stadium today and insisted he was ready, but Casey decided to play it safe.

The Yankees assembled at the stadium in hopes of getting in some batting practice. Several of their number have been hitting very poorly of late. But a drizzling rain kept the batters in the locker room, and only the pitchers worked out briefly.

"Way I've got it figured," Stengel continued, "The team that wins 98 games will do it. Means we've got to win seven out of 10. Same for those fellows (The Tigers). That's a lot of wins. One thing, my boys aren't much for choking up."

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 22—Henry Moomau's 25-yard touchdown gallop in the final minute of play enabled Coach Walt Owens' Petersburg High School Vikings to battle Strasburg (Va.) High School to a 12-12 deadlock in the mud here this afternoon.

Petersburg had spotted the Virginians a 12-0 lead in the second quarter and then put on a garrison finish in the final period to knot the count.

Alton Taff bolted over from the 5-yard line to culminate Strasburg's 80-yard drive early in the second period. Eleven running plays and two passes featured the march.

With 1½ minutes remaining before intermission, Donnie Miller, Strasburg halfback, took Petersburg's punt on his own 42, cut to the sidelines, reversed his field and ran 58 yards for the td that gave the visitors a 12-0 advantage.

Moomau's 2-yard pass to Roy Vance in the end zone produced the Viking's initial t.d. in the 4th period with only 4 minutes left to play. Petersburg's 51-yard drive was marked by five running plays and two passes, one from Moomau to Donald Sites being good for 18 yards.

On the following kickoff, Petersburg intercepted a Strasburg lateral on the PHS 44 and in five plays put over the tying six-pointer. Three running plays and two passes, Moomau to Thorne and Moomau to Huffman carried to the 25. Moomau faded back to pass but finding no receivers he sprinted for the score. The pass for extra point was batted down.

Kolmer Is Promoted • • • Cage Rules Changed • • • 2-Minute Rule Out • • • Ricker's Best Fight

By C. V. BURNS

The many friends of Harold Smith Kolmer will be glad to learn that he has been elevated to the post of assistant director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Mr. Kolmer, a native of Lonaconing, has served the commission and its predecessors for more than 31 years as executive secretary.

Now the oldest official of the department in point of service, Kolmer has seen it grow from a unit issuing 65,000 gunning licenses a year to one licensing 380,000 hunters, and from 18,000 fishing licenses to 90,000 a year.

Harold and his brother, Dr. John A. Kolmer, noted scientist active in polio research at Temple University, Philadelphia, were born on Douglas Avenue in Lonaconing. The family moved to Baltimore when Harold was in his teens.

When the 1950-51 basketball season gets under way in November the controversial two-minute rule will be among the missing.

Under the 2-minute rule, a team fouled in the last two minutes, got the free throw and then was given possession of the ball.

Now a fouled team can either take a shot or waive it to keep possession. If it takes the free throw and makes it, the other team is given the ball.

Officials' time-out in high school play is now automatically eliminated.

The game will be returned to full-time play under uniform rules which prevailed during the 1944-45 season.

At the same time, the present regulation on intentional fouls, which calls for an additional free throw to be awarded if a foul is intentional or avoidable, will be strictly enforced. It was because of this failure to curb excessive fouling that the two-minute rule was included last season.

• — • — •

Other rules changes for the coming season, include:

1. Clock is to be stopped on all held balls.

2. Substitution to be made only when the clock is stopped (when a foul is called, a held ball, a time-out, or for an unusual delay); otherwise a time-out is charged.

3. The molded type ball will be the only official ball used.

4. A player who commits a foul must raise his hand over his head; a technical foul is charged for failure to do so.

George (Chuck) Karmarkovich, star of last season's Waynesburg College quint who wound up the campaign in a blaze of glory with the Altoona Flyers of the All-American Pro League in which Cumberland's Dukes won the title, has signed his contract with the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association.

"Chuck" played two years of varsity basketball at Waynesburg and his average was 17 points in 48 contests.

Karmarkovich has been rejected for army duty due to a punctured ear drum.

The Bullets, incidentally, will open their 66-game league season with the World Champion Minneapolis Lakers on Wednesday, November 1 at the Coliseum, Baltimore.

Baltimore is in the eastern division of the league with Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Syracuse. The western division comprises Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Rochester, Chicago, Tri-City and Fort Wayne.

Elkins (W.Va.) will be the scene of the Bullets-Washington Caps league game on Sunday, January 21. Baltimore is slated to play Minneapolis at Johnstown, Pa., January 23.

Vic Ricker regards the Patsy Perroni-"Chuck" Burns fight of 1930 one of the best professional matches he ever arranged here.

It was a sizzling 10-rounder between big fellows with Perroni gaining the nod at the end of 10 rounds.

A Canton (Ohio) promoter wanted the bout so bad he made Ricker an offer to transfer it there but "Vic" said no.

Perroni was in big demand at that time. He whipped Mike McTigue and boxed Maxie Rosenbloom a no decision bout that year and later whipped Johnny Risko and Tony Galento.

In 1935 Patsy upset the dope when he went the 10-round limit with Joe Louis in Detroit. Perroni was decisioned by Louis who was flattening opponents right and left at that time. The clever Italian boxer quit the ring in 1941.

Sammy Baugh of the Redskins is noted for his forward passing but the fellow who holds the record for a single game is Charley Conerly of the New York Giants. He completed 36 against the Pittsburgh Steelers at Forbes Field two years ago.

Joe Gordon's Homer In 9th Beats Detroit Tigers, 4-3

Loss Knocks Bengals Out Of 1st Place Tie

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22 (AP) — Joe Gordon's home run over the left field fence to open the last half of the ninth inning gave the Cleveland Indians a dramatic 4-3 victory over Detroit tonight to knock the Tigers out of a first place tie with the New York Yankees.

The Tigers had rallied with two runs in the top of the ninth to tie the score at 3-3 when Don Kolloway followed Johnny Groth's two-out single with a homer over the same left field fence.

Bob Feller, except for his momentary lapse in the ninth, flashed the form of his better years to beat Hal Newhouser, his old rival, in a pitching duel before 29,909 cheering customers.

Feller yielded eight hits, one more than Newhouser, to rack up his 15th triumph. He struck out five and walked the same number.

The defeat dropped the Tigers one half game behind the idle Yankees and cut their second-place margin over the Boston Red Sox to a game and a half. Score:

CLEVELAND	201	000	001	—4	7	1

Kentucky Plays Louisiana State In Night Battle

Maryland To Open At Georgia Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Here it is the fourth Saturday in September, the leaves are tumbling, the swallows are heading back to Capistrano, the major league races are in the stretch—and college football is back.

Tomorrow's schedule will be a sort of feeler, for most of the major threats for national honors will spend the next week sharpening their passes, and defenses. But it's here, with even a couple of intersectional battles on tap.

The Southeastern Conference will not waste any time with preliminaries. The loop gets down to serious business right off when Louisiana State and Kentucky play at night in Lexington.

This probably is the most significant game of the day, for both these schools are rated top contenders for the loop crown.

Kentucky, on the basis of last year's score, looms the favorite, but LSU also will be stronger and could come up with an upset.

Terps Invade Athens

The other two most important contests pit Southern Methodist against Georgia Tech at Dallas, also under the arcs, and Maryland against Georgia at Athens.

Despite the loss of Doak Walker, Southern Methodist still has Kyle Rote, a bad guy to have on the other side. Georgia could put up a battle against Maryland, but this is the year Jim Tatum is shooting the works and trying for a national title, so his eleven will go into the clash a heavy favorite.

Shepherd Rams Surprise Tech

Neither team got closer than its opponent's 10-yard line.

Shepherd tried a desperation field goal in the last quarter from Tech's 12, but the ball was about 10 feet short of the crossbar.

Shepherd fought to the champs' 10 in the first quarter, but could move no farther. The second was on even terms, with neither team threatening.

Tech went to Shepherd's 10 in the third period, but they also were fought to a standstill at the stripe. Shepherd kept possession of the ball through most of the last quarter and their goal was never seriously threatened.

Terps Are Favored To Defeat Georgia

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 22 (AP)—The Maryland Terrapins and Georgia's Bulldogs snap at each other tomorrow in the football opener for both, providing one of the nation's top games.

Maryland, ranked 15th nationally in the Associated Press pre-season poll, is favored by from 6 to 13 points. A crowd of 35,000-40,000 is expected.

Jim Tatum's Terrapins and Wally Butts' Georgians met once previously playing a 20-20 tie in the 1948 Gator Bowl.

Gifts Are Barred For Series Players

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler today reminded owners of teams participating in the world series they must not pay bonuses or give presents to players.

He also said a player released or transferred by a participating club in the same league shall not be given any of the series money "as a present or reward from his former team-mates, the releasing club or any of its officials."

Violators of the rule will be fined, he said.

Chandler reminded players they must conduct themselves "on the bench and in the field in a sportsmanlike and gentlemanly manner," or be removed.

Game Reset For Oct. 21 LaSalle And St. Mary's At Pittsburgh Sunday

Fort Hill's football team will be striving to extend its winning streak to 11 games in two seasons and its string of straight victories over Keyser High School to nine when it faces Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Mineral Countians tonight at 8 o'clock at the local stadium.

Keyser hasn't whipped the Hilltoppers since 1938 and will be the underdog in tonight's game. In fact, KHS has scored only three touchdowns in its last eight games with the Scarlet and White.

Fort Hill has downed Moorefield 32-0 and Washington and Lee (Alexandria, Va.) 19-7 in its first two starts. Keyser won over the Alumni 14-8 and dropped a 19-6 decision to Charles Town High.

Two changes are expected in Fort Hill's starting lineup. Donald Stine is slated to replace the injured Donald Brake at fullback and Bob Wolfe will get the call at tackle over Clarence Jones.

Beall Postpones Game

Today's game between Beall High School and Berlin-Brothersvalley (Pa.) High School, set for Frostburg, has been postponed on account of wet grounds, it was announced last night by Beall High officials.

The contest has been reset for Saturday, October 21, at Frostburg, which had been an open date on the schedule of both schools.

LaSalle's game with St. Mary's of the Mount High School, Pittsburgh, billed for the local stadium last night, was postponed on account of wet grounds.

Announcement was made by LaSalle that the game is rescheduled for Sunday and will be played at Olympia Field, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh, at 2:30 o'clock.

Wet grounds also forced postponement of the Moorefield at Thomas and Alumni at Ridgeley High contests yesterday. The Moorefield-Thomas contest is rescheduled for Thomas on Monday afternoon.

At Keyser, Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Potomac State School Catamounts will go after win No. 2 when they play Balimore Junior College at 1:30 p. m. at Stayman Field. The Cats are favored to win this one. Last year Potomac defeated the Baltimore eleven by the score of 38-0.

Hot Stove League Meets Thursday

New Organization To Elect Officers

A new organization designed to promote baseball activities for Cumberland youth has scheduled a meeting for next Thursday, September 28, at 8 p. m. at the Cumberland Brewery.

Albert S. Paye is temporary chairman of the group, which is known as Cumberland Chapter of the National Hot Stove League. National headquarters are in Alliance, O.

Permanent officers will be elected at the meeting, and all persons interested in baseball are urged to attend.

First project of the group will be to promote a league for boys 13 to 14 years of age, with play to begin next June.

Those boys will be too old to play in the Little League next year. Little League age limits are from 9 to 12 years.

No league for the 13-14 age group exists at present.

Later on, the local organization plans to sponsor a league for boys 15 to 16 years of age.

Cops $10,000 'Chase At Belmont Park

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 22. (AP)—Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, who won stake races at Delaware Park and Saratoga this summer, regained his best form today in capturing the 36th edition of the $10,000 added Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap before 14,501 fans at Belmont Park.

Oedipus took command just before the final fence and then staved off a closing bid by Kent Miller's Elkridge. Mrs. Stephen C. Clark Jr.'s Through Hill was third.

The time of 3:48 2-5 for the two miles over the gruelling course was well off the track mark of 3:40.

Overlooked in the betting, Oedipus returned mutuels of $36.90, $11.60 and $5.40. Elkridge was $5.40 to place and $3.90 to show. Trough Hill was $3.70 to show.

F. Ambrose Clark's Portius Pilate, winner of his last three, the even money favorite, finished seventh. He was never in contention.

Crew-Cut Scores

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 22. (AP) — Alan T. Hurff's Crew - Cut splashed through the sloppy six furlongs of the featured Alhambra Purse to post a length and one half victory over Fighting Fool at the Atlantic City track today.

The last named, racing for the partnership of J. W. Bowley and Mrs. R. B. Berini, saved the place award 2½ lengths before Frank Yacovelli's Joiner.

Intermittent showers brought out only 7,303 fans for the eight-race program. It was the smallest attendance figure of the season. The mutuel payoffs were Crew - Cut, coupled in the wagering with Mirthmaker, $12.20, $6.40, $4.00; Fighting Fool, $14.20, $8.80 and Joiner, $5.00.

Segura Is Given Hero's Welcome

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 22 (AP)—Pancho Segura, U. S. professional tennis champion, was carried on the shoulders of admirers today from his plane to the airport station as he received a hero's welcome on arriving in his native Ecuador.

Police had a hard time keeping back the crowds. Firecrackers exploded, and sirens sounded in the city's harbor in greeting. A representative of President Galo Plaza was among those present to welcome Pancho.

Noor To Vie In $25,000 Race Today

13 May Go Postward Including Ponder

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — The mighty Noor, beaten by the lightweighted One Hitter here Monday, comes back at Belmont Park tomorrow to try to redeem his prestige in the mile and one-half Manhattan Handicap.

Thirteen horses were entered for the $25,000-added event, which shows that a dozen owners or trainers are going to make the Irish-bred star earn his reputation in these parts.

Noor probably will get his toughest opposition from Calument Farm's Ponder, who must carry the handicap burden now that Citation is out of training. Mrs. Marcella Howard's Irish flyer, winner over Citation in four California races, has high weight of 128 pounds in the Manhattan. He will be ridden by Johnny Longden. Ponder, in with 126, will have Steve Brooks up.

All this doesn't indicate something else can't win the race. One Hitter, the Greentree Stable surprise package which took Monday's mile and one-sixteenth test from Noor, is in under only 110. Ted Atkinson will be aboard again.

Then there is additional international flavor injected by the English-bred router, Hypocrite II, owned by Federico De La Madriz. And the French-bred Titien II, owned by A. E. Masters. Hypocrite II won the Olympic Handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths last Saturday at Atlantic City and has only 108 pounds tomorrow. Titien 11 has 105.

Others entered are King Ranch's Better Self, 116, which probably won't go unless it's muddy; Mrs. E. duPont Weir's The Mater, 102; C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy, 110; Cherry Oca Stable's First Nighter, 105; Brookmeade's Blue Hills, 108; Burton Chait's Sky Miracle, 102; C. V. Whitney's Dooly, 106, and last but not least, Mrs. Evelyn Hopkins' Three Rings, 121.

Three Rings, second choice in the betting Monday to Noor, led most of the way, then tired and finished fourth.

The Manhattan overshadows the $25,000-added Matron Stakes, also on the program. The Matron, six furlongs down the Widener straight course, drew nine two-year-

Take Advantage Of Your Heritage . . . . . Freedom Of Worship!

SLIDIN' DOWN THE CHUTE

What fun these youngsters have on the numerous contrivances designed for their exercise and amusement! The children of past generations would have been delighted with such elaborate provisions for their enjoyment.

Physical training has become an important part of our modern educational system. Regular periods are assigned to it in most schools, and instructors are employed to supervise the children's play.

We are thus spending billions of dollars each year to develop the minds and bodies of our children. But what are we doing for their spiritual development? The body without the soul is dead, and education without spiritual growth is a hollow mockery.

The Church has the stupendous task of supplying this vital need in human life. Its function is to show people the way of God and teach them to think and feel and act in accordance with His will. Body, mind and spirit—but the most important of these is the spirit.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept 22, (INS)—Mala Powers, a lady who writes charming letters, has been lent to Lloyd Nolan for an important picture. Lloyd's idea is certainly interesting. He has taken Edgar Allen Poe's classic, "Murders in the Rue Morgue," and built it into a screen play, which he is calling "Edgar Allen Poe."

Elizabeth Taylor has had all her fittings for "Father's Little Dividend," and all that talk about her retiring is just that, talk. I can't see Liz giving up her career. I'm told that since the episode last week Nicky has been a good boy, and that I'm glad to hear.

These are two young people who have everything in the world, but I guess it's true that the first year of marriage is the most difficult. So now since the first five months have passed, they're over half of the most difficult period. It's a problem to keep any marriage happy in Hollywood and Liz's efforts in that direction are certainly commendable.

• — • — •

Chatter in Hollywood:

Could it be a Hollywood marriage for Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger? She's now in New York and will come to Hollywood for a vacation and Stewart can't return to London until after he finishes Kipling's "Soldiers Three." Jean and he have been in love ever since they met.

The Hutton girl is certainly on high. When she talked to me on the telephone today, she talked so fast I could hardly understand her.

"Where did you get the story about my doing lossom Seeley's life? Who told you? Isn't it wonderful? I think we'll have another 'Jolson Story,'" all in one breath.

Then she said, "as long as you know, I might as well tell you that Blossom Seeley and I start to work today. She's going to teach me all her dances, and Sam Briskin's so excited over the story. It's to be my next picture."

Gertrude Lawrence and Katharine Cornell are working like eager beavers to revive the famed "Beaux Arts Ball" for a terriff New Year's Eve shindig in New York—proceeds going to their pet American National Theater and Academy project.

Here's something to perk Hollywood up: If it is the riot they hope it will be (if it's anything like the old Beaux Arts affairs, it will be—well do I remember those festive affairs!) they will bring the party to Hollywood the following year.

As always—the ball is a masque. It's Gertie's and Katharine's idea to have actors come this year disguised as the great names of the theater who reigned during the past 100 years.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Judy Garland received a terrific reception when she appeared with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby on Bing's first show of the season. Judy was her old self and happy. The three leave for San Francisco to do another job next week.

Brewster Morgan, once my radio producer, and now a TV executive, has been secretly married since September 10. His bride is Eleanor Boyson, Pasadena socialite.

Is Virginia Field's romance with Willard Parker as serious as her friends report?

Who do you think is coaching Laurence Olivier to talk like a Chicago restaurant owner of the 1900 period? Spencer Tracy, no less. Not that Spence remembers that long ago, but he knows the midwestern lingo. Don't all of us who were born in that part of the country.

Ricardo Cortez and Margarette Bell will be honeymooning in Hawaii. They applied for their marriage license two weeks ago, but didn't want any publicity so didn't even tell their close friends.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do you think of yourself as a person?

Answer: Strange as it may seem, most people apparently do not. In a recent psychological experiment, several hundred persons were suddenly asked, "Who are you?" and only a small percentage answered by identifying themselves by name. Others gave such answers as "I'm a poor working man," "I'm a housewife," or even "I'm a girl," or "a man." The experimenters believe that if you answer, "Why, I'm Bill Smith," it shows you are more aware of yourself as a person than the average, and thus better adjusted and more apt to succeed.

Does crying at weddings "give you away"?

Answer: Not infallibly, of course. But you're most likely to cry on what should be joyful occasions because they remind you of the happiness that you once had—or hoped for—and now feel you have lost. A woman whose marriage had proved disappointing might cry at a wedding either because she was directly reminded of her disillusionment, or because she unconsciously identified herself with the bride and grieved at the "let-down" she felt sure the younger woman would face. If you've enjoyed marriage, you should feel happy at weddings.

Do "truth drugs" aid mental tests?

Answer: Yes, especially with certain types of insane patients, report Drs. Herbert Dorken, Jr., and Martin M. Tunis in the American Journal of Psychiatry. It is hard to judge the nature of a patient's problems and help him to solve them if he will not talk or answer questions. But under the influence of narcotics, five "inaccessible" schizophrenics were willing to take the Rorschach (ink-blot) Test, giving a better clue to their condition and to what was "on their minds" than had been gained by other methods.

You, too, can achieve a petal-skinned effect when you apply your make-up properly!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

MOST of the handsome women of this world value their beauty rules and secrets more than any slight edge they might have been given over their sisters at birth. And rightly so. It's a very rare woman who was born beautiful—most beauties have made themselves that way.

Once you understand that fact, you have taken the first sure step to a lovelier appearance.

Beauty-Making Methods

To convince yourself forever, start to look carefully at the makeup on the faces you see. Note how Miss A. seems able to keep hers dewey and fresh for hours, while Miss B. can only complain that hers crocks, runs, cakes and stales. Is this because Miss A. was endowed with a perfect skin at birth and Miss B. with a problem complexion?

Nonsense! It's just as likely to be the other way around. The only answer is that Miss A. has learned what cosmetics suit her skin and how to apply them for their full value.

Every woman can achieve a petal-skinned effect in just a few hours by application of these three important rules:

1. Choose your foundation to suit your type of skin. If your skin is dry, your powder will crock and flake off unless your foundation contains a sufficient amount of lanolin or other oil. If your skin is oily, your base will run and your powder cake unless oil content of your foundation is limited or compensated for by other ingredients that hold a sparing application on the face. You can get expert advice at all good cosmetic counters on the content of your selection.

Watch for Skin Changes

Keep in mind that weather and age may affect your skin. When your skin changes, switch your type of base to one that suits it.

2. Use any foundation very sparingly so that it is an invisible film on the skin. For a satin finish, apply powder lavishly and then smooth it off with downward strokes.

3. Don't fidget with your face or hands! More harm is done to your skin, make-up and poise by contortion of the facial expression and unnecessary movement of the hands than you can guess. Keep a smile on your lips and keep your hands in your lap.

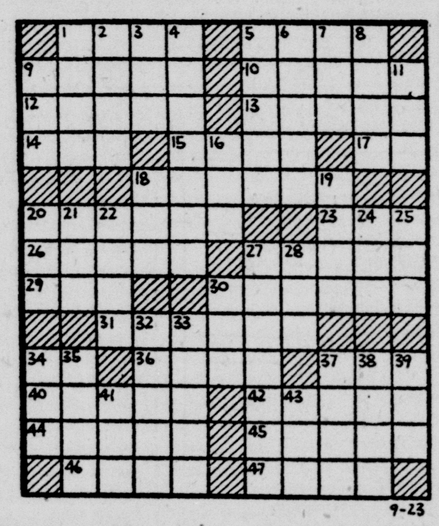
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Beer License To "The Midway" Is Opposed

A remonstrance was filed with the Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday, against the issuance of a beer license to Donald G. Stallings for an establishment known as "The Midway" and located on U. S. Route 46 in the Little Orleans section.

The petition filed contains the names of members of the congregation of the Piney Plains Church and residents of the Little Orleans area.

The remonstrance papers stated that the petitioners had voiced objections against a beer license for the same place on three different occasions and the board had withheld a license.

Market Hits 19-Year High Despite Touch Of Dizziness

Closing prices showed a heavy majority of gains running to around $1 a share. Final quotations, though, were under the best levels of the day and as trading stopped for the week the market was still gently settling.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 82.6, a peak since 1931. The 1946 high, the last barrier in front of the market, was easily hurdled in a morning surge of buying. Most of the advance was retained.

In 1931 the market was still plunging downward from the dizzy heights of 1929. A low of 16.9 was finally reached in 1932.

Demand for rail issues was again a dominant force in the market, as it has been off and on for weeks. Motors, chemicals and oils were also favorites.

Sales piled up to 2,510,000 shares, tops for more than a week, and compared with 1,650,000 Thursday.

Trading included 1,116 individual issues, of which 645 advanced and 265 declined.

Two of the 15 most active issues were marked down — N. Y. Central ¼ to 16¾ and Columbia Gas 1.8 to 12¾.

Nickel Plate Railway moved at express speed again today. Following yesterday's gain of 7, the stock tacked on another 7 points at 152. The issue had the benefit of an excellent earnings report. Other rails marked up included Sante Fe, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Union Pacific, Erie, Lackawanna and Northwestern.

Studebaker was a prime favorite in the auto group, adding 1⅜ at 32⅞. Smaller gains were posted for Nash Kelvinator, Hudson Motors, General Motors and Chrysler.

$1,500,000 Waste Recovery Process Set By Luke Plant

Operation Is Due To Start Early In 1951

A major technical improvement is planned by the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company to reduce wastes discharged into the river.

Cost of the operation is estimated at about $1,500,000 and it will go into effect about the first of the year.

Patrick was one of the speakers in a round-table discussion which featured the opening session of the ninth annual meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

Process Developed

Patrick said a process is being developed to recover wastes from the soda cooking operation at the plant and to reuse the soda ash chemical.

Other improvements are also being made to recover wastes, he said.

Similar work being done at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America was outlined by R. R. Sitzler, sanitary engineer, who spoke on behalf of H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

Sitzler said plant waste surveys were conducted and that "pilot plants" are now being constructed on an experimental basis to try out methods of recovering wastes.

Special emphasis, he said, is being placed on recovering wastes from the acetate rayon manufacturing process.

Fly ash from the power plant had been discharged into the river but a settling basin is planned, he said.

Part of the $6,000,000 improvement program planned by the local Celanese plant will include reduction of wastes, Sitzler said.

Tubes Damaged

In the past when the plant used river water, Connelly said, the polluted water damaged boiler tubes and conductors, and considerable expense was necessary to treat the water. As a result, the plant gets most of its water now from the city.

Problems of the Allegany Metropolitan Sanitary Commission were outlined by its chairman, Dr. William E. Moseley, Mt. Savage.

Dr. Moseley said the commission is unable to act unless towns ask for sanitary improvements, and that funds cannot be raised above 10 per cent of the town's assessed property value.

Dr. Moseley recommended that communities band together so that projects can be handled on a group basis, thus making it possible to raise more funds.

He recalled that a meeting is scheduled October 5 in Frostburg to discuss a proposed trunk sewer from Frostburg to Westernport.

Value of the Savage River dam to area industries wes cited by Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer of the Upper Potomac River Board.

Army Engineers expect the dam will be completed in time to have it filled by spring freshets in 1951, Hitchins said, adding the dam will be in operation by next summer.

Industries and towns along the river can expect improvement in river conditions by next summer, Hitchins said.

He explained that the dam will increase low water flow from about 20 cubic feet per second up to about 100 cubic feet per second.

This will provide more and purer water for industrial use because river flow can be regulated, he explained.

Abatement Needed

Chief speaker at the afternoon session was Sylvan C. Martin, Washington, D. C., director of the Water Pollution Control Committee of the United States Public Health Service.

Martin stressed the need for water pollution abatement in times of national emergency to give war industries an ample supply of processed water.

State water pollution control agencies, Martin said, should carry on more aggressive programs than in the past because the need for pollution abatement is greater now.

It is up to those agencies, Martin

2 Area Soldiers Are Wounded In Korean War

One Is Injured Second Time In Six Weeks

Two area soldiers have been wounded in Korea, one of them for the second time within the past six weeks, according to reports received from the Secretary of the Army.

Cumberland career soldier, Master Sgt. William L. Norwood, 31, husband of Mrs. Dorothy Brockey Norwood, Zihlman Ways, was seriously wounded in action in Korea on August 16.

Mrs. Norwood received another telegram from the Secretary of the Army yesterday informing her that her husband had been slightly wounded in action again in Korea.

Sgt. Norwood left the United States for Japan on July 25. Soon thereafter, he was sent to Korea with the Fifth Cavalry Division.

Pfc. Edward Thomas MacMillan, 17, of 64 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, was wounded in Korea September 13 and has received the Purple Heart and the Combat Badge, according to a telegram received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Delsie MacMillen, from the Secretary of the Army.

Mrs. MacMillan also received a letter from her son yesterday in which he said that he had been wounded by a hand grenade explosion.

Pfc. MacMillan attended Central High School and in June, 1948, he enlisted in the Army. He received his infantry basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and he was sent to Japan for occupation duty soon thereafter.

He is now expected to return to a hospital in the United States.

Firemen Search Swollen Stream

A woman's black coat that hung on Jennings Run Bridge at Corriganville most of yesterday and the little dog that stood watch over it have police checking the rain-swollen stream for a possible drowning victim.

Trooper William F. Baker said another incident that may fit into the case is a white purse found farther down the stream by searching firemen.

Corriganville Fire Chief Harry W. Martz called police into the case last night after several area residents reported seeing the coat and dog there as early as yesterday morning.

Trooper Baker said hard rains of the previous day filled the creek bed to a depth of between five and six feet under the bridge. Ordinarily the stream is about 18 inches deep.

Mrs. Buella Higgs, who lives within sight of the bridge located on Route 36, told police she saw two women "come down the Cash Valley Road and start hitch hiking" at the bridge about 2 p. m. She saw them talking to the dog.

Police quoted her as saying the women appeared to be about 16 and 40 years of age. The younger woman, according to Mrs. Higgs, was wearing a pink flowered dress and had blond hair.

The older woman, she said "was short and stout." Police said the coat would fit a woman of that description. The pair was last seen at the bridge by Earl Beal, Corriganville, as he drove past en route home "after 2 p. m."

Beal told police that he noticed the black coat hanging on the bridge and the dog standing there at the same time he observed the women thumbing a ride.

Fifteen members of the Corriganville Fire Department began a check of the creek bed last night and after walking the bank for about 1,000 feet reported finding the white purse in the stream.

Police checked the purse but said it was empty. It was in the water for only a short time, Trooper Baker said, because "it still was not rusty or water soaked."

Baker said the coat and dog, described as "just an ordinary dog" with a hairy brown and white coat, were taken to the LaVale substation to await further developments.

Firemen said the stream flows into Wills Creek about 1,000 feet below the bridge. It was this section they checked last night.

State Trooper Paul Long is investigating.

Two Communists Are Expelled By Textile Workers

Executive Board Action Is Unanimous

Two members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), were expelled last night by the local's executive board because of membership in the communist party.

Earl L. Snyder, president, said the men, William Boyd Coleman, and Arthur M. Schusterman, both of 56 North Mechanic Street, were dropped from the union's rolls by unanimous roll call of the five-member executive board and top officers.

He said the men were charged with action detrimental to Local 1874 in belonging to the communist party.

Snyder said Coleman and Schusterman were notified verbally of the board's action immediately following the board meeting and said the action will be confirmed by letter today.

Charges Are Filed

Charges against the self-avowed communists were filed with the Executive Board on September 5, accusing the men of action detrimental to the local because of their membership in the communist party.

A hearing was set for September 12, but plans to go through with the action that night were dropped after it was found that sufficient notification had not been given.

The hearing was then set for last night, allowing the legal two-week notice prescribed by the TWUA International's by - laws. Only seven day's notice was required by Local 1874 rules.

Union Cites Charge

Officials said the by-laws provide that any member found guilty of action detrimental to the interest and welfare of the local union may be fined, suspended or expelled by the Executive Board following notice of written charges and the opportunity of a hearing.

Snyder said the TWUA by-laws gives the expelled members the right to appeal the case to the International union's executive board within 30 days.

Coleman and Schusterman reported last night they are protesting the action and expect to appeal the case.

GOP "School Of Politics" Is Tentatively Set October 11

DIES — George W. Remer, 50, manager of the Cumberland office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, died yesterday morning in Memorial Hospital after becoming ill at his home in Allegany Grove early Thursday morning.

Campaign Training Session Planned

Tentative date for the "school of politics" to be held in Cumberland under the auspices of the Republican National Committee is Wednesday, October 11.

This was reported last night by Edgar M. Lewis, chairman of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee.

The school was originally scheduled for Monday.

Lewis was notified yesterday of the change in date by Miss Bertha Adkins, Baltimore, national committeewoman.

Place of the one-night "school of politics" has not been selected.

Lewis said about 200 Republican party workers from all over the county will be asked to attend.

Similar schools were conducted in August in the Maryland cities of Annapolis, Easton, Salisbury, Elkton, Silver Spring and Towson.

The school of politics was designed in Washington to train precinct workers for a hard-hitting campaign aimed toward a Republican victory in November.

Conducting the school sessions is a three-member team headed by Bernard L. Lamb, Hohokus, N. J., a former New Jersey commissioner of finance.

His aides are James A. Hogan, Jersey City, N. J., a political campaign expert; and Mrs. Gladys P. Gordon, Washington, administrative assistant in the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee.

Similar sessions are also planned in Hagerstown and Baltimore.

GOP Committee Plans Session Monday Night

An organization meeting will be held Monday at 8 p. m. by the incoming members of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee.

This was announced last night by Edgar M. Lewis, who was appointed chairman to succeed the late William A. Huster.

Lewis said members will be notified later of the place of the meeting.

The new committee, selected by county voters in the GOP primary election, took office yesterday with the filing of official election returns in the office of Clerk of Circuit Court Joseph E. Boden.

The school will be sponsored locally by the State Central Committee with the co-operation of Mrs. Vada Drumm Barncord, president of the Women's Republican Club of Cumberland.

B. & O. Retires T. R. Shields

A former Cumberland man, Thomas R. Shields, was retired by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company after 49 years of service. Shields now resides in Grafton, W. Va.

The 64-year-old Grafton yard foreman began working for the B. and O. in Cumberland in 1901 as a caller and later worked as a mechanics helper. During his tour of duty he also served as car repairman, brakeman, yard helper, and station master.

The retiring railroader was born in Little Orleans, Md. He married the former Agnes C. Shoultes, Grafton, in 1922. The couple has two sons—both employes of the B. and O. in Grafton.

Shields also has held numerous positions in the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. He will resign from posts that he now holds, he said.

An informal farewell was held in Shields honor Tuesday morning in Grafton. Among those attending were T. K. Klauenberg, superintendent, and J. G. Proudfoot, Grafton's general yardmaster.

Klondike Man Held In Theft

A 53-year-old Klondike man who told authorities he has two sons in the Army was ordered held yesterday under $500 bond for action of the October Grand Jury on a charge of theft.

He is charged with stealing $60 worth of mining materials and equipment from the Consolidated Fuel Company on Thursday.

The articles included steel ties, an axle, two jack posts, a switch throw, two pieces of short iron, a grooved rope wheel, three shovels and an axe.

Thomas, who told authorities he is unemployed, said he took the axe and shovels some time previously and the remainder of the articles on Thursday.

The Klondike man said he planned to take the articles "down to Cumberland and try to sell them."

In his statement, Thomas said he took the items from the Jenkins coal mines.

State Trooper Harry S. Bosley investigated.

William Bishop, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, said, "There is no sense to it. It certainly did not start from this headquarters."

C. And P. Drivers Learn Stopping Time Of Vehicles

Cowboys used to boast that their hay burners were able to stop on a dime—and give at least a nickel's change.

Today, throughout Maryland, drivers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City are getting dramatic proof that you can't stop on a dime. In fact, at 20 miles an hour it would take at least 630 dimes laid side by side. A crew of C. and P. safety experts is showing drivers that the average distance required to stop company vehicles is 37 to 39 feet when traveling at 20 miles per hour.

An ingenious device, a brake testing reaction detonator, is being used to demonstrate this fact to the more than 1,400 C. and P. drivers. In addition, drivers are learning that under the best road conditions and with the driver ready to make an emergency stop, the vehicle will travel an average of 13 feet before the brake is even applied. This is known as reaction time.

When taking the test, the employe drives the vehicle he used in his daily work. The safety coordinator who explains the procedure and rides with the driver, has an electric switch concealed in his hand. Another switch is clamped to the brake pedal.

On the front bumper of the vehicle is mounted a device loaded with two .22 caliber shells which shoot yellow chalk downwards to the surface of the road. Electric power to operate the system comes from the car battery.

In cooperation with police officials a quiet side road is selected for the test. When the driver is proceeding steadily at 20 miles per hour, the coordinator presses his switch. A sharp report is heard and yellow chalk dust appears on the road. As soon as the report is heard, the driver acts to bring his truck to an emergency stop. His foot touching the brake pedal fires the second cartridge and makes another yellow chalk dust patch on the road.

After the stop has been made, the driver and the coordinator measure distances. From the first chalk mark to the second one is the

House Overrides Veto Of Red Control Bill

President Says Bill Unworkable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — The House made short work today of overriding President Truman's veto of a bill designed to control communists but Senate action became snarled in extensive debate on the question.

Senators who side with the President's ideas on the measure—he said it would "weaken our liberties" and "give aid and comfort to those who would destroy us"—spoke at length.

Five hours after the Senate took up the measure, the foes of the bill had used nearly all that time to denounce it.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), a co-author of the measure, called the long debate a filibuster.

But Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) disagreed.

He said some senators who want to sustain the veto were for putting off a vote until tomorrow.

"We are prepared to sit this out all night if necessary," Ferguson told a reporter. "We are all organized to wear them down."

Backers of the bill confidently predicted a lop-sided Senate vote to nullify the presidential dissent and put it on the law books—once those fighting it stopped talking.

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) one of the principal authors of the bill, said in a statement that he did not think many persons could be made to believe that the measure would help the communists.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), one of those who voted against it, pleaded with the Senate tonight "to take a couple more days" for study of the legislation and then sustain the President.

House Vote Is 286 To 48

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said he "couldn't say right now" whether he and others fighting to sustain the President's veto would attempt to delay a vote until tomorrow in the hope of rallying public support.

The attack on the bill in the Senate came after both the House and the Senate had voted to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27, after the congressional elections.

However, Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), the majority leader, told the Senate he would move to cancel that decision if more time was needed to get a vote on the veto.

Senate debate on the veto got underway at 5:25 p. m., EST., shortly after the House voted to override. The House count of 286 to 48 was 63 more votes than the two-thirds majority required to set aside a dissent.

Among its sweeping provisions, the measure would require the registration of communists and commun-

Tax, Defense Bills Sent To President

Increases To Range From 12-20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate and House approved the $4,700,000,000 emergency war tax bill today by overwhelming margins. The bill, which now goes to President Truman for certain approval, calls on millions of Americans to make financial sacrifices to combat communist aggression.

The Senate shouted its approval of the compromise bill, without a roll call. The House a few hours earlier had passed it 328 to 7. Not one dissenting vote was audible in the Senate on the voice vote there.

Effective October 1

The first impact of the measure will be felt by the public nine days from now, on October 1, when the government will begin taking one-fifth more taxes, after personal exemptions, out of every wage or salary. Increases for taxpayers will range from 12 to 20 per cent, bringing the enormous cost of the Korean war and the preparedness program home to every American family.

Even before this "first installment" or stopgap bill reached the White House, the House Ways and Means Committee called a meeting for tomorrow to chart procedures for a second tax increase bill a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax on corporations, intended to prevent war profiteering.

Bill Plugs Loopholes

That bill is to be acted upon when Congress returns after the November elections. The excess profits tax would be retroactive to Oct. 1 or July 1, 1950.

The two measures together may boost taxes by $12,000,000,000, to almost $50,000,000,000 a year—higher than any collections in World War II.

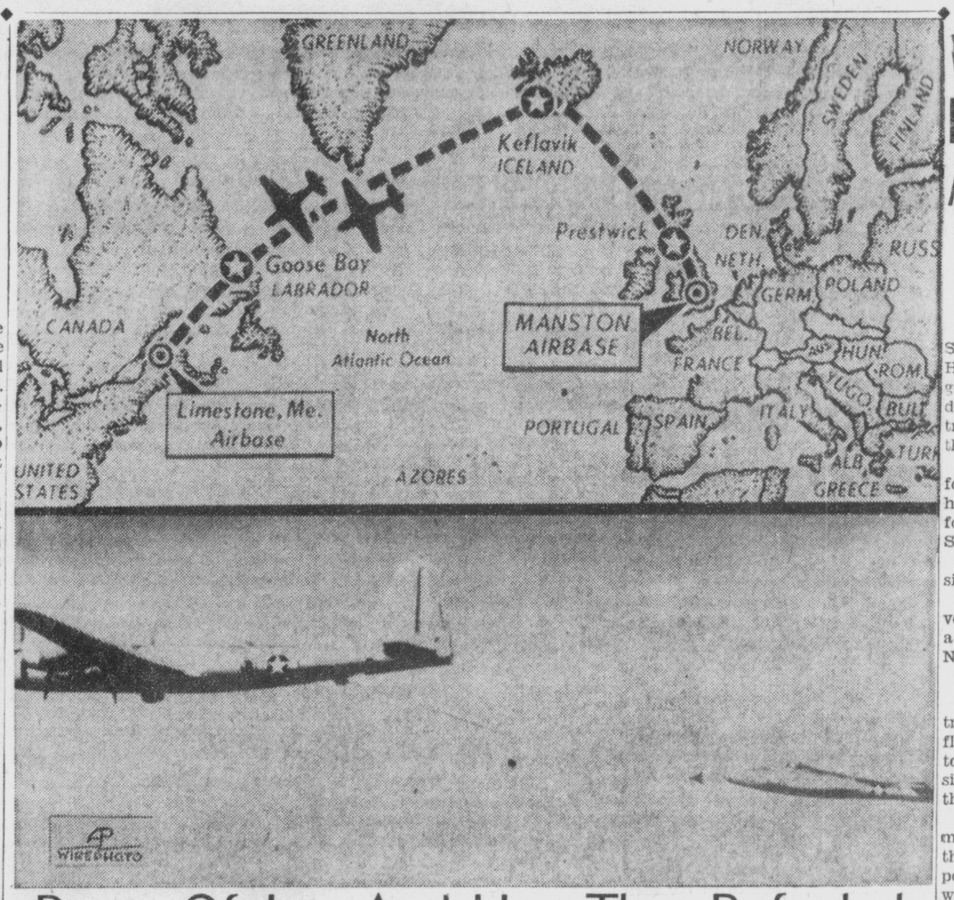
The "first installment" bill raises by almost $3,000,000,000 the income taxes of over 50,000,000 individuals, picks up $1,500,000,000 additional a year by increasing normal corporation tax rates, and gets other millions by plugging loopholes and making other tax law changes.

Congress Approves Recess Until Nov. 27

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Congress voted today to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27.

Both the Senate and the House passed a resolution providing for a vacation until after Thanksgiving—and the November elections.

The House arranged to come back for a brief session tomorrow, but the Senate hoped to wind up its business tonight.



Route Of Jets And How They Refueled

Map shows the route and refueling points (star symbols) of two jets which flew the Atlantic nonstop yesterday with one pilot being forced to bail out of his plane over Labrador. At bottom, a B-29 tanker plane with a fuel hose trailing behind it is about to make contact with a jet fighter in practicing the refueling operation used on yesterday's London-to-New York flight. In the operation, the jet pilot rams a small boom extending from his wing into the funnel-shaped nozzle at the end of the tanker's hose.

One Jet Completes Atlantic Flight; Pilot Of Other Bails Out Safely Over Labrador

LIMESTONE AIR FORCE BASE, Me., Sept. 22. (AP)—A single engine jet fighter plane, refueled as it flew, streaked in tonight from England on a history-making flight that proved too much for a companion plane.

Col. David C. Schilling raced his F-84 Thunderjet an average of 330 miles an hour in the world's first intercontinental non-stop jet flight. He spanned 3,300 miles in 10 hours and one minute.

Schilling, husky Fort Leavenworth, Kan., World War Two ace, roared down on this Northern Maine B-36 bomber base at 6:02 p. m. (EST).

"The trip was fine," Schilling told newsmen. "I'm happy to have made it. I didn't feel tired until I landed."

Schilling said he didn't see Ritchie take to his parachute.

"I was flying higher than he was," he said. "And I had so much navigation work to do that I was busy all the time."

His plane was refueled in the air after the takeoff from Manston, england, 60 miles from London. Tanker planes were hovering in wait over Prestwick, Scotland; Keflavik, Iceland, and Goose Bay.

The Kansan wanted to take off again tonight for Mitchel Field, N. Y., his original destination, Limestone officers said. But he was persuaded to rest instead.

Also greeting the trail-blazer pilot was a telegram from Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff. It said: "Congratulations on having completed a hazardous task."

Col. Wiley said Ritchie ran out of fuel between Sandy Point and Northwest River, about 100 miles northeast of Goose Bay. Schilling said the weather was rough in that region.

Ritchie tried to glide into Goose Bay after his fuel gave out but "hit the silk" when he saw the plane wouldn't make it. The Pine Bluff, Ark., pilot told officers at Goose Bay he felt "fine."

Russian Charge Against U. S. Will Get U.N. Hearing

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — Russia's charges of American aggression against China will get a full hearing in the United Nations General Assembly. The powerful 14-nation Steering Committee voted today to put the accusations on the Assembly agenda.

Only Nationalist China voted "no," contending that neither Russia nor the communist Peiping government has the right to decide whether aggression has taken place in China.

U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin voted in favor.

"We believe in fairness," Austin said. "Every complaint should have its hearing."

An American proposal to have the Assembly take over the explosive Formosan situation was sidetracked by the Chinese Nationalist delegate, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, who demanded that the committee wait until he receives instructions from his government.

These will probably arrive early next week. Chinese sources say Tsiang probably will be instructed to oppose putting the question on the agenda. He is expected to be joined by Russia.

Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government oppose U. N. discussion of Formosa since that island is its last stronghold and it does not want title obscured by debate in the world organization.

Russia is against inclusion because she does not want international opposition to balk possible occupation of Formosa by the Soviet-backed Peiping regime.

Senate Cites 3 For Contempt

The citations grew out of the Senate investigation of the communist-in-government charges made by Republican Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

The three resolutions, adopted by voice vote in less than a minute, were recommended by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Sen. Tydings. That group investigated McCarthy's charges.

Browder, Field and Jeffe all refused to answer certain questions when the subcommittee called them as witnesses.

Big Three Discuss Integrated Defense

Attending the closed door session on the 37th floor of a Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tower were the American, British and French foreign and defense ministers, and high ranking advisors.

Watered-Down Ban On Economic Aid Is Included

House Provision Is Accepted By Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House today a $17,000,000,000 emergency defense bill with a watered-down ban on economic aid to countries shipping strategic goods behind the iron curtain.

The bill provides $11,736,000,000 for bolstering American defenses at home. It also includes $4,000,000,000 for arming other countries against Soviet aggression.

President Truman is expected to sign the bill promptly.

Final passage came on a voice vote as both houses rushed to start a recess that will last until late November.

House Provision Accepted

The Senate bowed to administration wishes and knocked out a flat ban on further economic help to any country sending the Russian bloc munitions or other goods that could be used for war-making.

Instead the senators accepted a milder House provision. This gives the National Security Council the power to shut off aid to countries whose trade with the Soviet bloc is regarded by the council as "contrary to the security interests of the United States."

The vast appropriations bill gives $3,166,000,000 to the Army, $3,734,000,000 to the Navy and $4,560,000,000 to the Air Force.

Funds For Atomic Research

It calls for $260,000,000 in funds for research on atomic weapons, including the hydrogen bomb.

Other major items include $598,637,000 for stockpiling strategic materials, $79,000,000 for stepping up "Voice of America" broadcasts, $20,000,000 for running Selective Service, and $30,000,000 for administering the recently passed economic controls law.

The bill boosts the federal budget for the current year above $50,000,000,000. It more than doubles the $14,000,000,000 defense appropriation voted earlier this session.

Confessed Spy Given 15 Years

GREENVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 22 (AP)—Self-confessed Soviet Spy Alfred Dean Slack received a 15-year prison sentence today for giving wartime secrets to Russia.

Slack pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a sample of RDX, a high explosive, from Holston Ordnance Works at nearby Kingsport, Tenn., and handing it and details of its manufacture to a Russian agent. He worked at the ordnance plant in 1943-44.

The government, through U. S. Attorney James M. Meek, had suggested a 10-year sentence for Slack. Meek said there were "extenuating circumstances" in Slack's favor.

Among these, he said, were the fact that on at least three occasions Slack had refused to supply information to Russian agents during World War II and did so only after he had been threatened with exposure as a spy himself.

Leathernecks Expand Hold On Outskirts

Yanks Seize Suwon, Gain North Of Taegu

TOKYO, Saturday, Sept.23 (AP)—U. S. Marines expanded their hold on Seoul's outskirts today and the red radio said the North Koreans beat off a tank-led attempt to enter the capital proper.

South of the city, U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen punched more than 20 miles and seized Suwon and its airfield. These troops blocked the main highway up which the reds might send any reinforcements from the old beachhead in Southeast Korea.

Through the northwest corner of that beachhead, U. S. First Cavalry Division troops reached Sangju on a breakthrough drive northwestward toward Seoul.

Rolling into Sangju on the second most important road between Taegu and Seoul, the First Cavalry troopers had wheeled 35 miles through crumbling Korean red lines in 35 hours.

Inside Seoul, the red defenders dug in for a street-by-street fight and lobbed mortar fire at marines on "You-Can-Have-It" hill overlooking the sprawling metropolis of 1,000,000.

Resistance Increasing

Enemy resistance was increasing. There was every evidence the reds have a planned defense for Seoul.

The reds' Pyongyang radio, which hitherto admitted only the Sept. 15 landing at Inchon, said today at 7 a. m. (5 p. m., EST Friday):

"Red troops defending Seoul repulsed tank-led and air-supported American troops which attempted to penetrate into the Korean capital."

Expansion of the Marine hold on the outskirts was reported in the first communique issued by the U. S. 10th Corps. It said marines on the northwest outskirts occupied high ground overlooking a suburb and other marines on the southwest side of the Han River cleared three-fourths of the town of Yongdungpo.

Associated Press Correspondent Bill Ross said "You-Can-Have-It" hill—so named because its rocky, barren slope is unattractive—puts the leathernecks within easy sight of downtown Seoul.

Yanks Under Artillery Fire

"But it will be some time before any marines get to what they can see," Ross added after visiting the crest and taking cover during red mortar fire.

Other American and Allied forces on the southeast front advanced up to eight miles, rapidly expanding their holdings against spotty North Korean resistance.

It was around Seoul that the fighting flared highest. American and South Korean marines driving on that red-held capital from the northwest came under artillery fire from the public park atop South Mountain, around which Seoul is built.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead, with the marines, reported an estimated 3,000 reds had honeycombed the 700-foot-high mountain with deep defense works.

Whitehead said the Seoul defense force was estimated at 10,000 men, parts of the North Korean 17th and 18th Divisions.

McMahon Asks Probe Of Hearst Draft Records

Says Newspaper 'Scandalized' Him

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) asked the Senate today to investigate whether three sons of Publisher William Randolph Hearst violated the Selective Service Act during World War II.

The investigation McMahon proposed in a resolution also would embrace the draft record of Leslie Gould, financial editor for the New York Journal American, and Serge Rubinstein of New York.

Rubinstein, convicted of draft dodging in New York City in 1947, served two years in a federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. He was released in 1949.

McMahon told the Senate that the Journal American, a Hearst newspaper, had "scandalized" him by "printing the fraudulent charge that I intervened for Rubinstein in his draft difficulties."

Gould said in New York:

"If Sen. McMahon is interested in my Selective Service record, I suggest he ask my draft board. As to the Senator's relations with Serge Rubinstein whom I exposed, there's the record."

In New York, William H. White, editor of the Hearst Newspaper Bureau in New York, issued the following statement from William Randolph Hearst, Jr., publisher of the New York Journal-American:

"The draft records of my brothers and myself are, I believe, available for inspection by Sen. McMahon or any other interested parties.

"To charge, as Sen. McMahon has, that there was anything irregular is, it seems to me, to impugn the honesty and integrity of the members of those draft boards.

"Sen. McMahon or anyone else is welcome to investigate the records to their heart's content. It would appear, though, that Sen. McMahon is not as sanguine about publicity on his own background."

Wife Of Soldier Sentenced To Die Appeals To Truman

YORK, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP) — A young negro woman asked President Truman today to overrule a death sentence imposed on her soldier husband for refusing to obey an order in the Korean fighting.

Mrs. Kay Gilbert, 27, said her husband, First Lt. Leon A. Gilbert, wrote her that death sentence was imposed following a court-martial. She said he told her carrying out the order "would have led me and 12 other men to certain death."

Mrs. Gilbert said her husband had been under tremendous strain, adding "he took over the company after his commanding officer was injured. They had gone 13 days without food and water. Leon cracked up and disobeyed a command of the general.

The request for review of the court-martial was turned over to Rep. James F. Lind (D-Pa) who went to President Truman. A White House spokesman said the plea was referred to the Judge Advocate General of the Army.

The Judge Advocate's office said it had not yet received records on the Gilbert court-martial.

Gilbert, 32, enlisted in the Army in 1940, after he had worked as a waiter in this Southeastern Pennsylvania city of 60,000. He served with the 92nd Division in Italy and was honorably discharged in 1946. He was called up again as a reservist in 1947.

Steel Trusts Broken

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 22 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France ordered today the breakup of Germany's six big steel trusts into small, independent companies.

This is the "Big Six" of the Ruhr—continental Europe's largest steel producing area which supplied Hitler's Third Reich with 90 per cent of its steel.

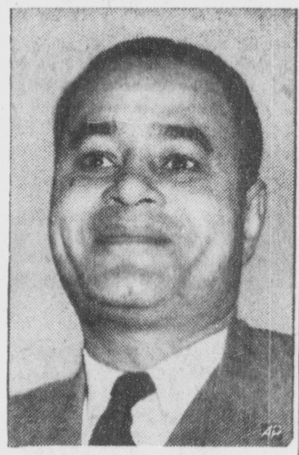
Dr. Bunche, Who Brought End To Conflict In Holy Land, Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, grandson of an American negro slave and United Nations mediator who brought an end to conflict in the Holy Land, has been awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1950.

As far as is known here, Dr. Bunche is the first negro ever to be awarded a Nobel prize in any field. Certainly, he is the first of his race to receive the peace prize. It will be presented to him Dec. 10.

Announcement of the award was made tonight by the Norwegian Nobel Committee, which never gives the reason for its choice. The prize this year amounts to 164,303 kroner (about $23,000).

At Lake Success, Dr. Bunche said he had received the news "with deep humility." He was busy at work as principal director in the trusteeship division of the United Nations.



DR. RALPH BUNCHE

"I, more than anyone, recognize the extent to which my peace efforts in the Near East flowed from the strength of the United Nations," he said.

Dr. Bunche, who succeeded Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden as the United Nations meditor in Palestine, after Bernadotte was assassinated in 1948, effected an armistice that ended the bitter clash between Jews and Arabs and threatened the entire Middle East soon after World War II.

The annual prizes are awarded from a trust establishment by the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896. The awards are made to those judged to have served humanity best during the past year in medicine, chemistry, physics, literature and the effort for peace.

Dr. Bunche, who is 46 years old, is a native of Detroit.

House Overrides Veto Of Red Control Bill

President Says Bill Unworkable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — The House made short work today of overriding President Truman's veto of a bill designed to control communists but Senate action became snarled in extensive debate on the question.

Senators who side with the President's ideas on the measure—he said it would "weaken our liberties" and "give aid and comfort to those who would destroy us"—spoke at length.

Five hours after the Senate took up the measure, the foes of the bill had used nearly all that time to denounce it.

But Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) disagreed.

He said some senators who want to sustain the veto were for putting off a vote until tomorrow.

"We are prepared to sit this out all night if necessary," Ferguson told a reporter. "We are all organized to wear them down."

Backers of the bill confidently predicted a lop-sided Senate vote to nullify the presidential dissent and put it on the law books—once those fighting it stopped talking.

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) one of the principal authors of the bill, said in a statement that he did not think many persons could be made to believe that the measure would help the communists.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), one of those who voted against it, pleaded with the Senate tonight "to take a couple more days" for study of the legislation and then sustain the President.

House Vote Is 286 To 48

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said he "couldn't say right now" whether he and others fighting to sustain the President's veto would attempt to delay a vote until tomorrow in the hope of rallying public support.

The attack on the bill in the Senate came after both the House and the Senate had voted to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27, after the congressional elections.

However, Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), the majority leader, told the Senate he would move to cancel that decision if more time was needed to get a vote on the veto.

Senate debate on the veto got underway at 5:25 p. m., EST., shortly after the House voted to override. The House count of 286 to 48 was 63 more votes than the two-thirds majority required to set aside a dissent.

Among its sweeping provisions, the measure would require the registration of communists and commun-

Tax, Defense Bills Sent To President

Increases To Range From 12-20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate and House approved the $4,700,000,000 emergency war tax bill today by overwhelming margins. The bill, which now goes to President Truman for certain approval, calls on millions of Americans to make financial sacrifices to combat communist aggression.

The Senate shouted its approval of the compromise bill, without a roll call. The House a few hours earlier had passed it 328 to 7. Not one dissenting vote was audible in the Senate on the voice vote there.

Effective October 1

The first impact of the measure will be felt by the public nine days from now, on October 1, when the government will begin taking one-fifth more taxes, after personal exemptions, out of every wage or salary. Increases for taxpayers will range from 12 to 20 per cent, bringing the enormous cost of the Korean war and the preparedness program home to every American family.

Even before this "first installment" or stopgap bill reached the White House, the House Ways and Means Committee called a meeting for tomorrow to chart procedures for a second tax increase bill a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax on corporations, intended to prevent war profiteering.

Bill Plugs Loopholes

That bill is to be acted upon when Congress returns after the November elections. The excess profits tax would be retroactive to Oct. 1 or July 1, 1950.

The two measures together may boost taxes by $12,000,000,000, to almost $50,000,000,000 a year—higher than any collections in World War II.

The "first installment" bill raises by almost $3,000,000,000 the income taxes of over 50,000,000 individuals, picks up $1,500,000,000 additional a year by increasing normal corporation tax rates, and gets other millions by plugging loopholes and making other tax law changes.

Congress Approves Recess Until Nov. 27

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Congress voted today to recess tomorrow until Nov. 27.

Both the Senate and the House passed a resolution providing for a vacation until after Thanksgiving—and the November elections.

The House arranged to come back for a brief session tomorrow, but the Senate hoped to wind up its business tonight.

One Jet Completes Atlantic Flight; Pilot Of Other Bails Out Safely Over Labrador

LIMESTONE AIR FORCE BASE, Me., Sept. 22. (AP)—A single engine jet fighter plane, refueled as it flew, streaked in tonight from England on a history-making flight that proved too much for a companion plane.

Col. David C. Schilling raced his F-84 Thunderjet an average of 330 miles an hour in the world's first intercontinental non-stop jet flight. He spanned 3,300 miles in 10 hours and one minute.

Schilling, husky Fort Leavenworth, Kan., World War Two ace, roared down on this Northern Maine B-36 bomber base at 6:02 p. m. (EST).

"The trip was fine," Schilling told newsmen. "I'm happy to have made it. I didn't feel tired until I landed."

Schilling said he didn't see Ritchie take to his parachute.

"I was flying higher than he was," he said. "And I had so much navigation work to do that I was busy all the time."

His plane was refueled in the air after the takeoff from Manston, england, 60 miles from London. Tanker planes were hovering in wait over Prestwick, Scotland; Keflavik, Iceland, and Goose Bay.

The Kansan wanted to take off again tonight for Mitchel Field, N. Y., his original destination, Limestone officers said. But he was persuaded to rest instead.

Also greeting the trail-blazer pilot was a telegram from Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff. It said: "Congratulations on having completed a hazardous task."

Col. Wiley said Ritchie ran out of fuel between Sandy Point and Northwest River, about 100 miles northeast of Goose Bay. Schilling said the weather was rough in that region.

Ritchie tried to glide into Goose Bay after his fuel gave out but "hit the silk" when he saw the plane wouldn't make it. The Pine Bluff, Ark., pilot told officers at Goose Bay he felt "fine."

Senate Cites 3 For Contempt

The citations grew out of the Senate investigation of the communist-in-government charges made by Republican Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

The three resolutions, adopted by voice vote in less than a minute, were recommended by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Sen. Tydings. That group investigated McCarthy's charges.

Browder, Field and Jeffe all refused to answer certain questions when the subcommittee called them as witnesses.

Big Three Discuss Integrated Defense

Attending the closed door session on the 37th floor of a Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tower were the American, British and French foreign and defense ministers, and high ranking advisors.

Russian Charge Against U. S. Will Get U.N. Hearing

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — Russia's charges of American aggression against China will get a full hearing in the United Nations General Assembly. The powerful 14-nation Steering Committee voted today to put the accusations on the Assembly agenda.

Only Nationalist China voted "no," contending that neither Russia nor the communist Peiping government has the right to decide whether aggression has taken place in China.

U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin voted in favor.

"We believe in fairness," Austin said. "Every complaint should have its hearing."

An American proposal to have the Assembly take over the explosive Formosan situation was sidetracked by the Chinese Nationalist delegate, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, who demanded that the committee wait until he receives instructions from his government.

These will probably arrive early next week. Chinese sources say Tsiang probably will be instructed to oppose putting the question on the agenda. He is expected to be joined by Russia.

Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government oppose U. N. discussion of Formosa since that island is its last stronghold and it does not want title obscured by debate in the world organization.

Russia is against inclusion because she does not want international opposition to balk possible occupation of Formosa by the Soviet-backed Peiping regime.

Confessed Spy Given 15 Years

GREENVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 22 (AP)—Self-confessed Soviet Spy Alfred Dean Slack received a 15-year prison sentence today for giving wartime secrets to Russia.

Slack pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a sample of RDX, a high explosive, from Holston Ordnance Works at nearby Kingsport, Tenn., and handing it and details of its manufacture to a Russian agent. He worked at the ordnance plant in 1943-44.

The government, through U. S. Attorney James M. Meek, had suggested a 10-year sentence for Slack. Meek said there were "extenuating circumstances" in Slack's favor.

Among these, he said, were the fact that on at least three occasions Slack had refused to supply information to Russian agents during World War II and did so only after he had been threatened with exposure as a spy himself.

House Runs Over Foot

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 22 (AP)—Carlos Lee, Jr., 17, was treated at a hospital today for an injured foot. A house ran over it.

The youth, employed by a moving company, was helping move a house. The structure was mounted on a dolly, or moving vehicle, pulled by a truck when Lee inadvertently put his foot under the moving vehicle.

Wife Of Soldier Sentenced To Die Appeals To Truman

YORK, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP) — A young negro woman asked President Truman today to overrule a death sentence imposed on her soldier husband for refusing to obey an order in the Korean fighting.

Mrs. Kay Gilbert, 27, said her husband, First Lt. Leon A. Gilbert, wrote her that death sentence was imposed following a court-martial. She said he told her carrying out the order "would have led me and 12 other men to certain death."

Mrs. Gilbert said her husband had been under tremendous strain, adding "he took over the company after his commanding officer was injured. They had gone 13 days without food and water. Leon cracked up and disobeyed a command of the general.

The request for review of the court-martial was turned over to Rep. James F. Lind (D-Pa) who went to President Truman. A White House spokesman said the plea was referred to the Judge Advocate General of the Army.

The Judge Advocate's office said it had not yet received records on the Gilbert court-martial.

Gilbert, 32, enlisted in the Army in 1940, after he had worked as a waiter in this Southeastern Pennsylvania city of 60,000. He served with the 92nd Division in Italy and was honorably discharged in 1946. He was called up again as a reservist in 1947.

Dr. Bunche, Who Brought End To Conflict In Holy Land, Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, grandson of an American negro slave and United Nations mediator who brought an end to conflict in the Holy Land, has been awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1950.

As far as is known here, Dr. Bunche is the first negro ever to be awarded a Nobel prize in any field. Certainly, he is the first of his race to receive the peace prize. It will be presented to him Dec. 10.

Announcement of the award was made tonight by the Norwegian Nobel Committee, which never gives the reason for its choice. The prize this year amounts to 164,303 kroner (about $23,000).

At Lake Success, Dr. Bunche said he had received the news "with deep humility." He was busy at work as principal director in the trusteeship division of the United Nations.

DR. RALPH BUNCHE

"I, more than anyone, recognize the extent to which my peace efforts in the Near East flowed from the strength of the United Nations," he said.

Dr. Bunche, who succeeded Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden as the United Nations meditor in Palestine, after Bernadotte was assassinated in 1948, effected an armistice that ended the bitter clash between Jews and Arabs and threatened the entire Middle East soon after World War II.

The annual prizes are awarded from a trust establishment by the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896. The awards are made to those judged to have served humanity best during the past year in medicine, chemistry, physics, literature and the effort for peace.

Dr. Bunche, who is 46 years old, is a native of Detroit.

Butler And Gunter Emerge Winners As Official Count Of Votes Nears Completion

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP)—With only a few official figures missing from the tabulations, John Marshall Butler emerged today as the winner of the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate and William A. Gunter with the Republican nomination for attorney general in last Monday's Maryland primaries.

Baltimore City and Baltimore County will not complete the job until sometime next week, possibly Tuesday.

Unless there are unusual developments, the official figures from Baltimore probably will not change much from those collected from all but two of the city's precincts last Monday night. The canvass figures have always followed the unofficial returns closely.

Baltimore County is a different matter. Less than half the returns from the 255 polling places there became available in the unofficial count in the Democratic races, and there were none at all from the Republican contests.

Butler Sure Of 78 Unit Votes

In the Republican Senate race, Butler, a Baltimore attorney, had collected 36 unit votes in the official canvass. With these added to the 42 of which he is assured when the count is complete in Baltimore, Butler had 78 unit votes, one more than necessary for the nomination.

In addition, he has a decisive margin on the basis of unofficial returns from Talbot County and stands to gain four more votes there.

His opponent, D. John Markey, a retired National Guard general from Walkersville, collected 30 unit votes on the basis of the canvass. The only other ones he seems sure of picking up are the three in St. Mary's.

These calculations do not take into consideration the seven votes in Baltimore County, where even unofficial returns were not available.

On the basis of the best available canvass and unofficial returns Markey held an edge in the popular vote, 32,192 to 30,379.

No Change In Governor Race

He has a decisive margin on the basis of unofficial returns in Talbot County, which would give him four more. He also may pick up the three in St. Mary's and the seven in Baltimore County.

His opponent, Helen Elizabeth Brown, Baltimore, had only 18 unit votes in the official canvass but was assured of 42 more when the Baltimore City figures become official.

The official canvass figures have made no difference so far in the bitter contest between Gov. Lane and George P. Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Immediate Selective Price Controls Are Requested By AFL

HOUSTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — The AFL asked President Truman today for immediate selective price controls, asserting "there is no painless way to stop inflation."

A committee report approved by the American Federation of Labor convention said "failure to stem an inflationary spiral will give the Kremlin a victory of the greatest magnitude."

The report advised Mr. Truman that freezing of wages would be unjust until wages are increased to what was called a parity with price levels at the outbreak of fighting in Korea.

Voluntary agreements among labor unions, management and government were indorsed as the most effective means for solving manpower problems resulting from the international crisis.

The report on wages and prices said positive controls will be necessary to avoid inflation, the greatest danger of the nation's defense program.

Jap Volcano Erupts, Shattering Windows

TOKYO, Saturday, Sept. 23 (AP)—Mount Asama, 75 miles northwest of Tokyo, erupted violently at 4:37 a. m. today (2:47 p. m. EST Friday).

The Central Meteorological Observatory reported that windows were shattered and clocks were stopped at nearby Karuizava resort. No other damage was reported immediately.

Smoke rose more than 30,000 feet above the 8,340-foot peak. The volcano was described as rumbling ominously.

Earth shocks were felt as far away as Tokyo.

Thousands Given Away By Recluse

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22 (AP) — Charles Babonet — termed an eccentric recluse when he died Aug. 7 at 66 — today was disclosed as a modern day St. Francis of Assisi instead.

St. Francis of Assisi was the medieval founder of the Franciscans who gave away all his riches to the poor and then preached and practiced works of charity.

And as more of the story of the "secret philanthropist in overalls" unfolded, it became easier to see why he remembered a family—with a $100,000 bequest—for giving him a day of kindness 33 years ago.

Babonet left an estate that may run over $500,000. But it appears that he may have given away an equal amount in his lifetime to charity—without making it known publicly.

The Rev. Patrick O'Dowd, pastor of St. Alphonsus Roman Catholic Church, said that Babonet was the "most charitable and religious man I have ever known."

Father O'Dowd said Babonet gave $3,000 to the St. Alphonsus School so that poor children would have hot lunches. His Christmas baskets each year cost him thousands, the priest estimated.

Babonet's will was shoved under the door of a downtown Bank of America branch on Aug. 28.

Most unusual bequest was that to Pearl A. Tyson and family. They had picked up Babonet walking along the highway 33 years ago and gave him a happy day's outing at the beach.

Murray Doesn't Want Wages Tied To Costs

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22 (AP) — President Philip Murray of the CIO and the CIO United Steelworkers today rejected the principle of tying wages to the cost of living alone.

On the heels of the big steel union's demands for an unspecified pay increase, Murray told reporters at the conclusion of a USW executive board meeting:

"Our organization doesn't want wages tied to the cost of living alone.

"To accept that kind of wage formulation would consign the American worker to acceptance of a wage principle on which his standards would never improve."

RIU To Protest Retirement Case

The Railroad Industrial Union reported this week it will protect the action of the Western Maryland Railway in "pulling a 74-year-old engineer of this city out of service because of his age."

Elmer E. D. Davis, RIU president, said the action was taken Wednesday against C. L. Croker, this city an engineer employed at Knobmount yards.

He said the RIU will protest the action on grounds that the Federal retirement act sets no age limit for retirement.

ist-front organizations, authorize the mass roundup of suspected subversives in time of war or national emergency, and provide stiffer penalties for espionage and sabotage.

Mr. Truman sent a 5,500-word message roundly denouncing the legislation as "ineffective and unworkable," and he urged Congress:

"Let us not, in cowering and foolish fear, throw away the ideals which are the fundamental basis for our free society."

He said the communist registration requirement could turn out to be "the greatest danger to freedom of speech, press and assembly since the alien and sedition laws of 1798."

Mr. Truman said the communist registration provision was "about as practical as requiring thieves to register with the sheriff" and declared it would take from two to four years for the courts to dispose of cases brought to prosecution under the act.

Red Moves In Berlin Called Deliberate Plot

BERLIN, Sept. 22 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said today the revival of harassing tactics by the communists and Russians in Berlin this week was a deliberate plot.

It had two aims, the American commandants asserted in an interview:

1. Shake the confidence of the West German.

2. Steam up the East Germans with a false air of emergency to get out the vote for the Russian zone Oct. 15 elections.

Czechs Expel AP Correspondent

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 22 (AP)—Czechoslovak authorities today ordered William Oatis, chief of the Prague bureau of the Associated Press, to leave the country by Sept. 30.

Oatis is the third AP correspondent and the seventh newsman from the western world to be expelled from Czechoslovakia this year. The charge against the other AP men was "unobjective reporting," but the government declined to specify this time.

Bedrich Runge, deputy director of the Foreign Ministry's press department, told Oatis his three-months foreign correspondent's accreditation will not be renewed when it expires next week.

The Old Razzle-Dazzle

Huge four-engined transport planes are landing only minutes apart on the newly won Kimpo Airfield, on the north flank of the new Inchon beachhead. It begins to appear that we have some of our timing back, some of the old teamwork that was devastatingly successful in the late stages of the war in the Pacific.

Do not make the mistake of counting a victory before it is achieved. But the average American, reading accounts of Marines holding the approaches to the Kimpo Airfield while Air Force planes land there and Army troops hold the flanks, suddenly realizes that here is real unification at work. His imagination is fired when he is told that ships, planes and men were gathered from all parts of the world to make the Inchon end run successful.

He is thrilled to see the high command rolling with the punches, using every man and every weapon to best advantage. What pleases him most is to see the recently fumbling, quarrelsome U. S. military machine clicking off the plays in effortless style.

It isn't all blue sky. The lion's share of this country's military might is committed to cleaning up a third rate opponent who nearly had us down. There is an enormous amount of work to be done, and we have hardly started. But it appears that we have ironed out a lot of the bugs and that the old razzle dazzle hasn't been forgotten entirely.

Rumors That Feed Hope

Unnamed military experts at Washington are quoted by a news service as believing that reports of peace overtures by the North Korean communists are premature—though the experts see the position of the red armies as virtually hopeless.

Laymen are at liberty to take either view, or neither. But whether these persistent rumors are premature or logical, the opinions of the experts nourish the hope that the war is nearing an end—unless communist China or Russia decides to intervene directly.

The possibility continues to exist, although apparently remotely, that the North Koreans may succeed in concentrating around Seoul and walling in the American expeditionary force there. The plan has been well conceived and brilliantly begun, but no one can be absolutely sure that it will quickly succeed. Always the fog of war must be taken into account.

Still, and even though there may be no real basis for them, rumors of peace feelers sound good to American ears. They confirm that the outcome of the fighting is now taken for granted, even if victory may be deferred. When the North Koreans are convinced they cannot win, the end will not be far away.

MacArthur Came To Stay

A GI who weathered the Anzio beachhead was heard to say that one of his worst moments came when he watched the fleet of assorted ships and craft that brought him and his buddies there sail over the horizon. He said he knew they would be back, but he still felt terribly alone.

Beachhead veterans are well aware that there is little time left over during the initial period of an assault for worry. But the wise veteran always has his eye open for signs that show the beachhead is secure. His best clue is the type of supplies unloaded.

There must have been considerable whooping and hollering the other day around the docks at Inchon, the newest name to be added to a long list of beaches hit and won since 1942. For amid the steady stream of supplies being shuttled ashore was a set of office furniture. Who for? Why, Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He's coming in to stay, you know.

It is easly understandable that from that point on there was little fretting about the status of the battle.

Socialism As Usual

In Britain, as in the United States, politics rarely adjourns. Certainly politics is in session there right now, despite the Korean war and its manifold implications. The proof is readily found in the Labor government's decision to go ahead with the nationalization of the steel industry.

This it can do, of course. Legislation authorizing this step is already on the books. But the government had been singing very low on this subject since last spring's election, which it won by a perilously slim margin. Opponents had assumed that it would continue this policy in the present critical situation.

The reversal took them by surprise and some Conservatives are still rubbing their eyes. They had not seen an about-face as good politics for Prime Minister Attlee.

But to Britons want socialism as usual in this emergency? That is the issue, if the Conservatives can make them see it.

Higher Auto Prices

Predictions are numerous that prices of all makes of automobiles will be boosted before the year's end. Several manufacturers have announced increases, and it is hardly likely they would have done so unless they had reason to believe the entire industry would be forced to follow. Wages continue to rise, and so do costs of all materials that enter into an automobile.

Automobiles now cost twice as much as they did 10 years ago, and there is nothing to indicate that the inflationary spiral in the motor car industry has lost speed. Nothing is heard today of the "poor man's car," and apparently the public has the money to buy vehicles as fast as they roll off the assembly lines. With production this year setting a new record, most dealers continue to have waiting lists of buyers.

Who Cares For Money

A new use for money has been found. A piggy bank weighted with $500 in bills and silver was used as a doorstop by a homemaker in a Western city while she dropped in next door for a chat. When she returned, it was gone.

The carelessness of people with money is one of the amazing things in the world. So many save up considerable sums, and then leave them stuffed in a mattress or inside a desk, or in any other place where a thief would naturally look first.

Banks evidently still have a big job to do in the way of popularizing their services. This is one matter in which the individual's carefully cultivated sales resistance may cost him money.

Peculiar Hernias

THE DIAPHRAGM is a dome-shaped sheath of muscle that separates the thorax from the abdominal cavity. It is not solid inasmuch as there are openings through which pass blood vessels, nerves, and even the tube that leads from the mouth to the stomach (esophagus). These apertures are necessary but they make the diaphragm vulnerable to accidents and other forms of trauma.

Should the opening that surrounds the esophagus, for example, become relaxed or torn, it is easy to see mow the stomach or intestine may protrude into the chest cavity (hiatus hernia). The former is sometimes referred to as an "upside down stomach." Occasionally the hole through the diaphragm is so large that virtually all of the intestinal contents encroach upon the lungs and heart. This is one cause of difficulty in breathing, especially in newborn infants. These children come into the world with a defective diaphragm and unless the disorrer is recognized promptly and corrected surgically death may ensue.

Although riatus hernia may be congenital in origin, it is more commonly acquired after birth. Individuals over 40 are most susceptible and women are favored two to one. The obese are more prone to the disease than the lean. Increased abdominal pressure against an already weakened diaphragm probably plays a major role and it is no wonder so many victims volunteer the information that the hernia followed abdominal strain from prolonged coughing, vomiting, or pregnancy.

Some men and women go through life unaware that a hiatus hernia is present; others complain of indigestion, gas, belching, regurgitation, pressure over the upper abdomen or difficulty in swallowing. Symptoms may appear only after meals because it is at this time that the stomach is distended and crowds the neighboring organs. On the other hand, most patients are uncomfortable only when lying down because, in the recumbent position, the stomach and colon do not have gravity to contend with and these organs have no trouble sneaking through the gap into the chest cavity. Standing up or vomiting often will bring relief.

Now and then pain develops beneath the breastbone, simulating angina, and the "old pump" may be blamed, especially if an electrocardiogram shows abnormalities. These changes in the tracing are due to the crowding of the distended intestinal tract against the heart. When the stomach is empty, however, or the individual is standing or sitting quietly in a chair, the electrocardiogram usually is normal.

• — • — •

Treatment depends upon the severity of the condition and the amount of discomfort that exists. Those who are not bothered except in a mild way should forget the abnormality. When distress is moderate, eating smaller meals at more frequent intervals is advised. Stooping and lifting heavy weights should be avoided and it is wise to lie down after meals and wear a tight abdominal support or girdle routinely. Medicines that tend to relax the stomach muscles also are helpful. Surgery is recommended when discomfort is becoming progressively worse or X-rays reveal that the hernia is increasing in size. Operation involves drawing the stomach or intentines into the abdominal cavity and suturing the opening in the diaphragm.

BRINGING HIS WIFE ON BOARD

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

TV Audience Rates Sir Gladwyn Jebb With Hopalong Cassidy; British Press Frowns On American Enthusiasm For British U. N. Hero

Says DREW PEARSON

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chairman of the U. N. Security Council.)

WASHINGTON—After a month of watching sour-puss Soviet delegate Malik rant, rave and stymie the U. N. Security Council, the American television-viewing public is getting a great kick out of a gentleman who is exactly the opposite—Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief of the British U. N. Delegation and now chairman of the Security Council.

Sir Gladyn's firmness in putting Malik in his plaee, his precise, masterful manner and his obvious friendship for the U.S.A. has done more to improve British-American relations than anything since V-E Day.

Were it not for television the American public could not have received the same visual proof of Jebb's operation. As a result they rate him along with Joe DiMaggio and Hopalong Cassidy—at least in the New York metropolitan area.

Interesting thing is that this quite sincere tribute is not particularly appreciated by more stuffy British diplomats, nor by some of the British press. Harold Nicholson, for instance, writes in the London Sunday Observer:

"The frenzied publicity which surrounds Lake Success has imposed upon Sir Gladwyn the odious prominence of a film or baseball star... The circus atmosphere encompassing these momentous deliberations must be galling to a man of his patrician temper."

What the British press apparently does not realize is that the United Nations needed something like this, and needed it badly. As far as the American people were concerned, the U. N. was a dead duck just before Korea. Its quick action in Korea changed this, however, on top of which along came comrade Malik.

Every good drama needs a villain, and Malik obligingly volunteered to play that part. No one from Broadway or Hollywood could have played it any better. He stepped right up to the footlights, though he didn't have to get into the act at all, and gave his television audience all the thrills of Hairbreadth Harry and the Perils of Pauline.

Result: Television users all over the eastern part of the U.S.A. were glued to their sets every afternoon that Malik was acting.

Now comes Sir Gladwyn, the debonair and popular hero, the man who rescues the U. N. from the clutch of comrade Malik. No wonder he has become like Hopalong Cassidy or Joe DiMaggio.

Patrician Temper

Sir Gladwyn doesn't seem to mind the so-called circus atmosphere of Lake Success, despite the British press and despite the fact that he was reared as a career diplomat and prefers a life of easy tempo and pleasant indulgence. He likes Italian cooking, French wines, British country-house conversation, and, for physical exercise, a gentlemanly game of croquet.

The thing that has made him "Jebb-propelled" in America, however, is his burning desire to save the United Nations from Soviet strangulation.

Sir Gladwyn happens to be one of the U. N. founding fathers. In fact, it was Jebb, in a facetious moment at Yalta, when the Big Three couldn't agree on a date for the San Francisco Conference, who suggested April 25th—and it was agreed.

The reason: April 25th is his birthday.

Born April 25, 1900, Jebb has seen 50 years of tumultuous times, including two world wars. But he does not think another is inevitable. He recalls that in the late thirties, he felt sure war would come. But now, he feels the Soviets are not ready, and never will get to the point of readiness so long as the Western world continues its rapid movement toward joint defense.

And he seems to be aware that the television cameras play their part in this effert. When the bright lights go up, in the council chamber at Lake Success, Jebb winces inwardly and wonders if some members will now aske to speak who had no intention of speaking.

But outwardly, he shows no sign of displeasure at a modern medium which is accomplishing what the European powers failed to accomplish in the days of the League of nations—awakening the American public to its role in international affairs.

As for his being a star of American television, Jebb reflects with a wry smile that, if the debate switched from Korea to Ireland, his popularity might vanish over night.

Disapproving Republicans

As the Senate Armed Services Committee listened to Gen. George Marshall answer Sen. William Jenner's questions on his fitness to be secretary of defense, GOP Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon bustled in late. Only vacant seat on the Republican side was next to Jenner. Morse looked at the seat, then at Jenner. With an obvious look of distaste, he moved on to a vacant seat on the Democrat side.

Later in the hearing, as Senator Jenner plied Marshall with unfair questions, aristocratic Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, also a Republican, stuttered in protest. Saltonstall's long, lean face was red with anger, his cultured Back Bay voice shook with indignation.

"I do not know how anyone, in self-respect, can ask these questions," he said.

Diplomatic Pouch

Nelson Rockefeller is under consideration to be American ambassador to the Vatican . . . . U. S. Ambassador Lew Douglas has given blunt notice to the British to stop selling huge quantities of tin and rubber to the Russians . . . . The American ambassador to Yugoslavia has cabled that the Russians are making dangerous progress in their attempts to stir up a revolution against Tito . . . . A disastrous 40 per cent crop failure is what threatens Tito's hold on Yugoslavia. . . . The U. S. military mission in Iran reports that the Russians now have two full airborne armies with complete battle equipment concentrated on the Iranian border.

Merry-Go-Round

The Army handed out shiny, new eagles to 671 lieutenant colonels last week. Of these, however, four out of five went to Regular Army officers—though twice as many reserves were eligible for promotion. . . . The small, nonsubsidized airlines are flying 44 per cent of the Korean airlift. These are the same airlines that the Civil Aeronautics Board has been kicking around and squeezing out of business. . . . Don't breathe a word of this to General MacArthur, but Congressman Dingell, who demanded beer for G. I.'s in Korea, is so allergic he can't drink more than one glass of beer himself.

Foreign Policy Should Be A Campaign Issue

By MARK SULLIVAN

WITH only six weeks left of the Congressional campaign, there is still discussion about whether and to what extent foreign relations should be an issue. Spokesmen in behalf of the Administration say it should not. Republican spokesmen, while stating carefully that the party will support our war effort "to the hilt," declared that the Administration's foreign policy will be discussed in the campaign.

On this as on many public matters there is light in history, in this case very recent history. During the war Republicans — in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in Congress as a whole, and during elections—followed a non-partisan policy, a policy of keeping foreign relations out of domestic politics. After the war this attitude was continued in Congress and in large part was continued into the Presidential campaign of 1948, between candidates Truman and Dewey. Mr. Dewey supported the Administration policy of giving aid to European countries to help them resist communism on that continent. About the Administration's policy toward China however, Mr. Dewey was critical. In a campaign speech he said: "Our government watches . . . China . . . rapidly being overrun . . . "We must 'bring an end to the tragic neglect of . . . China."

That mention by Mr. Dewey of the Truman administration's policy about China was rather allusory; he did not press it; the policy was not made an issue in the campaign. Had it been an issue, had the country been fully informed about what the Administration was doing, much subsequent grief might have been averted, including what is going on in Korea today.

Country Lacked Information

The information existed, what the country lacked was awareness of it, such as could have been brought about by emphasis on it in the 1948 campaign. Preceding the Truman administration, President Roosevelt in February, 1945 at Yalta had made a secret agreement with Stalin by which Russia was promised that after Japan should be conquered Russia would be given Manchuria, a part of China which Japan had seized. This, with other advantages given to Russia in the Yalta agreement, gave leverage and momentum to the Russian communist drive to overcome China.

This advantage to Russian communism was of course a corresponding and terrible disadvantage to the Nationalist government of China under Chiang Kai-Shek, a practically fatal handicap to its resistance to communism. The handicap was increased by the policy the Truman administration adopted toward Chiang and the Nationalist government; the Administration declared that he should enter into a coalition government with the communists, and when he did not, suspended military and other aid we had been giving him during the war.

Had all this been made plain during the Presidential campaign of 1948 or otherwise, it would have been deeply offensive to the American people, and many of them would have grasped what the experts knew, the future military consequences which the fall of China to Russian communism would have for us, consequences of which the beginning is now actual in Korea.

Appeal Successful

With the immunity President Truman had from defense of his China policy in the 1948 campaign, he was free to focus on domestic issues, to appeal to the self-interest of groups. This he flagrantly did. To labor and to farmers he said, in the speech in which he accepted the nomination for President, that if they did not support him they would be "the most ungrateful people in the world." The appeal was especially successful in the case of farmers. To them Mr. Truman promised, in adidtion to existing favors by government, a new one, government provision of storage facilities for crops. By this narrow class and sectional appeal Mr. Truman carried six Mid-Western states which had formerly been strongly Republican, and which in 1948 provided the margin of electoral votes by which he won. Had the Administration's China policy been an issue in the 1948 campaign, had it been made plain and paramount to the voters by Republican criticism of it and defense thereby forced upon the Administration, it is possible the farmers, made aware of this great national issue, would not have subordinated it to a group self-interest.

It is not necessarily material whether making the Administration China policy an issue in the 1948 campaign would have changed the outcome. The emphasis on the importance of it and the public enlightment about it would have been vitally useful, even after the Russian communist drive to overrun China had reached the stage at which it was in 1948. It might have averted the Administration's later and especially damaging actions detrimental to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

By hindsight it is evident that no service was done the country by the Republicans' abstention from making any aspect of foreign policy an issue in the 1948 campaign. The hindsight may provide foresight in the present campaign.

Truman's Message May Be Heard Again In 1952

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — Maybe up in Columbia University there's a famous general who is doing a bit of chuckling these days—and maybe, if he hasn't any political ambitions, he just hasn't paid any attention to the goings-on in Washington of late.

But the observers who, in surveying the political scene, must cast a look ahead at 1952's presidential campaign, have paid a good deal of attention to a certain statement by President Truman which may have a world of meaning when the big contest opens about 18 months hence.

For, in recommending General Marshall to be Secretary of Defense, Mr. Truman has unwittingly demolished perhaps the strongest argument that would have been used against General Eisenhower. It is the argument that the President of the Commander-in-chief should not be a military man but always should be a civilian.

There have been military heroes who have become President of the United States but in the last half century or more the career military man—the officer who had spent his whole life in the military service — did not become chief executive. The last who tried for it was the late General Leonard Wood, who was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920. There was talk for a while after World War I of nominating the late General Pershing, but it never got beyond the talk stage.

Eisenhower Most Discussed

General Eisenhower's name has been more discussed in political circles than that of any other military man in recent years. He might have been nominated by either party in 1948 if he had given the word. He has not indicated that he would or would not accept a nomination in 1952, and it has been taken for granted that, if he did, he would be a nominee on the Republican.

The objection to General Eisenhower which has been heard most often is that a military man should not hold the high office of President. This sort of comment usually emanates from labor-union leaders and "liberals." But in 1948 when the convention to ditch President Truman at the Democratic National Convention was in full swing, James Roosevelt and the leaders of the big labor unions and the liberals were striving for an Eisenhower-Douglas ticket. When the Republicans were thinking about nominating the General, some rumblings were heard about losing the civilian viewpoint in the White House.

It may develop, too, that the followers of Taft and Dewey and the other candidates on the Republican side may go back to the Congressional Record and read what some of the Republican senators said about selecting a military man to head the defense establishment. They might feel that the argument they made would apply to a Commander-in-Chief, too.

Paraphrased Message

The year 1952, however, may be a momentous one in world history. If the impressions conveyed by leaders in Congress and in the executive branch of the government that a showdown with Russia may come in 1952 prove correct, it may be that one party or the other will be urging the nomination of General Eisenhower. Maybe on that occasion one or the other of the parties will look up Mr. Truman's message to Congress of last week and paraphrase it slightly so it might read as follows:

"We are firm believers in the general principle that our government should be headed by a civilian. However, in view of the present critical circumstances and of General Eisenhower's unusual qualifications, we believe that the national interest will be served by making an exception in this case."

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The French Indo-Chinese

AMONG the races of Asia, those who constitute French Indo-China are among the oldest and the least known. There are the Cambodians, the Annamites, the Tonkinese, the Laos, and the descendants of the basic Khmers from whom some of the others descend. There has been an infiltration of Chinese, Hindus, and Siamese, but they have not formed distinct groups in the population.

The civilization of the Khmers goes back beyond the knowledge of history. The amazing remains of temples and other buildings at Angkor, the capital city of the Khmers, bespeak a culture beyond anything that exists in French Indo-China today. The Khmers, who probably came from India, were a highly artistic people. They reached their height as a nation in the 11th Century and by the 14th had practically ceased to exist as a political power.

About 80 per cent of the people of French Indo-China are Annamites, who are affiliated to Chinese culture, their country having long been under Chinese control. Most of these people are Buddhists, although there are some Confucians and Christians.

Since the middle of the 19th Century, what is called Indo-China came under the colonial power of France, which did not do much to develop their resources. Because of the closeness of this area to parts of China, France also, leased an island from China called Kwangchown and developed a sphere of influence in Yunnan. In fact, a railroad was built by the French connecting Yunnanfu, the capital of that province, with Haiphong, a port in the Gulf of Tonkin.

In the years when I lived in China, this was a route for the illicit trade in opium and arms. Yunnan and Kweichow provinces in China were large producers of illegal opium. Also, the various revolutionary, feudal and bandit groups in China were able to move arms into the country by this means.

The French have never been popular either in French Indo-China or in China. They did very little for the people. As a matter of fact, they did little for themselves, failing adequately to develop the important natural resources of French Indo-China.

During World War II, the Japanese had no trouble taking these areas and holding them. The French simply caved in. After the war was over, the future of French Indo-China became very complicated because of the presence of a powerful communist organization, headed by Ho Chi-Minh, who had been a member of the communist apparatus in China in the 1920's. Ho had been trained in Russia and France, is a man of learning and capacity. He suffers from tuberculosis.

His government is called Viet Minh.

The French have placed at the head of their government, the emperor Bao Dai, a member of the ruling family, educated in France and in the past not always regarded as a serious person. This government is called Viet Nam and generally follows the governmental structure of France.

The Bao Dai regime is recognized by the United States and we accord it financial aid. Dean Acheson on May 8 said concerning this:

". . . The United States Government, convinced that neither national independence nor democratic evolution exist in any area dominated by Soviet imperialism, considers the situation to be such as to warrant its according economic aid and military equipment to the associated states of Indo-China and to France in order to assist them in restoring stability and permitting these states to pursue their peaceful and democratic development."

The communists have maintained a constant civil war in French Indo-China. By infiltrating Cambodia, they have managed to smuggle arms from Thailand (Siam). This fight is now developing into a war, supported by Soviet China. The communist movement in this area must be taken seriously because of the unpopularity of the French and of the Bao Dai regime.

On February 1, Dean Acheson said:

"In recognition of the Kremlin of Ho Chi-Minh's communist movement in Indo-China comes as a surprise. The Soviet acknowledgement of this movement should remove any illusions as to the 'Nationalist' nature of Ho Chi-Minh's aims and reveals Ho in his true colors as the mortal enemy of native independence in Indo-China."

It is difficult to understand why our Secretary of State should have been so surprised. After all, the communist movement in French Indo-China is 30 years old.

The Old Razzle-Dazzle

Huge four-engined transport planes are landing only minutes apart on the newly won Kimpo Airfield, on the north flank of the new Inchon beachhead. It begins to appear that we have some of our timing back, some of the old teamwork that was devastatingly successful in the late stages of the war in the Pacific.

Do not make the mistake of counting a victory before it is achieved. But the average American, reading accounts of Marines holding the approaches to the Kimpo Airfield while Air Force planes land there and Army troops hold the flanks, suddenly realizes that here is real unification at work. His imagination is fired when he is told that ships, planes and men were gathered from all parts of the world to make the Inchon end run successful.

He is thrilled to see the high command rolling with the punches, using every man and every weapon to best advantage. What pleases him most is to see the recently fumbling, quarrelsome U. S. military machine clicking off the plays in effortless style.

It isn't all blue sky. The lion's share of this country's military might is committed to cleaning up a third rate opponent who nearly had us down. There is an enormous amount of work to be done, and we have hardly started. But it appears that we have ironed out a lot of the bugs and that the old razzle dazzle hasn't been forgotten entirely.

Rumors That Feed Hope

Unnamed military experts at Washington are quoted by a news service as believing that reports of peace overtures by the North Korean communists are premature—though the experts see the position of the red armies as virtually hopeless.

Laymen are at liberty to take either view, or neither. But whether these persistent rumors are premature or logical, the opinions of the experts nourish the hope that the war is nearing an end—unless communist China or Russia decides to intervene directly.

The possibility continues to exist, although apparently remotely, that the North Koreans may succeed in concentrating around Seoul and walling in the American expeditionary force there. The plan has been well conceived and brilliantly begun, but no one can be absolutely sure that it will quickly succeed. Always the fog of war must be taken into account.

Still, and even though there may be no real basis for them, rumors of peace feelers sound good to American ears. They confirm that the outcome of the fighting is now taken for granted, even if victory may be deferred. When the North Koreans are convinced they cannot win, the end will not be far away.

MacArthur Came To Stay

A GI who weathered the Anzio beachhead was heard to say that one of his worst moments came when he watched the fleet of assorted ships and craft that brought him and his buddies there sail over the horizon. He said he knew they would be back, but he still felt terribly alone.

Beachhead veterans are well aware that there is little time left over during the initial period of an assault for worry. But the wise veteran always has his eye open for signs that show the beachhead is secure. His best clue is the type of supplies unloaded.

There must have been considerable whooping and hollering the other day around the docks at Inchon, the newest name to be added to a long list of beaches hit and won since 1942. For amid the steady stream of supplies being shuttled ashore was a set of office furniture. Who for? Why, Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He's coming in to stay, you know.

It is easly understandable that from that point on there was little fretting about the status of the battle.

Socialism As Usual

In Britain, as in the United States, politics rarely adjourns. Certainly politics is in session there right now, despite the Korean war and its manifold implications. The proof is readily found in the Labor government's decision to go ahead with the nationalization of the steel industry.

This it can do, of course. Legislation authorizing this step is already on the books. But the government had been singing very low on this subject since last spring's election, which it won by a perilously slim margin. Opponents had assumed that it would continue this policy in the present critical situation.

The reversal took them by surprise and some Conservatives are still rubbing their eyes. They had not seen an about-face as good politics for Prime Minister Attlee.

But to Britons want socialism as usual in this emergency? That is the issue, if the Conservatives can make them see it.

Higher Auto Prices

Predictions are numerous that prices of all makes of automobiles will be boosted before the year's end. Several manufacturers have announced increases, and it is hardly likely they would have done so unless they had reason to believe the entire industry would be forced to follow. Wages continue to rise, and so do costs of all materials that enter into an automobile.

Automobiles now cost twice as much as they did 10 years ago, and there is nothing to indicate that the inflationary spiral in the motor car industry has lost speed. Nothing is heard today of the "poor man's car," and apparently the public has the money to buy vehicles as fast as they roll off the assembly lines. With production this year setting a new record, most dealers continue to have waiting lists of buyers.

Who Cares For Money

A new use for money has been found. A piggy bank weighted with $500 in bills and silver was used as a doorstop by a homemaker in a Western city while she dropped in next door for a chat. When she returned, it was gone.

The carelessness of people with money is one of the amazing things in the world. So many save up considerable sums, and then leave them stuffed in a mattress or inside a desk, or in any other place where a thief would naturally look first.

Banks evidently still have a big job to do in the way of popularizing their services. This is one matter in which the individual's carefully cultivated sales resistance may cost him money.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Peculiar Hernias

THE DIAPHRAGM is a dome-shaped sheath of muscle that separates the thorax from the abdominal cavity. It is not solid inasmuch as there are openings through which pass blood vessels, nerves, and even the tube that leads from the mouth to the stomach (esophagus). These apertures are necessary but they make the diaphragm vulnerable to accidents and other forms of trauma.

Should the opening that surrounds the esophagus, for example, become relaxed or torn, it is easy to see mow the stomach or intestine may protrude into the chest cavity (hiatus hernia). The former is sometimes referred to as an "upside down stomach." Occasionally the hole through the diaphragm is so large that virtually all of the intestinal contents encroach upon the lungs and heart. This is one cause of difficulty in breathing, especially in newborn infants. These children come into the world with a defective diaphragm and unless the disorrer is recognized promptly and corrected surgically death may ensue.

Although riatus hernia may be congenital in origin, it is more commonly acquired after birth. Individuals over 40 are most susceptible and women are favored two to one. The obese are more prone to the disease than the lean. Increased abdominal pressure against an already weakened diaphragm probably plays a major role and it is no wonder so many victims volunteer the information that the hernia followed abdominal strain from prolonged coughing, vomiting, or pregnancy.

Some men and women go through life unaware that a hiatus hernia is present; others complain of indigestion, gas, belching, regurgitation, pressure over the upper abdomen or difficulty in swallowing. Symptoms may appear only after meals because it is at this time that the stomach is distended and crowds the neighboring organs. On the other hand, most patients are uncomfortable only when lying down because, in the recumbent position, the stomach and colon do not have gravity to contend with and these organs have no trouble sneaking through the gap into the chest cavity. Standing up or vomiting often will bring relief.

Now and then pain develops beneath the breastbone, simulating angina, and the "old pump" may be blamed, especially if an electrocardiogram shows abnormalities. These changes in the tracing are due to the crowding of the distended intestinal tract against the heart. When the stomach is empty, however, or the individual is standing or sitting quietly in a chair, the electrocardiogram usually is normal.

• — • — •

Treatment depends upon the severity of the condition and the amount of discomfort that exists. Those who are not bothered except in a mild way should forget the abnormality. When distress is moderate, eating smaller meals at more frequent intervals is advised. Stooping and lifting heavy weights should be avoided and it is wise to lie down after meals and wear a tight abdominal support or girdle routinely. Medicines that tend to relax the stomach muscles also are helpful. Surgery is recommended when discomfort is becoming progressively worse or X-rays reveal that the hernia is increasing in size. Operation involves drawing the stomach or intentines into the abdominal cavity and suturing the opening in the diaphragm.

Mainly for rheumatoid arthritis. It has been tried also in the treatment of rheumatic fever, tuberculosis, pneumonia, cancer, leukemia, allergy, delirium tremens and alcoholic psychosis, Bright's disease, high blood pressure, gout, and many other maladies. Its effects on the majority of disorders is yet to be evaluated.

BRINGING HIS WIFE ON BOARD

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

TV Audience Rates Sir Gladwyn Jebb With Hopalong Cassidy; British Press Frowns On American Enthusiasm For British U. N. Hero

Says DREW PEARSON

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chairman of the U. N. Security Council.)

WASHINGTON—After a month of watching sour-puss Soviet delegate Malik rant, rave and stymie the U. N. Security Council, the American television-viewing public is getting a great kick out of a gentleman who is exactly the opposite—Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief of the British U. N. Delegation and now chairman of the Security Council.

Sir Gladyn's firmness in putting Malik in his place, his precise, masterful manner and his obvious friendship for the U.S.A. has done more to improve British-American relations than anything since V-E Day.

Were it not for television the American public could not have received the same visual proof of Jebb's operation. As a result they rate him along with Joe DiMaggio and Hopalong Cassidy—at least in the New York metropolitan area.

Interesting thing is that this quite sincere tribute is not particularly appreciated by more stuffy British diplomats, nor by some of the British press. Harold Nicholson, for instance, writes in the London Sunday Observer:

"The frenzied publicity which surrounds Lake Success has imposed upon Sir Gladwyn the odious prominence of a film or baseball star... The circus atmosphere encompassing these momentous deliberations must be galling to a man of his patrician temper."

What the British press apparently does not realize is that the United Nations needed something like this, and needed it badly. As far as the American people were concerned, the U. N. was a dead duck just before Korea. Its quick action in Korea changed this, however, on top of which along came comrade Malik.

Every good drama needs a villain, and Malik obligingly volunteered to play that part. No one from Broadway or Hollywood could have played it any better. He stepped right up to the footlights, though he didn't have to get into the act at all, and gave his television audience all the thrills of Hairbreadth Harry and the Perils of Pauline.

Result: Television users all over the eastern part of the U.S.A. were glued to their sets every afternoon that Malik was acting.

Now comes Sir Gladwyn, the debonair and popular hero, the man who rescues the U. N. from the clutch of comrade Malik. No wonder he has become like Hopalong Cassidy or Joe DiMaggio.

Patrician Temper

Sir Gladwyn doesn't seem to mind the so-called circus atmosphere of Lake Success, despite the British press and despite the fact that he was reared as a career diplomat and prefers a life of easy tempo and pleasant indulgence. He likes Italian cooking, French wines, British country-house conversation, and, for physical exercise, a gentlemanly game of croquet.

The thing that has made him "Jebb-propelled" in America, however, is his burning desire to save the United Nations from Soviet strangulation.

Sir Gladwyn happens to be one of the U. N. founding fathers. In fact, it was Jebb, in a facetious moment at Yalta, when the Big Three couldn't agree on a date for the San Francisco Conference, who suggested April 25th—and it was agreed.

The reason: April 25th is his birthday.

Born April 25, 1900, Jebb has seen 50 years of tumultuous times, including two world wars. But he does not think another is inevitable. He recalls that in the late thirties, he felt sure war would come. But now, he feels the Soviets are not ready, and never will get to the point of readiness so long as the Western world continues its rapid movement toward joint defense.

And he seems to be aware that the television cameras play their part in this effert. When the bright lights go up, in the council chamber at Lake Success, Jebb winces inwardly and wonders if some members will now aske to speak who had no intention of speaking.

But outwardly, he shows no sign of displeasure at a modern medium which is accomplishing what the European powers failed to accomplish in the days of the League of nations—awakening the American public to its role in international affairs.

As for his being a star of American television, Jebb reflects with a wry smile that, if the debate switched from Korea to Ireland, his popularity might vanish over night.

Disapproving Republicans

As the Senate Armed Services Committee listened to Gen. George Marshall answer Sen. William Jenner's questions on his fitness to be secretary of defense, GOP Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon bustled in late. Only vacant seat on the Republican side was next to Jenner. Morse looked at the seat, then at Jenner. With an obvious look of distaste, he moved on to a vacant seat on the Democrat side.

Later in the hearing, as Senator Jenner plied Marshall with unfair questions, aristocratic Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, also a Republican, stuttered in protest. Saltonstall's long, lean face was red with anger, his cultured Back Bay voice shook with indignation.

"I do not know how anyone, in self-respect, can ask these questions," he said.

Diplomatic Pouch

Nelson Rockefeller is under consideration to be American ambassador to the Vatican . . . . U. S. Ambassador Lew Douglas has given blunt notice to the British to stop selling huge quantities of tin and rubber to the Russians . . . . The American ambassador to Yugoslavia has cabled that the Russians are making dangerous progress in their attempts to stir up a revolution against Tito . . . . A disastrous 40 per cent crop failure is what threatens Tito's hold on Yugoslavia. . . . The U. S. military mission in Iran reports that the Russians now have two full airborne armies with complete battle equipment concentrated on the Iranian border.

Merry-Go-Round

The Army handed out shiny, new eagles to 671 lieutenant colonels last week. Of these, however, four out of five went to Regular Army officers—though twice as many reserves were eligible for promotion. . . . The small, nonsubsidized airlines are flying 44 per cent of the Korean airlift. These are the same airlines that the Civil Aeronautics Board has been kicking around and squeezing out of business. . . . Don't breathe a word of this to General MacArthur, but Congressman Dingell, who demanded beer for G. I.'s in Korea, is so allergic he can't drink more than one glass of beer himself.

Foreign Policy Should Be A Campaign Issue

By MARK SULLIVAN

WITH only six weeks left of the Congressional campaign, there is still discussion about whether and to what extent foreign relations should be an issue. Spokesmen in behalf of the Administration say it should not. Republican spokesmen, while stating carefully that the party will support our war effort "to the hilt," declared that the Administration's foreign policy will be discussed in the campaign.

On this as on many public matters there is light in history, in this case very recent history. During the war Republicans — in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in Congress as a whole, and during elections—followed a non-partisan policy, a policy of keeping foreign relations out of domestic politics. After the war this attitude was continued in Congress and in large part was continued into the Presidential campaign of 1948, between candidates Truman and Dewey. Mr. Dewey supported the Administration policy of giving aid to European countries to help them resist communism on that continent. About the Administration's policy toward China however, Mr. Dewey was critical. In a campaign speech he said: "Our government watches . . . China . . . rapidly being overrun . . . "We must 'bring an end to the tragic neglect of . . . China."

That mention by Mr. Dewey of the Truman administration's policy about China was rather allusory; he did not press it; the policy was not made an issue in the campaign. Had it been an issue, had the country been fully informed about what the Administration was doing, much subsequent grief might have been averted, including what is going on in Korea today.

Country Lacked Information

The information existed, what the country lacked was awareness of it, such as could have been brought about by emphasis on it in the 1948 campaign. Preceding the Truman administration, President Roosevelt in February, 1945 at Yalta had made a secret agreement with Stalin by which Russia was promised that after Japan should be conquered Russia would be given Manchuria, a part of China which Japan had seized. This, with other advantages given to Russia in the Yalta agreement, gave leverage and momentum to the Russian communist drive to overcome China.

This advantage to Russian communism was of course a corresponding and terrible disadvantage to the Nationalist government of China under Chiang Kai-Shek, a practically fatal handicap to its resistance to communism. The handicap was increased by the policy the Truman administration adopted toward Chiang and the Nationalist government; the Administration declared that he should enter into a coalition government with the communists, and when he did not, suspended military and other aid we had been giving him during the war.

Had all this been made plain during the Presidential campaign of 1948 or otherwise, it would have been deeply offensive to the American people, and many of them would have grasped what the experts knew, the future military consequences which the fall of China to Russian communism would have for us, consequences of which the beginning is now actual in Korea.

Appeal Successful

With the immunity President Truman had from defense of his China policy in the 1948 campaign, he was free to focus on domestic issues, to appeal to the self-interest of groups. This he flagrantly did. To labor and to farmers he said, in the speech in which he accepted the nomination for President, that if they did not support him they would be "the most ungrateful people in the world." The appeal was especially successful in the case of farmers. To them Mr. Truman promised, in adidtion to existing favors by government, a new one, government provision of storage facilities for crops. By this narrow class and sectional appeal Mr. Truman carried six Mid-Western states which had formerly been strongly Republican, and which in 1948 provided the margin of electoral votes by which he won. Had the Administration's China policy been an issue in the 1948 campaign, had it been made plain and paramount to the voters by Republican criticism of it and defense thereby forced upon the Administration, it is possible the farmers, made aware of this great national issue, would not have subordinated it to a group self-interest.

It is not necessarily material whether making the Administration China policy an issue in the 1948 campaign would have changed the outcome. The emphasis on the importance of it and the public enlightment about it would have been vitally useful, even after the Russian communist drive to overrun China had reached the stage at which it was in 1948. It might have averted the Administration's later and especially damaging actions detrimental to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

By hindsight it is evident that no service was done the country by the Republicans' abstention from making any aspect of foreign policy an issue in the 1948 campaign. The hindsight may provide foresight in the present campaign.

Truman's Message May Be Heard Again In 1952

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — Maybe up in Columbia University there's a famous general who is doing a bit of chuckling these days—and maybe, if he hasn't any political ambitions, he just hasn't paid any attention to the goings-on in Washington of late.

But the observers who, in surveying the political scene, must cast a look ahead at 1952's presidential campaign, have paid a good deal of attention to a certain statement by President Truman which may have a world of meaning when the big contest opens about 18 months hence.

For, in recommending General Marshall to be Secretary of Defense, Mr. Truman has unwittingly demolished perhaps the strongest argument that would have been used against General Eisenhower. It is the argument that the President of the Commander-in-chief should not be a military man but always should be a civilian.

There have been military heroes who have become President of the United States but in the last half century or more the career military man—the officer who had spent his whole life in the military service — did not become chief executive. The last who tried for it was the late General Leonard Wood, who was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920. There was talk for a while after World War I of nominating the late General Pershing, but it never got beyond the talk stage.

Eisenhower Most Discussed

General Eisenhower's name has been more discussed in political circles than that of any other military man in recent years. He might have been nominated by either party in 1948 if he had given the word. He has not indicated that he would or would not accept a nomination in 1952, and it has been taken for granted that, if he did, he would be a nominee on the Republican.

The objection to General Eisenhower which has been heard most often is that a military man should not hold the high office of President. This sort of comment usually emanates from labor-union leaders and "liberals." But in 1948 when the convention to ditch President Truman at the Democratic National Convention was in full swing, James Roosevelt and the leaders of the big labor unions and the liberals were striving for an Eisenhower-Douglas ticket. When the Republicans were thinking about nominating the General, some rumblings were heard about losing the civilian viewpoint in the White House.

It may develop, too, that the followers of Taft and Dewey and the other candidates on the Republican side may go back to the Congressional Record and read what some of the Republican senators said about selecting a military man to head the defense establishment. They might feel that the argument they made would apply to a Commander-in-Chief, too.

Paraphrased Message

The year 1952, however, may be a momentous one in world history. If the impressions conveyed by leaders in Congress and in the executive branch of the government that a showdown with Russia may come in 1952 prove correct, it may be that one party or the other will be urging the nomination of General Eisenhower. Maybe on that occasion one or the other of the parties will look up Mr. Truman's message to Congress of last week and paraphrase it slightly so it might read as follows:

"We are firm believers in the general principle that our government should be headed by a civilian. However, in view of the present critical circumstances and of General Eisenhower's unusual qualifications, we believe that the national interest will be served by making an exception in this case."

It is difficult to understand why our Secretary of State should have been so surprised. After all, the communist movement in French Indo-China is 30 years old.

Remodeling Is Progressing

Progress is being made in the modernization work at the Commercial Bank, the Liberty Trust Company, and Burton's Inc.

Also scheduled to reopen its Baltimore Street branch is the O.P.O. Clothing Store of the A.B. Joffe Company, New York.

Diesel-electric locomotives will be used in the future on the B. and O. Railroad's "Metropolitan Special," which runs between Washington and St. Louis, according to an announcement yesterday.

Use of Diesel locomotives on the passenger train will cut a big chunk out of the schedules both east and westbound.

The train will speed up its schedule by one hour and 15 minutes on the trip from Washington to St. Louis and by 39 minutes on the eastbound return trip.

More Giving Needed In Chest Campaign

Statistics are helping to plan this year's Community Chest campaign, according to George M. Martin, chairman of the Classified Section of the organization.

The number of contributors to the the Cumberland Chest has varied between 7,000 to 11,000, the latter number during the war years when the Chest was a part of the War Fund Campaigns.

Employe giving, struck the fancy of Martin for it is with this group that he is primarily concerned as head of the Classified Section. Community Chests and Councils, Inc., gathers data from Community Chests throughout the United States and summarizes much information. Last year, employes in Chest cities the size of Cumberland gave 32 per cent of the total amount raised; Cumberland was below this total, standing at the 25 per cent mark.

Raising the amount of employes' contributions to the Chest by 7 per cent would increase the amount given $5,899.25. Martin observed that this normal increase would just about fill the bill this year. The Chest has a goal of $3,519 larger than the amount raised last year and in addition, there will be losses through deaths and removals from the city amounting to about $1,500.

"We need to translate the general idea of the Chest to the specific help that is given some family or individual," stated Martin, as he put his slide rule away. "Our problems this year will be to add interest in every group and soon we will surpass the national averages for communities of this size."

Miss Jean Marie Helena Kirtley, daughter of Mrs. Arthur D. Johnson, 30 Greene Street, and Howard Leroy Kirtley, Elmwood Lane, will become the bride of Pvt. Glenn William Gillum, Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gillum, Bedford Road, today.

The military wedding ceremony is to be solemnized at a nuptial high mass at 9 o'clock in SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church, with Rev. Louis Glantz, O.F.M. Cap., officiating. Bouquets of white flowers, palms and ferns are being used with the candelabra of lighted tapers in the decorations of the altar.

Miss Marian Donahue is to be the bride's maid of honor; Paula Lavaughen Johnson will be her sister's junior bridesmaid; Helen Lee Bowles is flower girl and James Cumiskey, ring bearer. Sgt. Eugene Likens, Washington, is serving as Pvt. Gillum's best man and the ushers are Robert Lee Kirtley, brother of the bride-elect, and Herbert Gillum, brother of the bridegroom. Thomas B. Cumiskey, Jr., will be vocalist accompanied by Prof. Peter Schumacher. He will sing the "Ave Maria," and "O Lord I Am Not Worthy," and while the bride is placing her bouquet at the altar of the Blessed Virgin will sing, "On This Happy Wedding Day."

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, is wearing a gown of white satin, fashioned with a net yoke, off the shoulder effect, outlined with a satin bertha, long tapering sleeves ending in a lily point on the hand, a fitted bodice and flared skirt with sweeping train. Her three quarter length veil, edged with wide lace is held by a matching lace cap with satin ribbon and natural white flowers at either side. She is carrying an arm bouquet of lilies and baby mums, tied with white satin ribbon and backed with lace, which she will place on the Virgin's altar, and a white prayerbook with gardenia marker.

Her maid of honor's gown is of pink taffeta, made with a fitted off the shoulder bodice, and full skirt. With it she is wearing matching mitts and a headdress of pink taffeta and illusion and pink roses on either side. Her bouquet of rust colored dahlahs has green gold streamers.

The junior bride's maid's gown is of blue taffeta made with a portrait neckline and full skirt. She also has matching mits and a headdress of blue taffeta and illusion with blue flowers. Her bouquet is of yellow dahlahs and is tied with rainbow colored ribbons.

The little flower girl has a yellow organdy frock with bonnet to match and rainbow streamers on her basket of rose petals. The little ring bearer is wearing all white and is carrying a heart shaped satin pillow with the ring.

Both mothers have chosen Navy blue for their dresses and accessories and will have corsages of gardenias.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Ursuline Academy and attended Ursuline College, Louisville, Ky., and Ursuline Business School. She is employed by the Acme Market.

Mrs. Johnson is entertaining the bridal party and immediate families at a wedding breakfast at her home following the ceremony. White flowers and streamers are being used in the decorations. A four tiered wedding cake adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom will center the table for the wedding reception beginning at 2:30. The hostess is being assisted in serving by Mrs. Thomas B. Cumiskey, Sr., Mrs. Mary Shaffer, aunts of the bride; and Mrs. John E. Bowles.

Hunting Season Again Poses Problems For Motorists

"Three problems, directly affecting motorists, always come with the hunting season," said Charles F. Pratt, supervisor of touring services, D. C. division, American Automobile Association.

"They are: checking with State laws and regulations regarding the transport of rifles and shotguns in automobiles; resisting the temptation to bang away at highway directional signs and markers; and the safe handling of firearms while on a hunting trip, including the knowledge that virtually all of the States forbid firing from the window of a car."

Expert marksmen with a flair for parading their talents, the A. A. A. club executive explained, annually ruin tens of thousands of dollars worth of more-or-less permanent signs erected to guide motorists or to warn them of dangerous curves or intersections in the highways.

"The loss of these signs comes from teen-agers who hunt souvenirs and from adults," he said, "who cannot resist the temptation to make shooting gallery targets out of expensive wooden, sheet metal or porcelain-coated road signs. This form of vandalism is, however, being met in a number of States with the imposition of heavy penalties where convictions are secured against persons who ruin, or deface markers and directional signs.

"Check with State authorities or your automobile club for information regarding carrying firearms during the hunting season. When legal requirements have been met, including your hunting licence, then take the precautions every hunter should take who goes into the woods:

"Treat every gun as though it were loaded, when you pick it up, 'break it' to make sure. Never point a gun at anything you are not willing to kill.

"Don't put it in your car, or approach a car in which people are seated, unless your gun is "broken," or unloaded, and pointing downward. Never keep a loaded gun in the house or in your garage. And never fire at game if any person is in the line of fire."

Crowds Give Big Send-Off To Unit

KEYSER, W. Va.—Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons turned out in Keyser yesterday to see "Keyser's Own" Battery C, 201st Field Artiller, W. Va. National Guard leave for active military duty.

With the Boyce-Houser Post American Legion band heading the procession, the some 80 Guardsmen marched from the armory to the B. and O. Station, an hour before the scheduled time for arrival of the troop train from the west.

It was a solemn crowd that stood on the sidewalks and went to the railroad station to stand with the boys as they waited for their train. The guard special was late arriving and families and friends had time to talk with the guardsmen until the train arrived.

There was no embarrassment as tears flowed and even men were unashamed to be seen with wet eyes. The departure of the guard unit brought closer to home the thought that the country is in a war in a far off land.

Not until after the train left the station did the crowd move slowly homeward. There was no cheering as the "boys" left. It was a solemn occasion that ended with the slow moving crowd leaving the station about 3 p. m. after the guardsmen left for Fort Benning, Ga.

Two Parsons Brothers Held

PARSONS, W. Va. — Raymond Thompson, 21, of Parsons is being held in the Tucker County Jail for Grand Jury action, charged with carrying a dangerous weapon.

He is a brother of Jimmy Thompson, who is also being held on a charge of breaking and entering the Lambert's Clothing Store and the theft of $150 worth of clothing and jewelry, which has recovered, authorities said.

Two others involved in the breaking and entering case were also given a preliminary hearing. LeRoy Phillips, 19, is being held for action of the Grand jury, and a juvenile is being detained to appear at the September term of court which convenes here Tuesday.

number of feet traveled before the brake is applied—that's the driver's reaction distance. His braking distance is from the second mark to the front of the vehicle. The total of these two distances is the number of feet required to stop.

According to the C. and P., the driving tests are being made to impress on all drivers that the average distance needed to bring a vehicle to a stop is greater than the average motorist usually realizes. To impress this fact on each of its drivers, the company has each man to be tested first make an estimate of stopping distance which he later compares with his actual results. Usually the estimate given is somewhat less than the 37 to 39 feet required. Company safety people also pointed out that 40 miles per hour—double the test speed—requires a stopping distance of not twice as long but four times as great.

A final surprising fact developed by the tests is that heavy company trucks can be stopped about as quickly as the light vehicle. This is explained by the larger and more powerful brakes and the greater road traction of the heavy dual tires.

About 80 per cent of the 55 drivers of the Cumberland area have taken the test and the others will be given an opportunity next week.

Officials said the safety expert conducting the tests here reports most of the drivers have been able to stop their vehicles within the 37 to 39 feet normal range.

Officials said the demonstrations are being made to let drives learn for themselves just how far a vehicle will travel after they decide to stop.

Two Parsons Brothers Held

PARSONS, W. Va. — Raymond Thompson, 21, of Parsons is being held in the Tucker County Jail for Grand Jury action, charged with carrying a dangerous weapon.

He is a brother of Jimmy Thompson, who is also being held on a charge of breaking and entering the Lambert's Clothing Store and the theft of $150 worth of clothing and jewelry, which has recovered, authorities said.

Two others involved in the breaking and entering case were also given a preliminary hearing. LeRoy Phillips, 19, is being held for action of the Grand jury, and a juvenile is being detained to appear at the September term of court which convenes here Tuesday.

number of feet traveled before the brake is applied—that's the driver's reaction distance. His braking distance is from the second mark to the front of the vehicle. The total of these two distances is the number of feet required to stop.

According to the C. and P., the driving tests are being made to impress on all drivers that the average distance needed to bring a vehicle to a stop is greater than the average motorist usually realizes. To impress this fact on each of its drivers, the company has each man to be tested first make an estimate of stopping distance which he later compares with his actual results. Usually the estimate given is somewhat less than the 37 to 39 feet required. Company safety people also pointed out that 40 miles per hour—double the test speed—requires a stopping distance of not twice as long but four times as great.

A final surprising fact developed by the tests is that heavy company trucks can be stopped about as quickly as the light vehicle. This is explained by the larger and more powerful brakes and the greater road traction of the heavy dual tires.

About 80 per cent of the 55 drivers of the Cumberland area have taken the test and the others will be given an opportunity next week.

Officials said the safety expert conducting the tests here reports most of the drivers have been able to stop their vehicles within the 37 to 39 feet normal range.

Officials said the demonstrations are being made to let drives learn for themselves just how far a vehicle will travel after they decide to stop.

Porky Gets 10-Under 62 At Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver, the good-natured round man from Seattle, Wash., trimmed the Milburn Country Club course in 10 strokes under par, a 62, to take the 36-hole lead in the $15,000 Kansas City Open Golf Tournament today with a total of 134.

Playing near-perfect golf from tee to green on the 6,645 yard par 72 layout, Oliver was out in 30, six strokes under par, and came in with a four-under 32.

At that, Oliver was only one stroke ahead of little Jack Burke, Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who had a 69 and a mid-tournament total of 135.

Oliver was happy over his game today because "it proves to me that I'm playing my best golf."

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., and Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N. Y., each shot 67s and shared the 138 bracket with Skip Alexander, Knoxville, Tenn., who had a 70 today.

The score of 150 was the qualifying limit for the third round of 64 shooters.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was in the running with a 70 and 142. Cary Middlecoff, former U. S. Open champion from Memphis, Tenn., and Ormand Beach, Fla., shot his second 73 and was well off the pace.

Athletic Director Bernard Weissman said the meet, held at the University of Chicago field house each spring, was abandoned because it had become "administratively impossible to properly conduct."

60,000 To See Yanks, Boston Tangle Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP) — A near-capacity crowd of more than 60,000 will jam its way into Yankee Stadium tomorrow to watch the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox battle in the opener of a vital two-game series.

If it should rain in the afternoon the diamond will be left covered and an effort made to play the game under the lights, with the dayside tickets still good. With the American League race nearing another hectic finish, each of the three clubs in the contention is anxious to play every game scheduled.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks named his chubby southpaw, Eddie Lopat, to oppose Mel Parnell, another lefty, in the first game. The two have identical 17-8 winning records for the season.

Stengel had intended to throw his ace righthander, Viv Raschi, against the hose tomorrow and use Lopat Sunday. But changed his plans after Raschi developed a sore arm in Chicago four days ago. Raschi threw hard at the stadium today and insisted he was ready, but Casey decided to play it safe.

The Yankees assembled at the stadium in hopes of getting in some batting practice. Several of their number have been hitting very poorly of late. But a drizzling rain kept the batters in the locker room, and only the pitchers worked out briefly.

"Way I've got it figured," Stengel continued, "The team that wins 98 games will do it. Means we've got to win seven out of 10. Same for those fellows (The Tigers). That's a lot of wins. One thing, my boys aren't much for choking up."

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 22—Henry Moomau's 25-yard touchdown gallop in the final minute of play enabled Coach Walt Owens' Petersburg High School Vikings to battle Strasburg (Va.) High School to a 12-12 deadlock in the mud here this afternoon.

Petersburg had spotted the Virginians a 12-0 lead in the second quarter and then put on a garrison finish in the final period to knot the count.

Alton Taff bolted over from the 5-yard line to culminate Strasburg's 80-yard drive early in the second period. Eleven running plays and two passes featured the march.

With 1½ minutes remaining before intermission, Donnie Miller, Strasburg halfback, took Petersburg's punt on his own 42, cut to the sidelines, reversed his field and ran 58 yards for the td that gave the visitors a 12-0 advantage.

Moomau's 2-yard pass to Roy Vance in the end zone produced the Viking's initial t.d. in the 4th period with only 4 minutes left to play. Petersburg's 51-yard drive was marked by five running plays and two passes, one from Moomau to Donald Sites being good for 18 yards.

On the following kickoff, Petersburg intercepted a Strasburg lateral on the PHS 44 and in five plays put over the tying six-pointer. Three running plays and two passes, Moomau to Thorne and Moomau to Huffman carried to the 25. Moomau faded back to pass but finding no receivers he sprinted for the score. The pass for extra point was batted down.

Kolmer Is Promoted
Cage Rules Changed
2-Minute Rule Out
Ricker's Best Fight

By C. V. BURNS

The many friends of Harold Smith Kolmer will be glad to learn that he has been elevated to the post of assistant director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Mr. Kolmer, a native of Lonaconing, has served the commission and its predecessors for more than 31 years as executive secretary.

Now the oldest official of the department in point of service, Kolmer has seen it grow from a unit issuing 65,000 gunning licenses a year to one licensing 380,000 hunters, and from 18,000 fishing licenses to 90,000 a year.

Harold and his brother, Dr. John A. Kolmer, noted scientist active in polio research at Temple University, Philadelphia, were born on Douglas Avenue in Lonaconing. The family moved to Baltimore when Harold was in his teens.

When the 1950-51 basketball season gets under way in November the controversial two-minute rule will be among the missing.

Under the 2-minute rule, a team fouled in the last two minutes, got the free throw and then was given possession of the ball.

Now a fouled team can either take a shot or waive it to keep possession. If it takes the free throw and makes it, the other team is given the ball.

Officials' time-out in high school play is now automatically eliminated.

The game will be returned to full-time play under uniform rules which prevailed during the 1944-45 season.

At the same time, the present regulation on intentional fouls, which calls for an additional free throw to be awarded if a foul is intentional or avoidable, will be strictly enforced. It was because of this failure to curb excessive fouling that the two-minute rule was included last season.

Other rules changes for the coming season, include:

1. Clock is to be stopped on all held balls.
2. Substitution to be made only when the clock is stopped (when a foul is called, a held ball, a time-out, or for an unusual delay); otherwise a time-out is charged.
3. The molded type ball will be the only official ball used.

4. A player who commits a foul must raise his hand over his head; a technical foul is charged for failure to do so.

George (Chuck) Karmarkovich, star of last season's Waynesburg College quint who wound up the campaign in a blaze of glory with the Altoona Flyers of the All-American Pro League in which Cumberland's Dukes won the title, has signed his contract with the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association.

"Chuck" played two years of varsity basketball at Waynesburg and his average was 17 points in 48 contests.

Karmarkovich has been rejected for army duty due to a punctured ear drum.

The Bullets, incidentally, will open their 66-game league season with the World Champion Minneapolis Lakers on Wednesday, November 1 at the Coliseum, Baltimore.

Baltimore is in the eastern division of the league with Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Syracuse. The western division comprises Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Rochester, Chicago, Tri-City and Fort Wayne.

Elkins (W.Va.) will be the scene of the Bullets-Washington Caps league game on Sunday, January 21. Baltimore is slated to play Minneapolis at Johnstown, Pa., January 23.

It was a sizzling 10-rounder between big fellows with Perroni gaining the nod at the end of 10 rounds.

A Canton (Ohio) promoter wanted the bout so bad he made Ricker an offer to transfer it there but "Vic" said no.

Perroni was in big demand at that time. He whipped Mike McTigue and boxed Maxie Rosenbloom a no decision bout that year and later whipped Johnny Risko and Tony Galento.

In 1935 Patsy upset the dope when he went the 10-round limit with Joe Louis in Detroit. Perroni was decisioned by Louis who was flattening opponents right and left at that time. The clever Italian boxer quit the ring in 1941.

Kentucky Plays Louisiana State In Night Battle

Maryland To Open At Georgia Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Here it is the fourth Saturday in September, the leaves are tumbling, the swallows are heading back to Capistrano, the major league races are in the stretch—and college football is back.

Tomorrow's schedule will be a sort of feeler, for most of the major threats for national honors will spend the next week sharpening their passes, and defenses. But it's here, with even a couple of intersectional battles on tap.

The Southeastern Conference will not waste any time with preliminaries. The loop gets down to serious business right off when Louisiana State and Kentucky play at night in Lexington.

This probably is the most significant game of the day, for both these schools are rated top contenders for the loop crown.

Kentucky, on the basis of last year's score, looms the favorite, but LSU also will be stronger and could come up with an upset.

Terps Invade Athens

The other two most important contests pit Southern Methodist against Georgia Tech at Dallas, also under the arcs, and Maryland against Georgia at Athens.

Despite the loss of Doak Walker, Southern Methodist still has Kyle Rote, a bad guy to have on the other side. Georgia could put up a battle against Maryland, but this is the year Jim Tatum is shooting the works and trying for a national title, so his eleven will go into the clash a heavy favorite.

Shepherd Rams Surprise Tech

Shepherd tried a desperation field goal in the last quarter from Tech's 12, but the ball was about 10 feet short of the crossbar.

Shepherd fought to the champs' 10 in the first quarter, but could move no farther. The second was on even terms, with neither team threatening.

Tech went to Shepherd's 10 in the third period, but they also were fought to a standstill at the stripe. Shepherd kept possession of the ball through most of the last quarter and their goal was never seriously threatened.

Gifts Are Barred For Series Players

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler today reminded owners of teams participating in the world series they must not pay bonuses or give presents to players.

He also said a player released or transferred by a participating club in the same league shall not be given any of the series money "as a present or reward from his former team-mates, the releasing club or any of its officials."

Violators of the rule will be fined, he said.

Chandler reminded players they must conduct themselves "on the bench and in the field in a sportsmanlike and gentlemanly manner," or be removed.

Loss Knocks Bengals Out Of 1st Place Tie

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22 (AP) — Joe Gordon's home run over the left field fence to open the last half of the ninth inning gave the Cleveland Indians a dramatic 4-3 victory over Detroit tonight to knock the Tigers out of a first place tie with the New York Yankees.

The Tigers had rallied with two runs in the top of the ninth to tie the score at 3-3 when Don Kolloway followed Johnny Groth's two-out single with a homer over the same left field fence.

Bob Feller, except for his momentary lapse in the ninth, flashed the form of his better years to beat Hal Newhouser, his old rival, in a pitching duel before 29,909 cheering customers.

Feller yielded eight hits, one more than Newhouser, to rack up his 15th triumph. He struck out five and walked the same number.

The defeat dropped the Tigers one half game behind the idle Yankees and cut their second-place margin over the Boston Red Sox to a game and a half. Score:

DETROIT	001	000	002	—3	8	0
CLEVELAND	201	000	001	—4	7	1

The Campers scored twice in the final period on 64 and 56 yard marches. Oliver's 134 Leads Tourney

Porky Gets 10-Under 62 At Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—Ed (Porky) Oliver, the good-natured round man from Seattle, Wash., trimmed the Milburn Country Club course in 10 strokes under par, a 62, to take the 36-hole lead in the $15,000 Kansas City Open Golf Tournament today with a total of 134.

Playing near-perfect golf from tee to green on the 6,645 yard par 72 layout, Oliver was out in 30, six strokes under par, and came in with a four-under 32.

At that, Oliver was only one stroke ahead of little Jack Burke, Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who had a 69 and a mid-tournament total of 135.

Oliver was happy over his game today because "it proves to me that I'm playing my best golf."

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., and Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N. Y., each shot 67s and shared the 138 bracket with Skip Alexander, Knoxville, Tenn., who had a 70 today.

The score of 150 was the qualifying limit for the third round of 64 shooters.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was in the running with a 70 and 142. Cary Middlecoff, former U. S. Open champion from Memphis, Tenn., and Ormand Beach, Fla., shot his second 73 and was well off the pace.

Discontinue Relays

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP) — The Illinois Tech relays, described as the nation's largest collegiate indoor track meet, will be discontinued.

Athletic Director Bernard Weissman said the meet, held at the University of Chicago field house each spring, was abandoned because it had become "administratively impossible to properly conduct."

The Pioneers scored 14 points each in the first, second and third periods and added seven in the final to roll up their fattest total of the campaign. Bob Petry, Heavener and Orville Payne accounted for two touchdowns each. Roy Whetzel got one and Payne had a perfect score by booting six extra points. The other conversion was the result of a pass.

Romney drove 51 yards in seven plays for its first score, Petry going over from the 4. Deskins recovered Bush's fumble on the Charles Town 43 and in five plays the Pioneers had another td. The drive was sparked by a 26-yard run around left end by Baird and was climaxed by Heavener's 11-yard off tackle smash.

Gerald Parker recovered Hughes' fumble to set up the third six-pointer. This 59-yard march ended when Payne scored from 13 yards out. A fumble also started Romney's drive to the 4th score. Ludwick recovered Bush's bobble in the Blues' 35 and in eight plays it was another 6-pointer with Heavener going over from the 5.

Petry intercepted Bush's pass and sprinted 29 yards for the 5th score and Payne booted his 5th extra point. Payne scored from the one and Baird passed to Heavener for the point to up the score to 42-0 at the end of the third stanza.

Romney scored its final touchdown in four plays. Payne gained 17 on an end run, Petry made 9 at tackle and then circled an end for 25 from where Roy Whetzel stepped off 34 yards for the score and Payne converted. Lineups:

60,000 To See Yanks, Boston Tangle Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP) — A near-capacity crowd of more than 60,000 will jam its way into Yankee Stadium tomorrow to watch the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox battle in the opener of a vital two-game series.

If it should rain in the afternoon the diamond will be left covered and an effort made to play the game under the lights, with the dayside tickets still good. With the American League race nearing another hectic finish, each of the three clubs in the contention is anxious to play every game scheduled.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks named his chubby southpaw, Eddie Lopat, to oppose Mel Parnell, another lefty, in the first game. The two have identical 17-8 winning records for the season.

Stengel had intended to throw his ace righthander, Viv Raschi, against the hose tomorrow and use Lopat Sunday. But changed his plans after Raschi developed a sore arm in Chicago four days ago. Raschi threw hard at the stadium today and insisted he was ready, but Casey decided to play it safe.

The Yankees assembled at the stadium in hopes of getting in some batting practice. Several of their number have been hitting very poorly of late. But a drizzling rain kept the batters in the locker room, and only the pitchers worked out briefly.

"Way I've got it figured," Stengel continued, "The team that wins 98 games will do it. Means we've got to win seven out of 10. Same for those fellows (The Tigers). That's a lot of wins. One thing, my boys aren't much for choking up."

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 22—Henry Moomau's 25-yard touchdown gallop in the final minute of play enabled Coach Walt Owens' Petersburg High School Vikings to battle Strasburg (Va.) High School to a 12-12 deadlock in the mud here this afternoon.

Petersburg had spotted the Virginians a 12-0 lead in the second quarter and then put on a garrison finish in the final period to knot the count.

Alton Taff bolted over from the 5-yard line to culminate Strasburg's 80-yard drive early in the second period. Eleven running plays and two passes featured the march.

With 1½ minutes remaining before intermission, Donnie Miller, Strasburg halfback, took Petersburg's punt on his own 42, cut to the sidelines, reversed his field and ran 58 yards for the td that gave the visitors a 12-0 advantage.

Moomau's 2-yard pass to Roy Vance in the end zone produced the Viking's initial t.d. in the 4th period with only 4 minutes left to play. Petersburg's 51-yard drive was marked by five running plays and two passes, one from Moomau to Donald Sites being good for 18 yards.

On the following kickoff, Petersburg intercepted a Strasburg lateral on the PHS 44 and in five plays put over the tying six-pointer. Three running plays and two passes, Moomau to Thorne and Moomau to Huffman carried to the 25. Moomau faded back to pass but finding no receivers he sprinted for the score. The pass for extra point was batted down.

Kolmer Is Promoted • • • Cage Rules Changed • • • 2-Minute Rule Out • • • Ricker's Best Fight

By C. V. BURNS

The many friends of Harold Smith Kolmer will be glad to learn that he has been elevated to the post of assistant director of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Mr. Kolmer, a native of Lonaconing, has served the commission and its predecessors for more than 31 years as executive secretary.

Now the oldest official of the department in point of service, Kolmer has seen it grow from a unit issuing 65,000 gunning licenses a year to one licensing 380,000 hunters, and from 18,000 fishing licenses to 90,000 a year.

Harold and his brother, Dr. John A. Kolmer, noted scientist active in polio research at Temple University, Philadelphia, were born on Douglas Avenue in Lonaconing. The family moved to Baltimore when Harold was in his teens.

When the 1950-51 basketball season gets under way in November the controversial two-minute rule will be among the missing.

Under the 2-minute rule, a team fouled in the last two minutes, got the free throw and then was given possession of the ball.

Now a fouled team can either take a shot or waive it to keep possession. If it takes the free throw and makes it, the other team is given the ball.

Officials' time-out in high school play is now automatically eliminated.

The game will be returned to full-time play under uniform rules which prevailed during the 1944-45 season.

At the same time, the present regulation on intentional fouls, which calls for an additional free throw to be awarded if a foul is intentional or avoidable, will be strictly enforced. It was because of this failure to curb excessive fouling that the two-minute rule was included last season.

• — • — •

Other rules changes for the coming season, include:

1. Clock is to be stopped on all held balls.

2. Substitution to be made only when the clock is stopped (when a foul is called, a held ball, a time-out, or for an unusual delay); otherwise a time-out is charged.

3. The molded type ball will be the only official ball used.

4. A player who commits a foul must raise his hand over his head; a technical foul is charged for failure to do so.

George (Chuck) Karmarkovich, star of last season's Waynesburg College quint who wound up the campaign in a blaze of glory with the Altoona Flyers of the All-American Pro League in which Cumberland's Dukes won the title, has signed his contract with the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association.

"Chuck" played two years of varsity basketball at Waynesburg and his average was 17 points in 48 contests.

Karmarkovich has been rejected for army duty due to a punctured ear drum.

The Bullets, incidentally, will open their 66-game league season with the World Champion Minneapolis Lakers on Wednesday, November 1 at the Coliseum, Baltimore.

Baltimore is in the eastern division of the league with Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Syracuse. The western division comprises Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Rochester, Chicago, Tri-City and Fort Wayne.

Elkins (W.Va.) will be the scene of the Bullets-Washington Caps league game on Sunday, January 21. Baltimore is slated to play Minneapolis at Johnstown, Pa., January 23.

It was a sizzling 10-rounder between big fellows with Perroni gaining the nod at the end of 10 rounds.

A Canton (Ohio) promoter wanted the bout so bad he made Ricker an offer to transfer it there but "Vic" said no.

Perroni was in big demand at that time. He whipped Mike McTigue and boxed Maxie Rosenbloom a no decision bout that year and later whipped Johnny Risko and Tony Galento.

In 1935 Patsy upset the dope when he went the 10-round limit with Joe Louis in Detroit. Perroni was decisioned by Louis who was flattening opponents right and left at that time. The clever Italian boxer quit the ring in 1941.

Kentucky Plays Louisiana State In Night Battle

Maryland To Open At Georgia Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Here it is the fourth Saturday in September, the leaves are tumbling, the swallows are heading back to Capistrano, the major league races are in the stretch—and college football is back.

Tomorrow's schedule will be a sort of feeler, for most of the major threats for national honors will spend the next week sharpening their passes, and defenses. But it's here, with even a couple of intersectional battles on tap.

The Southeastern Conference will not waste any time with preliminaries. The loop gets down to serious business right off when Louisiana State and Kentucky play at night in Lexington.

This probably is the most significant game of the day, for both these schools are rated top contenders for the loop crown.

Kentucky, on the basis of last year's score, looms the favorite, but LSU, also will be stronger and could come up with an unset.

Terps Invade Athens

The other two most important contests pit Southern Methodist against Georgia Tech at Dallas, also under the arcs, and Maryland against Georgia at Athens.

Despite the loss of Doak Walker, Southern Methodist still has Kyle Rote, a bad guy to have on the other side. Georgia could put up a battle against Maryland, but this is the year Jim Tatum is shooting the works and trying for a national title, so his eleven will go into the clash a heavy favorite.

Shepherd Rams Surprise Tech

Shepherd tried a desperation field goal in the last quarter from Tech's 12, but the ball was about 10 feet short of the crossbar.

Shepherd fought to the champs' 10 in the first quarter, but could move no farther. The second was on even terms, with neither team threatening.

Tech went to Shepherd's 10 in the third period, but they also were fought to a standstill at the stripe. Shepherd kept possession of the ball through most of the last quarter and their goal was never seriously threatened.

Gifts Are Barred For Series Players

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler today reminded owners of teams participating in the world series they must not pay bonuses or give presents to players.

He also said a player released or transferred by a participating club in the same league shall not be given any of the series money "as a present or reward from his former team-mates, the releasing club or any of its officials."

Violators of the rule will be fined, he said.

Chandler reminded players they must conduct themselves "on the bench and in the field in a sportsmanlike and gentlemanly manner," or be removed.

Loss Knocks Bengals Out Of 1st Place Tie

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22 (AP) — Joe Gordon's home run over the left field fence to open the last half of the ninth inning gave the Cleveland Indians a dramatic 4-3 victory over Detroit tonight to knock the Tigers out of a first place tie with the New York Yankees.

The Tigers had rallied with two runs in the top of the ninth to tie the score at 3-3 when Don Kolloway followed Johnny Groth's two-out single with a homer over the same left field fence.

Bob Feller, except for his momentary lapse in the ninth, flashed the form of his better years to beat Hal Newhouser, his old rival, in a pitching duel before 29,909 cheering customers.

Feller yielded eight hits, one more than Newhouser, to rack up his 15th triumph. He struck out five and walked the same number.

The defeat dropped the Tigers one half game behind the idle Yankees and cut their second-place margin over the Boston Red Sox to a game and a half. Score:

DETROIT	001	000	002	3	8	0
CLEVELAND	201	000	001	4	7	1

Cops $10,000 'Chase At Belmont Park

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 22. (AP)—Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, who won stake races at Delaware Park and Saratoga this summer, regained his best form today in capturing the 36th edition of the $10,000 added Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap before 14,501 fans at Belmont Park.

Oedipus took command just before the final fence and then staved off a closing bid by Kent Miller's Elkridge. Mrs. Stephen C. Clark Jr.'s Through Hill was third.

The time of 3:48 2-5 for the two miles over the gruelling course was well off the track mark of 3:40.

Overlooked in the betting, Oedipus returned mutuels of $36.90, $11.60 and $5.40. Elkridge was $5.40 to place and $3.90 to show. Trough Hill was $3.70 to show.

F. Ambrose Clark's Portius Pilate, winner of his last three, the even money favorite, finished seventh. He was never in contention.

The last named, racing for the partnership of J. W. Bowley and Mrs. R. B. Berini, saved the place award 2½ lengths before Frank Yacovelli's Joiner.

Intermittent showers brought out only 7,303 fans for the eight-race program. It was the smallest attendance figure of the season. The mutuel payoffs were Crew - Cut, coupled in the wagering with Mirthmaker, $12.20, $6.40, $4.00; Fighting Fool, $14.20, $8.80 and Joiner, $5.00.

Segura Is Given Hero's Welcome

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 22 (AP)—Pancho Segura, U. S. professional tennis champion, was carried on the shoulders of admirers today from his plane to the airport station as he received a hero's welcome on arriving in his native Ecuador.

Police had a hard time keeping back the crowds. Firecrackers exploded, and sirens sounded in the city's harbor in greeting. A representative of President Galo Plaza was among those present to welcome Pancho.

13 May Go Postward Including Ponder

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — The mighty Noor, beaten by the lightweighted One Hitter here Monday, comes back at Belmont Park tomorrow to try to redeem his prestige in the mile and one-half Manhattan Handicap.

Thirteen horses were entered for the $25,000-added event, which shows that a dozen owners or trainers are going to make the Irish-bred star earn his reputation in these parts.

Noor probably will get his toughest opposition from Calument Farm's Ponder, who must carry the handicap burden now that Citation is out of training. Mrs. Marcella Howard's Irish flyer, winner over Citation in four California races, has high weight of 128 pounds in the Manhattan. He will be ridden by Johnny Longden. Ponder, in with 126, will have Steve Brooks up.

All this doesn't indicate something else can't win the race. One Hitter, the Greentree Stable surprise package which took Monday's mile and one-sixteenth test from Noor, is in under only 110. Ted Atkinson will be aboard again.

Then there is additional international flavor injected by the English-bred router, Hypocrite II, owned by Federico De La Madriz. And the French-bred Titien II, owned by A. E. Masters. Hypocrite II won the Olympic Handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths last Saturday at Atlantic City and has only 108 pounds tomorrow. Titien II has 105.

Others entered are King Ranch's Better Self, 116, which probably won't go unless it's muddy; M

Cops $10,000 'Chase At Belmont Park

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 22. (AP)—Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, who won stake races at Delaware Park and Saratoga this summer, regained his best form today in capturing the 36th edition of the $10,000 added Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap before 14,501 fans at Belmont Park.

Oedipus took command just before the final fence and then staved off a closing bid by Kent Miller's Elkridge. Mrs. Stephen C. Clark Jr.'s Through Hill was third.

The time of 3:48 2-5 for the two miles over the gruelling course was well off the track mark of 3:40.

Overlooked in the betting, Oedipus returned mutuels of $36.90, $11.60 and $5.40. Elkridge was $5.40 to place and $3.90 to show. Trough Hill was $3.70 to show.

F. Ambrose Clark's Portius Pilate, winner of his last three, the even money favorite, finished seventh. He was never in contention.

Crew-Cut Scores

The last named, racing for the partnership of J. W. Bowley and Mrs. R. B. Berini, saved the place award 2½ lengths before Frank Yacovelli's Joiner.

Intermittent showers brought out only 7,303 fans for the eight-race program. It was the smallest attendance figure of the season. The mutuel payoffs were Crew - Cut, coupled in the wagering with Mirthmaker, $12.20, $6.40, $4.00; Fighting Pool, $14.20, $8.80 and Joiner, $5.60.

BRUCE "BUD" FISHER, senior quarterback and co-captain, pictured above, and Larry Hansrote, center, shown on the right, will be in Virginia Poly's lineup when the Gobblers open their season next Saturday with the Quantico Marines at Blacksburg, Va. Fisher, former Bedford High School ace, starred in the last five games for VPI last season, completing 26 of 59 passes for 333 yards. Segura Is Given Hero's Welcome

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 22 (AP)—Pancho Segura, U. S. professional tennis champion, was carried on the shoulders of admirers today from his plane to the airport station as he received a hero's welcome on arriving in his native Ecuador.

Police had a hard time keeping back the crowds. Firecrackers exploded, and sirens sounded in the city's harbor in greeting. A representative of President Galo Plaza was among those present to welcome Pancho.

13 May Go Postward Including Ponder

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP) — The mighty Noor, beaten by the lightweighted One Hitter here Monday, comes back at Belmont Park tomorrow to try to redeem his prestige in the mile and one-half Manhattan Handicap.

Thirteen horses were entered for the $25,000-added event, which shows that a dozen owners or trainers are going to make the Irish-bred star earn his reputation in these parts.

Noor probably will get his toughest opposition from Calument Farm's Ponder, who must carry the handicap burden now that Citation is out of training. Mrs. Marcella Howard's Irish flyer, winner over Citation in four California races, has high weight of 128 pounds in the Manhattan. He will be ridden by Johnny Longden. Ponder, in with 126, will have Steve Brooks up.

All this doesn't indicate something else can't win the race. One Hitter, the Greentree Stable surprise package which took Monday's mile and one-sixteenth test from Noor, is in under only 110. Ted Atkinson will be aboard again.

Then there is additional international flavor injected by the English-bred router, Hypocrite II, owned by Federico De La Madriz. And the French-bred Titien II, owned by A. E. Masters. Hypocrite II won the Olympic Handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths last Saturday at Atlantic City and has only 108 pounds tomorrow. Titien 11 has 105.

Others entered are King Ranch's Better Self, 116, which probably won't go unless it's muddy; Mrs. E. duPont Weir's The Mater, 102; C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy, 110; Cherry Oca Stable's First Nighter, 105; Brookmeade's Blue Hills, 108; Burton Chait's Sky Miracle, 102; C. V. Whitney's Dooly, 106, and last but not least, Mrs. Evelyn Hopkins' Three Rings, 121.

Three Rings, second choice in the betting Monday to Noor, led most of the way, then tired and finished fourth.

The Manhattan overshadows the $25,000-added Matron Stakes, also on the program. The Matron, six furlongs down the Widener straight course, drew nine two-year-old fillies and will go far in determining the champion in that class.

University of Maryland covets victories over Michigan State and Duke this year as it has never beaten either of them. It will be meeting Michigan State for the fifth time and Duke for the seventh. Only one each of these defeats are charged against Coach Jim Tatum and both were close affairs.

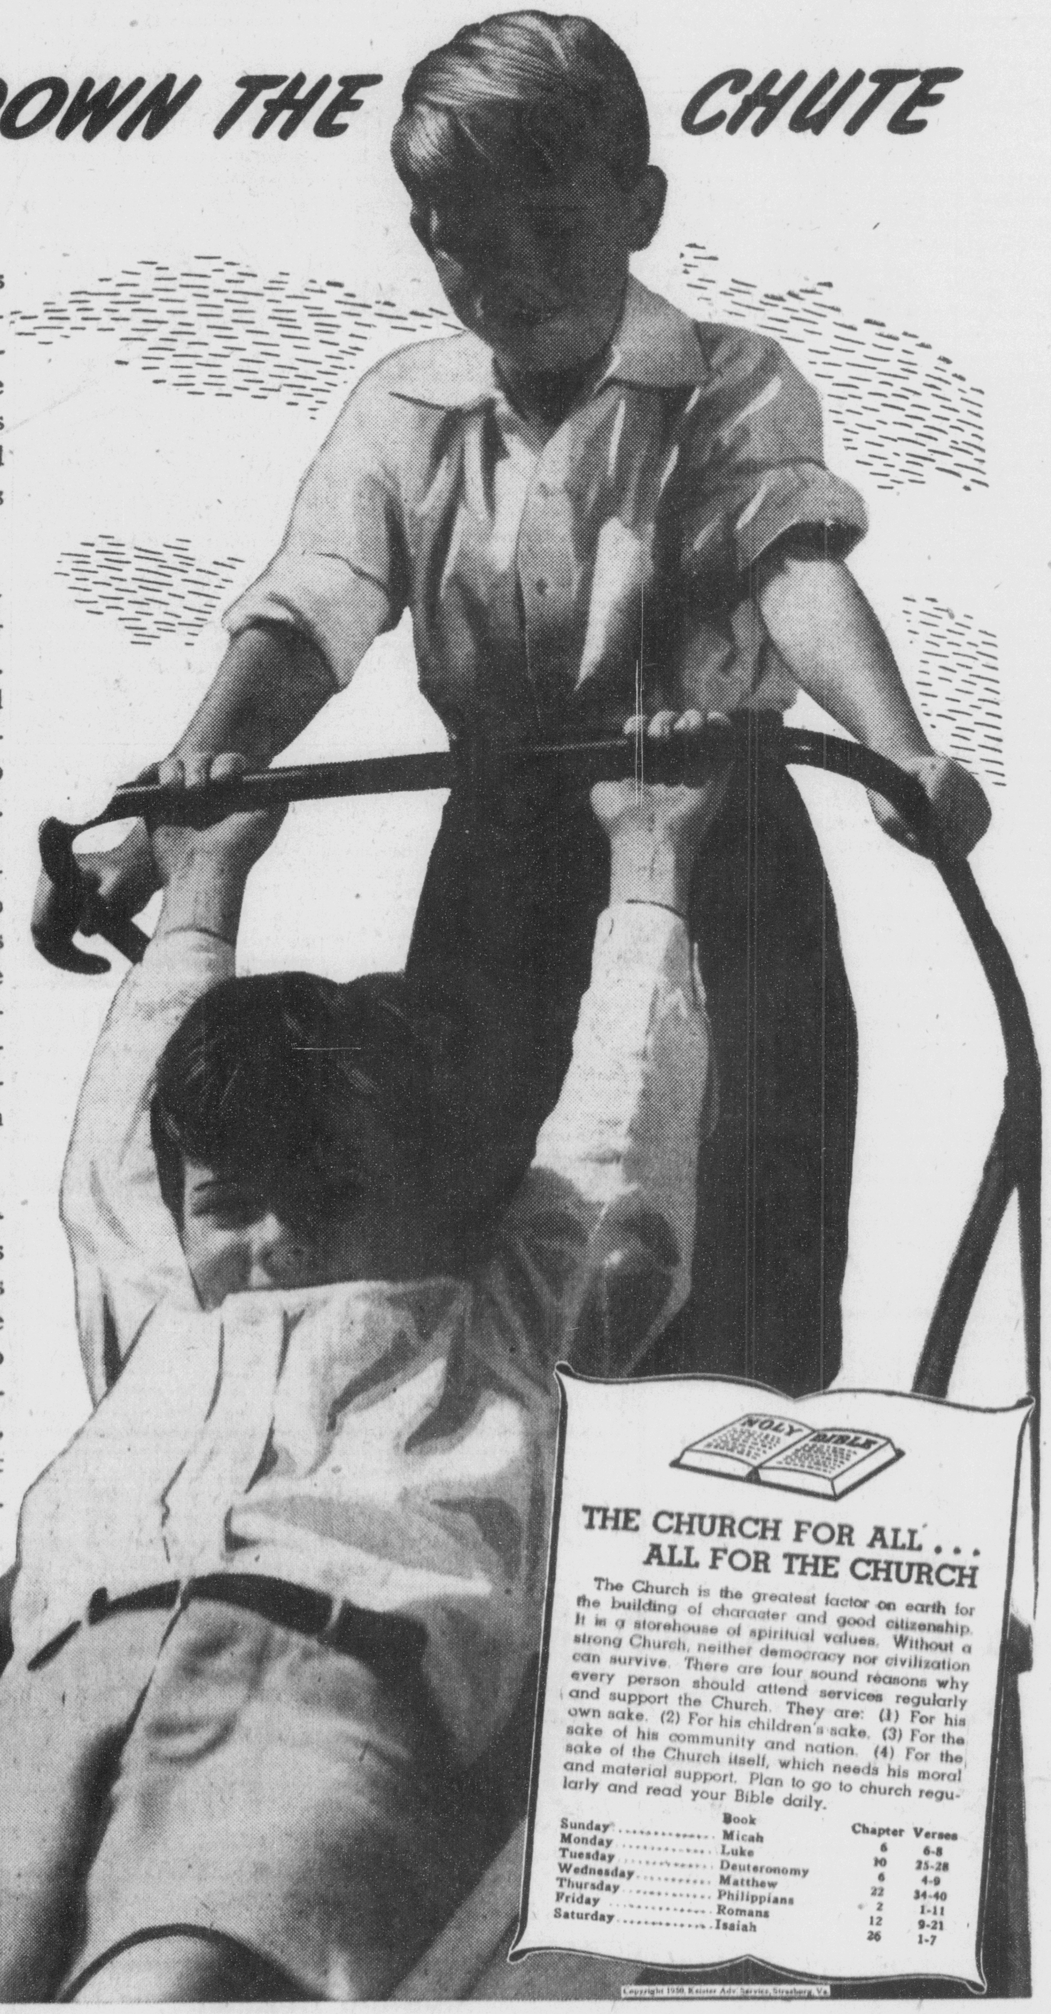
SLIDIN' DOWN THE CHUTE

What fun these youngsters have on the numerous contrivances designed for their exercise and amusement! The children of past generations would have been delighted with such elaborate provisions for their enjoyment.

Physical training has become an important part of our modern educational system. Regular periods are assigned to it in most schools, and instructors are employed to supervise the children's play.

We are thus spending billions of dollars each year to develop the minds and bodies of our children. But what are we doing for their spiritual development? The body without the soul is dead, and education without spiritual growth is a hollow mockery.

The Church has the stupendous task of supplying this vital need in human life. Its function is to show people the way of God and teach them to think and feel and act in accordance with His will. Body, mind and spirit—but the most important of these is the spirit.



THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

SLIDIN' DOWN THE CHUTE

What fun these youngsters have on the numerous contrivances designed for their exercise and amusement! The children of past generations would have been delighted with such elaborate provisions for their enjoyment.

Physical training has become an important part of our modern educational system. Regular periods are assigned to it in most schools, and instructors are employed to supervise the children's play.

We are thus spending billions of dollars each year to develop the minds and bodies of our children. But what are we doing for their spiritual development? The body without the soul is dead, and education without spiritual growth is a hollow mockery.

The Church has the stupendous task of supplying this vital need in human life. Its function is to show people the way of God and teach them to think and feel and act in accordance with His will. Body, mind and spirit—but the most important of these is the spirit.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept 22, (INS)—Mala Powers, a lady who writes charming letters, has been lent to Lloyd Nolan for an important picture. Lloyd's idea is certainly interesting. He has taken Edgar Allen Poe's classic, "Murders in the Rue Morgue," and built it into a screen play, which he is calling "Edgar Allen Poe."

Elizabeth Taylor has had all her fittings for "Father's Little Dividend," and all that talk about her retiring is just that, talk. I can't see Liz giving up her career. I'm told that since the episode last week Nicky has been a good boy, and that I'm glad to hear.

These are two young people who have everything in the world, but I guess it's true that the first year of marriage is the most difficult. So now since the first five months have passed, they're over half of the most difficult period. It's a problem to keep any marriage happy in Hollywood and Liz's efforts in that direction are certainly commendable.

• — • — •

Chatter in Hollywood:

Could it be a Hollywood marriage for Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger? She's now in New York and will come to Hollywood for a vacation and Stewart can't return to London until after he finishes Kipling's "Soldiers Three." Jean and he have been in love ever since they met.

• — • — •

The Hutton girl is certainly on high. When she talked to me on the telephone today, she talked so fast I could hardly understand her.

"Where did you get the story about my doing lossom Seeley's life? Who told you? Isn't it wonderful? I think we'll have another 'Jolson Story,'" all in one breath.

Then she said, "as long as you know, I might as well tell you that Blossom Seeley and I start to work today. She's going to teach me all her dances, and Sam Briskin's so excited over the story. It's to be my next picture."

• — • — •

Gertrude Lawrence and Katharine Cornell are working like eager beavers to revive the famed "Beaux Arts Ball" for a terriff New Year's Eve shindig in New York—proceeds going to their pet American National Theater and Academy project.

Here's something to perk Hollywood up: If it is the riot they hope it will be (if it's anything like the old Beaux Arts affairs, it will be—well do I remember those festive affairs!) they will bring the party to Hollywood the following year.

As always—the ball is a masque. It's Gertie's and Katharine's idea to have actors come this year disguised as the great names of the theater who reigned during the past 100 years.

Judy Garland received a terrific reception when she appeared with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby on Bing's first show of the season. Judy was her old self and happy. The three leave for San Francisco to do another job next week.

Brewster Morgan, once my radio producer, and now a TV executive, has been secretly married since September 10. His bride is Eleanor Boyson, Pasadena socialite.

Is Virginia Field's romance with Willard Parker as serious as her friends report?

Who do you think is coaching Laurence Olivier to talk like a Chicago restaurant owner of the 1900 period? Spencer Tracy, no less. Not that Spence remembers that long ago, but he knows the midwestern lingo. Don't all of us who were born in that part of the country.

Ricardo Cortez and Margarette Bell will be honeymooning in Hawaii. They applied for their marriage license two weeks ago, but didn't want any publicity so didn't even tell their close friends.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do you think of yourself as a person?

Answer: Strange as it may seem, most people apparently do not. In a recent psychological experiment, several hundred persons were suddenly asked, "Who are you?" and only a small percentage answered by identifying themselves by name. Others gave such answers as "I'm a poor working man," "I'm a housewife," or even "I'm a girl," or "a man." The experimenters believe that if you answer, "Why, I'm Bill Smith," it shows you are more aware of yourself as a person than the average, and thus better adjusted and more apt to succeed.

Does crying at weddings "give you away"?

Answer: Not infallibly, of course. But you're most likely to cry on what should be joyful occasions because they remind you of the happiness that you once had—or hoped for—and now feel you have lost. A woman whose marriage had proved disappointing might cry at a wedding either because she was directly reminded of her disillusionment, or because she unconsciously identified herself with the bride and grieved at the "let-down" she felt sure the younger woman would face. If you've enjoyed marriage, you should feel happy at weddings.

Do "truth drugs" aid mental tests?

Answer: Yes, especially with certain types of insane patients, report Drs. Herbert Dorken, Jr., and Martin M. Tunis in the American Journal of Psychiatry. It is hard to judge the nature of a patient's problems and help him to solve them if he will not talk or answer questions. But under the influence of narcotics, five "inaccessible" schizophrenics were willing to take the Rorschach (ink-blot) Test, giving a better clue to their condition and to what was "on their minds" than had been gained by other methods.

Answer: Not infallibly, of course. But you're most likely to cry on what should be joyful occasions because they remind you of the happiness that you once had—or hoped for—and now feel you have lost. A woman whose marriage had proved disappointing might cry at a wedding either because she was directly reminded of her disillusionment, or because she unconsciously identified herself with the bride and grieved at the "let-down" she felt sure the younger woman would face. If you've enjoyed marriage, you should feel happy at weddings.

Do "truth drugs" aid mental tests?

Answer: Yes, especially with certain types of insane patients, report Drs. Herbert Dorken, Jr., and Martin M. Tunis in the American Journal of Psychiatry. It is hard to judge the nature of a patient's problems and help him to solve them if he will not talk or answer questions. But under the influence of narcotics, five "inaccessible" schizophrenics were willing to take the Rorschach (ink-blot) Test, giving a better clue to their condition and to what was "on their minds" than had been gained by other methods.

3. Don't fidget with your face or hands! More harm is done to your skin, make-up and poise by contortion of the facial expression and unnecessary movement of the hands than you can guess. Keep a smile on your lips and keep your hands in your lap.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: I DO NOT HATE HIM NEAR AS MUCH AS I FEAR I OUGHT TO DO—CARLYLE.

Beer License To "The Midway" Is Opposed

A remonstrance was filed with the Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday, against the issuance of a beer license to Donald G. Stallings for an establishment known as "The Midway" and located on U. S. Route 46 in the Little Orleans section.

The petition filed contains the names of members of the congregation of the Piney Plains Church and residents of the Little Orleans area.

The remonstrance papers stated that the petitioners had voiced objections against a beer license for the same place on three different occasions and the board had withheld a license.

Market Hits 19-Year High Despite Touch Of Dizziness

Closing prices showed a heavy majority of gains running to around $1 a share. Final quotations, though, were under the best levels of the day and as trading stopped for the week the market was still gently settling.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 82.6, a peak since 1931. The 1946 high, the last barrier in front of the market, was easily hurdled in a morning surge of buying. Most of the advance was retained.

In 1931 the market was still plunging downward from the dizzy heights of 1929. A low of 16.9 was finally reached in 1932.

Demand for rail issues was again a dominant force in the market, as it has been off and on for weeks. Motors, chemicals and oils were also favorites.

Sales piled up to 2,510,000 shares, tops for more than a week, and compared with 1,650,000 Thursday.

Trading included 1,116 individual issues, of which 645 advanced and 265 declined.

Two of the 15 most active issues were marked down — N. Y. Central ¼ to 16¾ and Columbia Gas 1.8 to 12¾.

Nickel Plate Railway moved at express speed again today. Following yesterday's gain of 7, the stock tacked on another 7 points at 152. The issue had the benefit of an excellent earnings report. Other rails marked up included Sante Fe, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Union Pacific, Erie, Lackawanna and Northwestern.

Studebaker was a prime favorite in the auto group, adding 1⅝ at 32⅞. Smaller gains were posted for Nash Kelvinator, Hudson Motors, General Motors and Chrysler.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Fannie Hutson Koon, Executrix, vs. Eddie Sedar and All States Life Insurance Company. No. 21,892 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a Decree of the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, for the payment of two (2) life insurance policies issued on the life of Eddie Sedar, and which policies name Dr. Thomas W. Koon as Beneficiary. The Bill of Complaint states that the said Eddie Sedar left the employment of Dr. Thomas W. Koon about the 15th day of March, 1943, and that he was suffering from a very severe case of tuberculosis, and that he disappeared from the State of Maryland on or about March 15, 1943, and has never been seen or heard of since; that the All States Life Insurance Company has refused to pay the amounts due under the life insurance policies until it is determined that the said Eddie Sedar is no longer living; the further object of this proceeding is to have the said Eddie Sedar decreed to be no longer living.

It is thereupon ordered this 30th day of August, 1950, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, in Equity, that the Plaintiff by causing a copy of this Order of Publication to be inserted in some newspaper in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for four (4) consecutive weeks, give notice to the said named absent defendant of the object and substance of the Bill of Complaint, warning the said Eddie Sedar to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 18th day of October next to show, if he be living, and why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

The petition filed contains the names of members of the congregation of the Piney Plains Church and residents of the Little Orleans area.

The remonstrance papers stated that the petitioners had voiced objections against a beer license for the same place on three different occasions and the board had withheld a license.

Market Hits 19-Year High Despite Touch Of Dizziness

Closing prices showed a heavy majority of gains running to around $1 a share. Final quotations, though, were under the best levels of the day and as trading stopped for the week the market was still gently settling.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 82.6, a peak since 1931. The 1946 high, the last barrier in front of the market, was easily hurdled in a morning surge of buying. Most of the advance was retained.

In 1931 the market was still plunging downward from the dizzy heights of 1929. A low of 16.9 was finally reached in 1932.

Demand for rail issues was again a dominant force in the market, as it has been off and on for weeks. Motors, chemicals and oils were also favorites.

Sales piled up to 2,510,000 shares, tops for more than a week, and compared with 1,650,000 Thursday.

Trading included 1,116 individual issues, of which 645 advanced and 265 declined.

Two of the 15 most active issues were marked down — N. Y. Central ¼ to 16¾ and Columbia Gas 1.8 to 12¾.

Nickel Plate Railway moved at express speed again today. Following yesterday's gain of 7, the stock tacked on another 7 points at 152. The issue had the benefit of an excellent earnings report. Other rails marked up included Sante Fe, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Union Pacific, Erie, Lackawanna and Northwestern.

Studebaker was a prime favorite in the auto group, adding 1⅜ at 32⅞. Smaller gains were posted for Nash Kelvinator, Hudson Motors, General Motors and Chrysler.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEAD THE OTHER MAJOR

If YOU are the opening leader against a major suit game and have a partner who had made a takeout double during the bidding, the unbid major will nearly always be a safe suit to try. That principle is pretty well understood by everybody, as the double practically always guarantees support for the other major. But you see too many occasions on which, during the later play, the partner of the doubler forgets all about the probability of his partner having the uncalled major suit.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dbl	4 ♥

Following his lead of the club K, West decided to whack at the dummy's trumps to limit ruffing of the suit. His heart 3 was won by the A. South finessed the diamond Q, scored the A, ruffed the 4 with the heart 4, scored the heart K and Q to clear trumps, discarded two spades on the established two diamonds to leave him only one spade loser, later ruffed a spade in his own hand, ruffed one club with dummy's last trump and thus lost only two tricks in clubs and one in spades.

It was East's fault that the contract was made. Knowing that West's double of hearts betokened possession of spade support, East should have overtaken the original club K lead with his A and fired back the spade J. That would have given his side the first four tricks.

Your Weekend Question

What is the ideal situation for a throw-in play when you are in a suit contract? Can you list the various elements desired to make sure that the play will win?

$1,500,000 Waste Recovery Process Set By Luke Plant

Operation Is Due To Start Early In 1951

A major technical improvement is planned by the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company to reduce wastes discharged into the river.

Cost of the operation is estimated at about $1,500,000 and it will go into effect about the first of the year.

Patrick was one of the speakers in a round-table discussion which featured the opening session of the ninth annual meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

Process Developed

Patrick said a process is being developed to recover wastes from the soda cooking operation at the plant and to reuse the soda ash chemical.

Other improvements are also being made to recover wastes, he said.

Similar work being done at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America was outlined by R. R. Sitzler, sanitary engineer, who spoke on behalf of H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

Sitzler said plant waste surveys were conducted and that "pilot plants" are now being constructed on an experimental basis to try out methods of recovering wastes.

Special emphasis, he said, is being placed on recovering wastes from the acetate rayon manufacturing process.

Fly ash from the power plant had been discharged into the river but a settling basin is planned, he said.

Part of the $6,000,000 improvement program planned by the local Celanese plant will include reduction of wastes, Sitzler said.

Tubes Damaged

In the past when the plant used river water, Connelly said, the polluted water damaged boiler tubes and conductors, and considerable expense was necessary to treat the water. As a result, the plant gets most of its water now from the city.

Problems of the Allegany Metropolitan Sanitary Commission were outlined by its chairman, Dr. William E. Moseley, Mt. Savage.

Dr. Moseley said the commission is unable to act unless towns ask for sanitary improvements, and that funds cannot be raised above 10 per cent of the town's assessed property value.

Dr. Moseley recommended that communities band together so that projects can be handled on a group basis, thus making it possible to raise more funds.

He recalled that a meeting is scheduled October 5 in Frostburg to discuss a proposed trunk sewer from Frostburg to Westernport.

Value of the Savage River dam to area industries wes cited by Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer of the Upper Potomac River Board.

Army Engineers expect the dam will be completed in time to have it filled by spring freshets in 1951, Hitchins said, adding the dam will be in operation by next summer.

Industries and towns along the river can expect improvement in river conditions by next summer, Hitchins said.

He explained that the dam will increase low water flow from about 20 cubic feet per second up to about 100 cubic feet per second.

This will provide more and purer water for industrial use because river flow can be regulated, he explained.

Abatement Needed

Chief speaker at the afternoon session was Sylvan C. Martin, Washington, D. C., director of the Water Pollution Control Committee of the United States Public Health Service.

Martin stressed the need for water pollution abatement in times of national emergency to give war industries an ample supply of processed water.

State water pollution control agencies, Martin said, should carry on more aggressive programs than in the past because the need for pollution abatement is greater now.

It is up to those agencies, Martin

2 Area Soldiers Are Wounded In Korean War

One Is Injured Second Time In Six Weeks

Two area soldiers have been wounded in Korea, one of them for the second time within the past six weeks, according to reports received from the Secretary of the Army.

Cumberland career soldier, Master Sgt. William L. Norwood, 31, husband of Mrs. Dorothy Brockey Norwood, Zihlman Ways, was seriously wounded in action in Korea on August 16.

Mrs. Norwood received another telegram from the Secretary of the Army yesterday informing her that her husband had been slightly wounded in action again in Korea.

Sgt. Norwood left the United States for Japan on July 25. Soon thereafter, he was sent to Korea with the Fifth Cavalry Division.

Pfc. Edward Thomas MacMillan, 17, of 64 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, was wounded in Korea September 13 and has received the Purple Heart and the Combat Badge, according to a telegram received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Delsie MacMillen, from the Secretary of the Army.

Mrs. MacMillan also received a letter from her son yesterday in which he said that he had been wounded by a hand grenade explosion.

Pfc. MacMillan attended Central High School and in June, 1948, he enlisted in the Army. He received his infantry basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and he was sent to Japan for occupation duty soon thereafter.

He is now expected to return to a hospital in the United States.

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Sept. 22 (AP) — Addison Combs, 26-year-old Navy enlisted man from Cumberland, was acquitted today of a charge he assaulted a waitress at the Navy's Patuxent River Air Station with intent to rape.

Accompanying him to Circuit Court trial were his wife and their two children, little boys five years and five months old.

Firemen Search Swollen Stream

A woman's black coat that hung on Jennings Run Bridge at Corriganville most of yesterday and the little dog that stood watch over it have police checking the rain-swollen stream for a possible drowning victim.

Trooper William F. Baker said another incident that may fit into the case is a white purse found farther down the stream by searching firemen.

Corriganville Fire Chief Harry W. Martz called police into the case last night after several area residents reported seeing the coat and dog there as early as yesterday morning.

Trooper Baker said hard rains of the previous day filled the creek bed to a depth of between five and six feet under the bridge. Ordinarily the stream is about 18 inches deep.

Mrs. Buella Higgs, who lives within sight of the bridge located on Route 36, told police she saw two women "come down the Cash Valley Road and start hitch hiking" at the bridge about 2 p. m. She saw them talking to the dog.

Police quoted her as saying the women appeared to be about 16 and 40 years of age. The younger woman, according to Mrs. Higgs, was wearing a pink flowered dress and had blond hair.

The older woman, she said "was short and stout." Police said the coat would fit a woman of that description. The pair was last seen at the bridge by Earl Beal, Corriganville, as he drove past en route home "after 2 p. m."

Beal told police that he noticed the black coat hanging on the bridge and the dog standing there at the same time he observed the women thumbing a ride.

Fifteen members of the Corriganville Fire Department began a check of the creek bed last night and after walking the bank for about 1,000 feet reported finding the white purse in the stream.

Police checked the purse but said it was empty. It was in the water for only a short time, Trooper Baker said, because "it still was not rusty or water soaked."

Baker said the coat and dog, described as "just an ordinary dog" with a hairy brown and white coat, were taken to the LaVale substation to await further developments.

Firemen said the stream flows into Wills Creek about 1,000 feet below the bridge. It was this section they checked last night.

State Trooper Paul Long is investigating.

Ridgeley Legion Will Sponsor Loyalty Rally

Over 2,000 Slated To Participate

Plans for a huge Loyalty Rally were begun last night by the Americanization committee of Knobley Mountain Post No. 136, American Legion, Ridgeley, W. Va.

Roland Tabler, commander, said the committee headed by William Lindsey, has completed preliminary plans for the get-together early next month.

All residents of the community, he added, will be asked to sign Loyalty pledges.

The Mayor and Town Council will be given the honor of being the first to sign the pledges.

At least 2,000 residents of the area are expected to participate in the rally affirming the faith of the town in the American way of life.

Forms to be signed will be available at the rally and several notaries public will be present to notarize the statements.

Some 900 residents of Hyndman, Pa., stood in line last week to sign similar pledges at the borough council room there. That rally was sponsored by Oscar Jordan Post No. 7375, Veterans of Foreign Wars Hyndman.

Mohler Is Named Roads Engineer In Western Md.

Frederick Man Succeeds Shyrock

Appointment of Thomas G. Mohler, Frederick, as the State Roads Commission's assistant district engineer in charge of construction for Western Maryland was announced yesterday.

Mohler, who has been Frederick County resident maintenance engineer, succeeds J. Carter Shyrock, Frostburg, who retired September 1 after a lengthy illness. Mohler has already assumed his duties here.

Silas D. Kuhn, Boonsboro, with the commission for the past 25 years, took over the Frederick County job.

Mohler went to Frederick County as resident engineer in July, 1945, after serving with the commission's survey department in Baltimore for a number of years. He has 22 years of service with the commission.

Mohler, married and the father of three children, indicated that he will move his family to Cumberland in the near future. He is a graduate of Frederick High School and attended Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Two Communists Are Expelled By Textile Workers

Executive Board Action Is Unanimous

Two members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), were expelled last night by the local's executive board because of membership in the communist party.

Earl L. Snyder, president, said the men, William Boyd Coleman, and Arthur M. Schusterman, both of 56 North Mechanic Street, were dropped from the union's rolls by unanimous roll call of the five-member executive board and top officers.

He said the men were charged with action detrimental to Local 1874 in belonging to the communist party.

Snyder said Coleman and Schusterman were notified verbally of the board's action immediately following the board meeting and said the action will be confirmed by letter today.

Charges Are Filed

Charges against the self-avowed communists were filed with the Executive Board on September 5, accusing the men of action detrimental to the local because of their membership in the communist party.

A hearing was set for September 12, but plans to go through with the action that night were dropped after it was found that sufficient notification had not been given.

The hearing was then set for last night, allowing the legal two-week notice prescribed by the TWUA International's by - laws. Only seven day's notice was required by Local 1874 rules.

Union Cites Charge

Officials said the by-laws provide that any member found guilty of action detrimental to the interest and welfare of the local union may be fined, suspended or expelled by the Executive Board following notice of written charges and the opportunity of a hearing.

Snyder said the TWUA by-laws gives the expelled members the right to appeal the case to the International union's executive board within 30 days.

Coleman and Schusterman reported last night they are protesting the action and expect to appeal the case.

Campaign Training Session Planned

Tentative date for the "school of politics" to be held in Cumberland under the auspices of the Republican National Committee is Wednesday, October 11.

The school was originally scheduled for Monday.

Lewis was notified yesterday of the change in date by Miss Bertha Adkins, Baltimore, national committeewoman.

Lewis said about 200 Republican party workers from all over the county will be asked to attend.

Similar schools were conducted in August in the Maryland cities of Annapolis, Easton, Salisbury, Elkton, Silver Spring and Towson.

The school of politics was designed in Washington to train precinct workers for a hard-hitting campaign aimed toward a Republican victory in November.

Conducting the school sessions is a three-member team headed by Bernard L. Lamb, Hohokus, N. J., a former New Jersey commissioner of finance.

B. & O. Retires T. R. Shields

A former Cumberland man, Thomas R. Shields, was retired by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company after 49 years of service. Shields now resides in Grafton, W. Va.

The 64-year-old Grafton yard foreman began working for the B. and O. in Cumberland in 1901 as a caller and later worked as a mechanics helper. During his tour of duty he also served as car repairman, brakeman, yard helper, and station master.

The retiring railroader was born in Little Orleans, Md. He married the former Agnes C. Shoultes, Grafton, in 1922. The couple has two sons—both employes of the B. and O. in Grafton.

Shields also has held numerous positions in the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. He will resign from posts that he now holds, he said.

Klondike Man Held In Theft

A 53-year-old Klondike man who told authorities he has two sons in the Army was ordered held yesterday under $500 bond for action of the October Grand Jury on a charge of theft.

He is charged with stealing $60 worth of mining materials and equipment from the Consolidated Fuel Company on Thursday.

The articles included steel ties, an axle, two jack posts, a switch throw, two pieces of short iron, a grooved rope wheel, three shovels and an axe.

Thomas, who told authorities he is unemployed, said he took the axe and shovels some time previously and the remainder of the articles on Thursday.

The Klondike man said he planned to take the articles "down to Cumberland and try to sell them."

In his statement, Thomas said he took the items from the Jenkins coal mines.

State Trooper Harry S. Bosley investigated.

William Bishop, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, said, "There is no sense to it. It certainly did not start from this headquarters."

C. And P. Drivers Learn Stopping Time Of Vehicles

Cowboys used to boast that their hay burners were able to stop on a dime—and give at least a nickel's change.

Today, throughout Maryland, drivers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City are getting dramatic proof that you can't stop on a dime. In fact, at 20 miles an hour it would take at least 630 dimes laid side by side. A crew of C. and P. safety experts is showing drivers that the average distance required to stop company vehicles is 37 to 39 feet when traveling at 20 miles per hour.

An ingenious device, a brake testing reaction detonator, is being used to demonstrate this fact to the more than 1,400 C. and P. drivers. In addition, drivers are learning that under the best road conditions and with the driver ready to make an emergency stop, the vehicle will travel an average of 13 feet before the brake is even applied. This is known as reaction time.

When taking the test, the employe drives the vehicle he used in his daily work. The safety coordinator who explains the procedure and rides with the driver, has an electric switch concealed in his hand. Another switch is clamped to the brake pedal.

On the front bumper of the vehicle is mounted a device loaded with two .22 caliber shells which shoot yellow chalk downwards to the surface of the road. Electric power to operate the system comes from the car battery.

In cooperation with police officials a quiet side road is selected for the test. When the driver is proceeding steadily at 20 miles per hour, the coordinator presses his switch. A sharp report is heard and yellow chalk dust appears on the road. As soon as the report is heard, the driver acts to bring his truck to an emergency stop. His foot touching the brake pedal fires the second cartridge and makes another yellow chalk dust patch on the road.

After the stop has been made, the driver and the coordinator measure distances. From the first chalk mark to the second one is the

$1,500,000 Waste Recovery Process Set By Luke Plant

Operation Is Due To Start Early In 1951

A major technical improvement is planned by the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company to reduce wastes discharged into the river.

Cost of the operation is estimated at about $1,500,000 and it will go into effect about the first of the year.

Patrick was one of the speakers in a round-table discussion which featured the opening session of the ninth annual meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

Process Developed

Patrick said a process is being developed to recover wastes from the soda cooking operation at the plant and to reuse the soda ash chemical.

Other improvements are also being made to recover wastes, he said.

Similar work being done at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America was outlined by R. R. Sitzler, sanitary engineer, who spoke on behalf of H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager.

Sitzler said plant waste surveys were conducted and that "pilot plants" are now being constructed on an experimental basis to try out methods of recovering wastes.

Special emphasis, he said, is being placed on recovering wastes from the acetate rayon manufacturing process.

Fly ash from the power plant had been discharged into the river but a settling basin is planned, he said.

Part of the $6,000,000 improvement program planned by the local Celanese plant will include reduction of wastes, Sitzler said.

Tubes Damaged

In the past when the plant used river water, Connelly said, the polluted water damaged boiler tubes and conductors, and considerable expense was necessary to treat the water. As a result, the plant gets most of its water now from the city.

Problems of the Allegany Metropolitan Sanitary Commission were outlined by its chairman, Dr. William E. Moseley, Mt. Savage.

Dr. Moseley said the commission is unable to act unless towns ask for sanitary improvements, and that funds cannot be raised above 10 per cent of the town's assessed property value.

Dr. Moseley recommended that communities band together so that projects can be handled on a group basis, thus making it possible to raise more funds.

He recalled that a meeting is scheduled October 5 in Frostburg to discuss a proposed trunk sewer from Frostburg to Westernport.

Value of the Savage River dam to area industries wes cited by Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer of the Upper Potomac River Board.

Army Engineers expect the dam will be completed in time to have it filled by spring freshets in 1951, Hitchins said, adding the dam will be in operation by next summer.

Industries and towns along the river can expect improvement in river conditions by next summer, Hitchins said.

He explained that the dam will increase low water flow from about 20 cubic feet per second up to about 100 cubic feet per second.

This will provide more and purer water for industrial use because river flow can be regulated, he explained.

Abatement Needed

Chief speaker at the afternoon session was Sylvan C. Martin, Washington, D. C., director of the Water Pollution Control Committee of the United States Public Health Service.

Martin stressed the need for water pollution abatement in times of national emergency to give war industries an ample supply of processed water.

State water pollution control agencies, Martin said, should carry on more aggressive programs than in the past because the need for pollution abatement is greater now.

It is up to those agencies, Martin

2 Area Soldiers Are Wounded In Korean War

One Is Injured Second Time In Six Weeks

Two area soldiers have been wounded in Korea, one of them for the second time within the past six weeks, according to reports received from the Secretary of the Army.

Cumberland career soldier, Master Sgt. William L. Norwood, 31, husband of Mrs. Dorothy Brockey Norwood, Zihlman Ways, was seriously wounded in action in Korea on August 16.

Mrs. Norwood received another telegram from the Secretary of the Army yesterday informing her that her husband had been slightly wounded in action again in Korea.

Sgt. Norwood left the United States for Japan on July 25. Soon thereafter, he was sent to Korea with the Fifth Cavalry Division.

Pfc. Edward Thomas MacMillan, 17, of 64 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, was wounded in Korea September 13 and has received the Purple Heart and the Combat Badge, according to a telegram received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Delsie MacMillen, from the Secretary of the Army.

Mrs. MacMillan also received a letter from her son yesterday in which he said that he had been wounded by a hand grenade explosion.

Pfc. MacMillan attended Central High School and in June, 1948, he enlisted in the Army. He received his infantry basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and he was sent to Japan for occupation duty soon thereafter.

He is now expected to return to a hospital in the United States.

Firemen Search Swollen Stream

A woman's black coat that hung on Jennings Run Bridge at Corriganville most of yesterday and the little dog that stood watch over it have police checking the rain-swollen stream for a possible drowning victim.

Trooper William F. Baker said another incident that may fit into the case is a white purse found farther down the stream by searching firemen.

Corriganville Fire Chief Harry W. Martz called police into the case last night after several area residents reported seeing the coat and dog there as early as yesterday morning.

Trooper Baker said hard rains of the previous day filled the creek bed to a depth of between five and six feet under the bridge. Ordinarily the stream is about 18 inches deep.

Mrs. Buella Higgs, who lives within sight of the bridge located on Route 36, told police she saw two women "come down the Cash Valley Road and start hitch hiking" at the bridge about 2 p. m. She saw them talking to the dog.

Police quoted her as saying the women appeared to be about 16 and 40 years of age. The younger woman, according to Mrs. Higgs, was wearing a pink flowered dress and had blond hair.

The older woman, she said "was short and stout." Police said the coat would fit a woman of that description. The pair was last seen at the bridge by Earl Beal, Corriganville, as he drove past en route home "after 2 p. m."

Beal told police that he noticed the black coat hanging on the bridge and the dog standing there at the same time he observed the women thumbing a ride.

Fifteen members of the Corriganville Fire Department began a check of the creek bed last night and after walking the bank for about 1,000 feet reported finding the white purse in the stream.

Police checked the purse but said it was empty. It was in the water for only a short time, Trooper Baker said, because "it still was not rusty or water soaked."

Baker said the coat and dog, described as "just an ordinary dog" with a hairy brown and white coat, were taken to the LaVale substation to await further developments.

Firemen said the stream flows into Wills Creek about 1,000 feet below the bridge. It was this section they checked last night.

State Trooper Paul Long is investigating.

Two Communists Are Expelled By Textile Workers

Executive Board Action Is Unanimous

Two members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), were expelled last night by the local's executive board because of membership in the communist party.

Earl L. Snyder, president, said the men, William Boyd Coleman, and Arthur M. Schusterman, both of 56 North Mechanic Street, were dropped from the union's rolls by unanimous roll call of the five-member executive board and top officers.

He said the men were charged with action detrimental to Local 1874 in belonging to the communist party.

Snyder said Coleman and Schusterman were notified verbally of the board's action immediately following the board meeting and said the action will be confirmed by letter today.

Charges Are Filed

Charges against the self-avowed communists were filed with the Executive Board on September 5, accusing the men of action detrimental to the local because of their membership in the communist party.

A hearing was set for September 12, but plans to go through with the action that night were dropped after it was found that sufficient notification had not been given.

The hearing was then set for last night, allowing the legal two-week notice prescribed by the TWUA International's by - laws. Only seven day's notice was required by Local 1874 rules.

Union Cites Charge

Officials said the by-laws provide that any member found guilty of action detrimental to the interest and welfare of the local union may be fined, suspended or expelled by the Executive Board following notice of written charges and the opportunity of a hearing.

Snyder said the TWUA by-laws gives the expelled members the right to appeal the case to the International union's executive board within 30 days.

Coleman and Schusterman reported last night they are protesting the action and expect to appeal the case.

GOP "School Of Politics" Is Tentatively Set October 11

DIES — George W. Remer, 50, manager of the Cumberland office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, died yesterday morning in Memorial Hospital after becoming ill at his home in Allegany Grove early Thursday morning.

Campaign Training Session Planned

Tentative date for the "school of politics" to be held in Cumberland under the auspices of the Republican National Committee is Wednesday, October 11.

This was reported last night by Edgar M. Lewis, chairman of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee.

The school was originally scheduled for Monday.

Lewis was notified yesterday of the change in date by Miss Bertha Adkins, Baltimore, national committeewoman.

Place of the one-night "school of politics" has not been selected.

Lewis said about 200 Republican party workers from all over the county will be asked to attend.

Similar schools were conducted in August in the Maryland cities of Annapolis, Easton, Salisbury, Elkton, Silver Spring and Towson.

The school of politics was designed in Washington to train precinct workers for a hard-hitting campaign aimed toward a Republican victory in November.

Conducting the school sessions is a three-member team headed by Bernard L. Lamb, Hohokus, N. J., a former New Jersey commissioner of finance.

His aides are James A. Hogan, Jersey City, N. J., a political campaign expert; and Mrs. Gladys P. Gordon, Washington, administrative assistant in the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee.

Similar sessions are also planned in Hagerstown and Baltimore.

B. & O. Retires T. R. Shields

A former Cumberland man, Thomas R. Shields, was retired by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company after 49 years of service. Shields now resides in Grafton, W. Va.

The 64-year-old Grafton yard foreman began working for the B. and O. in Cumberland in 1901 as a caller and later worked as a mechanics helper. During his tour of duty he also served as car repairman, brakeman, yard helper, and station master.

The retiring railroader was born in Little Orleans, Md. He married the former Agnes C. Shoultes, Grafton, in 1922. The couple has two sons—both employes of the B. and O. in Grafton.

Shields also has held numerous positions in the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. He will resign from posts that he now holds, he said.

An informal farewell was held in Shields honor Tuesday morning in Grafton. Among those attending were T. K. Klauenberg, superintendent, and J. G. Proudfoot, Grafton's general yardmaster.

Klondike Man Held In Theft

A 53-year-old Klondike man who told authorities he has two sons in the Army was ordered held yesterday under $500 bond for action of the October Grand Jury on a charge of theft.

He is charged with stealing $60 worth of mining materials and equipment from the Consolidated Fuel Company on Thursday.

The articles included steel ties, an axle, two jack posts, a switch throw, two pieces of short iron, a grooved rope wheel, three shovels and an axe.

Thomas, who told authorities he is unemployed, said he took the axe and shovels some time previously and the remainder of the articles on Thursday.

The Klondike man said he planned to take the articles "down to Cumberland and try to sell them."

In his statement, Thomas said he took the items from the Jenkins coal mines.

Lane Denies Reports Of His Withdrawal

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP)—Governor Lane tonight denied reports that he intends to pull out as a candidate for reelection before the state's Democratic convention.

"Such a proposal has never occurred to me," the Governor said.

No one seems to know where the report got started. It was heard in Baltimore during the morning hours around city hall and at the court house in Towson.

William Bishop, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee, said, "There is no sense to it. It certainly did not start from this headquarters."

C. And P. Drivers Learn Stopping Time Of Vehicles

Cowboys used to boast that their hay burners were able to stop on a dime—and give at least a nickel's change.

Today, throughout Maryland, drivers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City are getting dramatic proof that you can't stop on a dime. In fact, at 20 miles an hour it would take at least 630 dimes laid side by side. A crew of C. and P. safety experts is showing drivers that the average distance required to stop company vehicles is 37 to 39 feet when traveling at 20 miles per hour.

An ingenious device, a brake testing reaction detonator, is being used to demonstrate this fact to the more than 1,400 C. and P. drivers. In addition, drivers are learning that under the best road conditions and with the driver ready to make an emergency stop, the vehicle will travel an average of 13 feet before the brake is even applied. This is known as reaction time.

When taking the test, the employe drives the vehicle he used in his daily work. The safety coordinator who explains the procedure and rides with the driver, has an electric switch concealed in his hand. Another switch is clamped to the brake pedal.

On the front bumper of the vehicle is mounted a device loaded with two .22 caliber shells which shoot yellow chalk downwards to the surface of the road. Electric power to operate the system comes from the car battery.

In cooperation with police officials a quiet side road is selected for the test. When the driver is proceeding steadily at 20 miles per hour, the coordinator presses his switch. A sharp report is heard and yellow chalk dust appears on the road. As soon as the report is heard, the driver acts to bring his truck to an emergency stop. His foot touching the brake pedal fires the second cartridge and makes another yellow chalk dust patch on the road.

After the stop has been made, the driver and the coordinator measure distances. From the first chalk mark to the second one is the
